NO RAIN IN SIGHT—YET

Bathed in sunshine, Mount Tamalpais, Corte Madera Creek and a portion of the Ross Valley were the scene of tranquility today. But, much like last year, the weatherman was wary of things to come. Last Oct. 20, the first major storm of the season dumped 1.04 inches on Marin. This year, the National Weather Service predicts a 40 per cent chance of rain overnight and a 20 per cent chance tomorrow, indicating history may repeat itself.

Pleasure Faire Promoters Clear A Zoning Hurdle

Charges Of Favoritism Hurled By Ired Lucas Valley Residents

By WAT TAKESHITA

Operators of the Renaissance Pleasure Faire, who want to establish an "Old English Village" in Lucas Valley, cleared their first hurdle yesterday over the solid opposition of about 70 residents who packed a hearing at the Civic Center.

Emotionally charged residents complained that the proposed Renaissance Centre is a blatantly commercial enterprise masquerading as a cultural undertaking.

When Deputy Zoning Administrator Harvey E. Bragdon approved a use permit with a series of conditions on parking and traffic control, opponents launched a personal attack on Bragdon, accusing him of favoring Ronald and Phyllis Patterson over the 2,200 residents who signed petitions or voiced their protests.

Ronald H. Marinoff, Lucas Valley Homeowners Association spokesman and a Marinwood Fire Department battalion chief, said that on weekends only one regular fireman is on duty and that the department depends on volunteers who answer calls in private vehicles. With the Pleasure Faire drawing 100,000 persons, Marinoff demanded to know how volunteers would respond to fires.

"God forbid that any tragedy should occur, because if it does, it's gonna rest squarely on your shoulders," he told Bragdon.

Others in the audience began shouting at Bragdon from all sides. They asked why he was favoring the Pattersons when 2,200 residents of the immediate area were begging him not to issue the permit. "Whose interest do you weigh?" asked Calvin B. Colt of Mount Shasta Drive. "The three developers or 3,000 residents?"

Bragdon replied that the Pattersons will be required to meet health and safety standards laid down by state and county officials, provide for adequate parking, and pay for professional patrolmen to act as traffic guides at every intersection along Lucas Valley Road during the Pleasure Faire.

Having public patrolmen or county officials hired by private developers is unethical, Marinoff said. "We shouldn't go in for rent-a-cop, rent-a-sanitarian, or rent-a-fireman."

Bragdon said the use permit also is conditioned on the county approving a rezoning of the property, the 1,100-acre Grady Ranch east of Big Rock. The rezoning hearing is scheduled for Nov. 1 before the Marin County Planning Commission.

If the county rejects the rezoning, then the use permit would be null and void, Bragdon said.

Several persons accused Bragdon of "buck passing."

Paul Straube of 17 Mount Lassen Drive charged that Bragdon had appeared at the hearing with a preconceived notion in favor of the Pattersons and against the wishes of 2,200 persons.

Fire Chief Gaylord E. Bonfield warned that traffic would choke the Lucas Valley turnoff from Highway 101 and the Miller Creek and Las Gallinas Avenue turnoffs. Access to homes would be jeoparadized because Lucas Valley Road is the only access, the chief said.

Marinoff introduced letters from the California Highway Patrol, the Division of Environmental Control and Deputy Zoning Administrator Ralph D. Cairns to back up his contention that the Pleasure Faire of past years caused traffic and health problems.

These charges were rejected by Mr. and Mrs. Patterson, represented by attorney Hadden W. Roth. They said they have abided by and will abide by all requirements on offstreet parking and traffic control. The

Council Approves Townhouse Units

By C. P. McCARTHY

The San Rafael City Council last night approved plans for a 107-unit townhouse development on an extension of Manuel T. Freitas Parkway, despite bitter opposition by neighbors of the proposed development. (Other San Rafael City Council stories, page 27.)

Following a lengthy hearing, the council voted 4-1 to approve the plan exactly as it had indicated it would following a previous hearing Oct. 4.

Approval of the proposal bogged down that night when the council questioned plans to make the Freitas Parkway extension four lanes.

The council referred the proposal back to the planning commission with instructions to revise the road extension plans to two lanes, but still require the developer, International Clearing Corp. of San Francisco, to give the city the same 48-foot right-of-way approved for the four lanes.

The planning commission Oct. 12 voted to send back to the council its original recommendation for the 48-foot right-of-way, with the suggestion that it be striped only for two lanes until future traffic demands require four lanes.

With the recommendation it wanted in its hands, the council

Japan Hits One Plan To Oust Taiwan

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Japan said today the move to expel Nationalist China from the United Nations on a simple majority vote would be irresponsible because it ignores the real situation in the Far East.

Former Japanese Foreign Minister Kiichi Aichi spoke on the second day of the China debate as pro-Peking and proTaiwan forces scrambled for a dozen undecided votes.

Nationalist Chinese diplomats expressed confidence the U.N. seat would be saved by a margin of five or six votes. Sources close to the U.S. state department talked in terms of a three or four-vote victory margin.

Aichi pointed out that most countries in Asia and the Pacific area supported U.S. resolutions calling for the seating of Communist China in both the Assembly and tte Security Council while requiring a two-thirds vote for approval of Peking's demand for the expulsion of Taiwan.

The Albanian resolution containing Peking's demand, Aichi said, was "unreasonable and preemptory."

"Quite frankly, to adopt the Albanian resolution by a simple majority would be, in our considered view, an irresponsible attitude not befitting the high prestige and noble obligation of our world organization," said Aichi.

Baar Hits Communal Living Among Teens

The chairman of the Marin County supervisors and members of the juvenile delinquency prevention commission split sharlpy today on the question of communal living as a form of delinquency.

Chairman Louis H. Baar said that one of his chief concerns in Marin today is the younger people "getting into the hip culture," blowing their minds with drugs, and unable to get out of the situation.

"It does not necessarily follow that there is any more delinquency in communes than among kids from good families who run in packs," said Supervisor Michael Wornum.

Other supervisors remained silent on the issue.

"The assumption is that to be hip is to be delinquent, and I don't think that is true at all," said Gary T. Giacomini, a member of the delinquency commission.

Commissioner Richard Oesterman also disagreed with Baar. "I don't think living in sin is being delinquent. Living together without benefit of marriage doesn't mean a G.D. thing. Why, I lived in France for nine years without being married."

Commissioner Gerald Green said the older generation must realize that a new life style exists, and communication must be opened up with youth.

Baar explained that the problem young people in communes is that they become involved with drugs and end up on county general relief with no sense of direction.

"Kids are coming from all over the country, obsessed with

Nixon Asks Economic Extensions

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon sent Congress legislation today to extend for a year his authority to control wages and prices, give him standby power to control interest rates, and establish rules for the second phase of his economic program.

Administration officials emphasized, however, that Nixon has authority under existing laws to conduct his program of economic controls at least until April 30, 1972.

The proposed legislation would add a $2,500 civil penalty for violation of stabilization rules. Present law provides for a criminal fine of $5,000, but government lawyers generally agree that civil court actions are easier to win than criminal cases.

The Economic Stabilization Act of 1970, used by Nixon in imposing the current 90-day wage-price-rent freeze and in establishing policy for the period after the freeze ends Nov. 13, expires April 30.

The administration bill would extend the act until April 30, 1973, and would rewrite many of the details of the law.

The bill would create a new Temporary Court of Appeals consisting of three or more federal district or circuit court judges, designated by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, to handle appeals from decisions of the Pay Board and Price Commission.

Officials said actions involving decisions of the pay or price panels would first go through a federal district court and then could be appealed to the temporary court. Decisions of the

Hearing Into Angela Venue Change Opens

By MARY LEYDECKER

A Berkeley professor took the stand in Marin Superior Court today to describe a six-county poll he took which led him to the conclusion that San Franciscans are less prejudiced against Angela Davis than Marin residents.

Jeffery Paige, a sociology professor at the University of California, testified in connection with Miss Davis's request that her case be moved to San Francisco from Marin.

Albert W. Harris Jr., the assistant attorney general prosecuting the case, said today that while he did not oppose a change of venue from Marin County, he did oppose Miss Davis's request for a specific county.

Harris said he did not believe that the motion for a transfer to San Francisco only, was a legal one.

Paige said his survey of Marin, San Francisco, Alameda, San Mateo, Sacramento and Santa Clara counties showed that while interest in the Davis case is high in all the counties, it is much greater in Marin.

He said that 75 per cent of the Marin residents interviewed said they had discussed the case with friends or relatives, while in the other counties, 50 per cent said they had.

Tiburon Annex Vote Is Light To Moderate

Light to moderate turnouts were reported this morning at three polls where residents of Strawberry, Bel Aire, Eagle Rock and Bayview Heights were voting on whether to annex to Tiburon.

At 11 a.m., precinct workers reported approximately 335 voters had cast ballots. There are 1,889 registered voters.

Turnout was heaviest at Strawberry Point School where 175 out of the precinct's 900 voters had cast ballots. At Bel Aire, 97 out of 672 had voted, while 63 out of 379 had cast ballots at the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, a turnout a precinct worker called "light."

Polls will remain open until 8 p.m.

25,000-Acre Bolinas State Park Is Proposed

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Creation of a 25,140-acre Bolinas Lagoon State Park and reconstruction of a "major" Indian village in Point Reyes National Seashore have been recommended in a new state plan.

The new state park would include extensive upland areas as well as the lagoon.

The park would mean return to the state of the lagoon, which came under county jurisdiction two years ago after a bitter fight to preserve the lagoon from development. Of the 25,140 acres envisioned in the new state park, about 900 acres are held by the county in the lagoon under its state grant.

The recommendations came in the Department of Parks and Recreation's Coastline Preservation and Recreation Plan. A broad outline of its provisions was released after Democratic legislators leaked it to newsmen.

The plan called for a $1 billion program to save the endangered coastline, and preliminary details became available today.

Department officials stressed that the aim of the park would be to preserve the lagoon and adjacent coastline, not to provide for intensive recreational use.

The plan, however, designated 702 of the 8,904 acres on land as suitable for development for public recreation. These 702 acres would be in upland areas away from the lagoon.

The plan did not estimate the cost of each recommended park project, instead lumping their total cost in the $1 billion figure.

The lagoon park was given

Kosygin Engulfed By Heavy Guard

Kosygin, unhurt by the incident Monday, was encircled by a bolstered force of some 10 bodyguards as he arrived at the parlaiment buidling for his second round of talks with Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

Dissident Mill Valley Parent Air Gripes

By GEORGE NEVIN

Parents objecting to the "trend of education" in Mill Valley School District got their first chance to voice their concern in public last night — and won unexpected support.

Backing the dissident parents were many who said they approved of what were called "innovative" and "experimental" programs in the district but didn't wish to force their views on others.

It had been feared by some that the special meeting — called to explore points raised by 1,233 persons who signed a petition presented to the board Sept. 27 — would lapse into emotional statements and personal charges.

But the three-hour session, attended by more than 500 persons who filled Ruby Scott Auditorium at Tamalpais High School, was calm and constructive.

It ended on a postive note when Attorney Douglas P. Ferguson, of 76 Eldridge Avenue, called on all parents in the district — whether supporting or opposing innovation — to consider giving the dissatisfied parents programs to their liking.

Another special meeting was set for 8 p.m. Nov. 4 at the auditorium for discussion of how to provide alternative choices to the petitioners.

Specific concerns of parents, alluded to at tow previous board meetings and in the petition but never clearly stated, were discussed for the first time last night.

James F. Henthorne, of 296 Lovell Avenue, read off seven items which he said typified the complaints of the petitioners. They included:

Wrongful deemphasis of academic achievement and proper behavior in the school; a credibility gap among parents, teachers and administrators; an atmosphere of distrust, fear and lack of confidence; lack of evaluation of school personnel;

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Agnew Reception

GARGAGLIANOI, Greece (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew was almost mobbed by friendly villagers today as he visited his father's birthplace to unveil a plaque commemorating Agnew's Greek inheritance.

The crowds pulled and shook his hands, shouting "Agnew! Agnew!" Some were holding signs saying "Welcome, Mr. Agnew" and "Long Live Agnew Who is Back with Us." Many school children wearing national costume waved the American flag.

The vice president is paying his first visit to Greece. The visit included three days as the official guest of the government, followed by a five-day private visit to the countryside and islands.

The vice president's father, Theofaras Anagnostopoulos, emigrated to the United States in 1906. He later changed the family name.

Drug Warning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Adminstration (FDA) today recommended new precautions in the use of a tuberculosis drug linked with the deaths of two Capitol Hill newsmen last year.

The precautions, spelled out in a bulletin mailed to the nation's 335,000 physicians, apparently were not observed when the U.S. Public Health Service gave the drug Isoniazid, to 2,321 congressmen and Capitol hill workers last year. Nineteen contracted hepatitis and two, both newsmen died.

The drug program was curtailed after Timothy Bleck, 30, a St. Louis Post-Dispatch reporter, and Robert L. Stuckey, 38, WTOP-TV television sound man, died of liver disease.

Kissinger Stop

AGANA, Guam (UPI) — Presidential foreign policy adviser Henry Kissinger today arrived in Guam — the last stop before he goes to mainland China to prepare the way for President Nixon's forthcoming trip to Peking.

He and his aides took off in a presidential Jet Monday afternoon after a relaxing stay in Hawaii.

Kissinger and his aides planned to stay overnight in Guam, then to fly to Shanghai and Peking Wednesday, Asian time.

Connally Picked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has selected Treasury Secretary John B. Connally Jr. instead of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew as his personal representative to South Vietnam and Tokyo in two weeks, according to administration sources.

Precise details were not disclosed on the Connally trip to Saigon Oct. 31 for the inauguration of President Nguyen Van Thieu and to Japan about Nov. 7 for top-level economic talks.

There was the possibility that the only Democrat in the Nixon Cabinet would make several stops between Saigon and Tokyo.

'Grave' Situation

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi today called the military buildup on both sides of the border between India and Pakistan a "grave" development and said she was "prepared to meet anybody" to solve the problem.

Pakistani and Indian troops Sunday massed along the West Pakistan border after tensions in the area increased sharply over the East Pakistan refugee problem. Nearly 9.5 million war refugees have fled to India, and Pakistani leaders charged that India will not permit them to return.

"I am prepared to meet anybody if thereby something is solved," Mrs. Gandhi said in a news conference today.

Sidesteps Nominee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon went to one of the first plays ever written about women's lib last night, but refused to say whether he will nominate a woman for the Supreme Court.

"I won't get into that argument," Nixon told reporters as he browsed in the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts after the dedication of the Eisenhower Theater.

"I really have not thought of it in that way women's lib," Nixon said of the play, Henrik Ibsen's "A Doll's House."

"It's a play not limited to women versus man . . . ," Nixon said. "It's about life generally. Some individuals are totally unconcerned with appearances, others are concerned with realities.

"More often than not, the woman is in this position, but it could have been the other way."

Thief Plunges 19 Stories In His Getaway

NEW YORK (UPI)—A man who beat and robbed an elderly guest at the exclusive St. Moritz Hotel Monday climbed out of the hotel window apparently thinking there was a window ledge to use in his escape.

There was no ledge and the robber fell 19 floors to his death.

Police said the man followed Marcus Cohen, 72, from the lobby of the hotel, located on the south side of Central Park, up to Cohen's room.

There Cohen was robbed of $3,400 and beaten with a lead pipe. Police said 30 stitches were required to close Cohen's head wounds.

The man fell to the pavement in front of the hotel and died instantly, police said. A passerby found a blood-soaked roll of $100 bills and turned them over to police.

'Second Gun' Theory In Killing Of Robert Kennedy Thrown Out

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A five-month investigation into the case of Sirhan Sirhan has confirmed that the condemned assassin acted alone when Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was killed, District Attorney Joseph P. Busch Jr. said Monday.

Busch said a "second gun" theory was made by "people who are trying to make something out of nothing. You will never put and end to the theories of people who think there were two guns."

At a Hall of Justice news conference, Busch said, "We are satisfied Sirhan Bishara Sirhan killed Sen. Robert Kennedy and only he alone is the murderer."

The controversy was touched off by Barbara W. Blehr, an attorney who attempted to block a promotion of Dewayne Wolfer, the criminologist who headed the ballistics investigation in the Kennedy assassination.

It was alleged by Miss Blehr and later in a lawsuit by freelance writer Theodore Charach that Wolfer violated standard procedures in testing the .22-caliber revolver used by Sirhan to kill Kennedy at the Ambassador Hotel.

They said an independent investigation indicated another gun may have been used in the melee in the hotel pantry moments after Kennedy claimed victory in the 1968 California presidential primary.

Busch, who was appointed district attorney after the case was closed and Sirhan was sentenced to death, said his investigation revealed that Wolfer had made only a clerical error in labeling the trial exhibit envelope containing three bullets test fired by him from the gun that was wrenched from Sirhan's hand.

"We have reached the conclusion that the charges made against Mr. Wolfer are untrue," Busch said. "Our findings show he did not violate proper ballistics procedures in the Sirhan trial.

"The mislabeled envelope in no way detracts from the salient reality that the murder verdict returned was just and correct," the district attorney said.

Busch said Wolfer earlier positively identified the Sirhan gun as the murder weapon by comparing bullets test fired from it with a bullet removed from Kennedy's body.

Then, a second series of tests were carried out after the original murder weapon had been entered into evidence and was not available.

Wolfer borrowed an identical model of the weapon, an IvarJohnson Cadet revolver, from the police department property division, and used it to verify sound characteristics and muzzle distances.

The mislabeled envelope had the substitute gun's serial number on it, but the package contained three bullets test fired from Sirhan's gun, Busch explained.

The district attorney said it was a "serious" clerical error only because it resulted in another investigation.

Memory-Blocking Drug May Be In Use By 1984

STANFORD (UPI) —By 1984 a drug will be produced which will block a person's memory of a "particularly traumatic experience that would best be forgotten," a researcher predicted Monday.

Dr. Leo E. Hollister, Palo Alto Veterans Administration Hospital psychiatrist, also forecast a drug that would stimulate a failing memory.

The memory-blocking drug, he added, will be administered by doctors and possibly by ambulance stewards.

Dr. Hollister's talk was given at a Stanford University sponsored symposium on drugs and drug abuses.

U.S. Jet Kills 18 S. Viets

SAIGON (UPI)—A U.S. jet fighter-bomber mistakenly killed 18 South Vietnamese paratroopers helping defend American Fire Base Pace near the Cambodian border, U.S. spokesmen said today. It was the worst combat accident in more than seven months.

The paratroopers were spotted in the open Monday by a Forward Air Controller (FAC) who mistook them for Communist troops. He called in two A37 Dragonfly jets and one of them laid a pair of 500 pound bombs on the paratroop position, killing 18, wounding seven seriously and a number of others less seriously.

CLEARANCE

Spokesmen said the FAC called for and got a clearance for the air strike from the Vietnamese paratroop commander at Thien Ngon Fire Base about five miles to the south. He marked the paratroop position with a smoke rocket.

One Dragonfly dropped its bombs but the other was told to cancel the mission after a frantic radio message from the ground.

Pace, about 80 miles northwest of Saigon, has been under siege for several weeks. U.S. military sources in Tay Ninh told UPI correspondent Don Davis that a direct hit from incoming Communist fire knocked out one of the four American longrange field guns there. A second fieldgun was out of commission because its recoil buffer was not working.

UNDERSTRENGTH

The U.S. command has been trying to replace the 175 mm and eight-inch cannon but has been prevented by Communist pressure. As result, it said, the U.S. artillery battery there has been reduced from 90 men to 60. An understrength U.S. infantry company is still participating in defense of the base.

Gen. Nguyen Van Minh, the South Vietnamese commander in the area, told Davis and UPI correspondent Ken Braddick that fresh South Vietnamese units were being sent in as reinforcements. But he said the Communists were dug into such deep bunkers that even B52 strikes could not dislodge them

Thieu's Election Won't Be Probed

SAIGON (UPI) — The South Vietnamese Senate voted down today a move to investigate the results of President Nguyen Van Thieu's unopposed reelection. Rampaging students burned four cars and trucks and smashed a fifth in continuing protest demonstrations.

The Senate voted 37-18 against the proposal to investigate the 94.8 per cent margin in favor of Thieu in the Oct. 3 elections, although individual senators codemned the result from the floor.

The student demonstrators also were demanding the immediate U.S. withdrawal from the Vietnam War.

The South Vietnamese Supreme Court heard arguments today on suits from four supporters of Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky challenging the election, but deferred a decision until at least Wednesday.

Lawyers for the four charged that a one-man election was unconstitutional and urged the court to make a "historical gesture."

"We need only five of you to make a coup d'etat," said one lawyer, Nguyen Phuoc Dai.

The attacks by the students from Cao Dat Technical College marked the second day of a campaign against foreign-owned vehicles in Saigon as a means of protest. Monday students bured a three-wheeled minibus that belonged to the U.N. Childrens Emergency Fund (UNICEF).

About 20 South Vietnamese high school students carrying antigovernment and anti-American banners today attacked a civilian utility vehicle near Van Hanh Buddhist University in the same area as Monday's attack. The driver of the vehicle fled and the students smashed the car's windows and overturned it. The students carried out a series of raids between 4 and 5 p.m. today in widely scattered locations in Saigon and burned four more vehicles including a pickup truck, a jeep owned by a Filipino and two unidentified American-made sedans.

An attack on a fifth sedan belonging to a police doctor misfired and ended by burning only a heap of trash.

The students distributed leaflets bearing slogans such as "Oppose higher tuition, protest the Oct. 3 election, oppose U.S. imperialism, demand the U.S. withdraw immediately, (and) the U.S. should stop aid to dictator Nguyen Van Thieu immediately." In parliament, Sen. Hyynh Van Cao, leader of the progovernment bloc in the upper chamber, abstained from voting on the investigation commission resolution —the second consecutive time he had done so.

Yippies Will Be At GOP Convention

NEW YORK (UPI)—Yippie leader Jerry Rubin says there will be demonstrations at the Republican national convention in San Diego, Calif., next July similar to those at the Democratic convention in Chicago in 1968.

"We will do the Republicans in San Diego what we did to the Democratic party in Chicago," Rubin said in a radio interview Monday. "We will defeat Nixon in 1972 just like we helped defeat Humphrey in 1968.

This scale model of the proposed 112-unit Hilarita project in Tiburon will be among exhibits on display tonight at a preview of precise plans for the low and moderate income housing project. Designed by San Francisco architects Kaplan and McLaughlin, the project will sit on four acres north of Tiburon Boulevard (shown at left). Lines in the model indicate contour intervals. According to Edwin G. Weed, president of the Tiburon Ecumenical Association, sponsor of the $2.8 million project, interested persons may view the plans at 8 p.m. today at Reed School. The Tiburon City Council is scheduled to consider the plans next Tuesday.

More Novato Creek Plans Presented

Plans for a pilot project to beautify Novato Creek from Seventh Street to the western edge of the downtown shopping center were revealed last night.

They were shown and explained at a joint meeting of the Novato Planning Commission and Novato Parks and Recreation Commission which endorsed them.

Asst. Planner Gary Holloway said that this project would show the residents of Novato what the creek could look like throughout the city. Estimated cost of the project is $19,525.

The plans, drawn by the Novato Citizens Creek Committee, call for a small dam of redwood planks at the Seventh Street Bridge. These could be removed during the rainy season and replaced in the summer to hold a pond.

Paths are planned for each side of the creek. The one on the south would go behind Sambo's restaurant, the Novato branch library and the Sequoia Medical Center. The one on the north would traverse the length of the shopping center.

Some brush clearing would be done under the big trees and turf planted in some area. Other trees would be added where needed.

There would be benches and drinking fountains along the creek. Ornamental lights would keep the paths illuminated so that they could be used night and day.

Leroy M. Gerner, president of the Novato Civic Foundation and retired landscape architect, will head the project.

He said that the first concrete for the dam was poured yesterday at no cost to the city, but would not say who paid for it.

Camera Taken

Two credit cards and a camera valued at about $300 were taken sometime Sunday or yesterday from an auto owned by Candice M. Healy of 35 Ridge Road, San Anselmo, police said today. The auto was parked at her home.

Bomb At Bank Is Dismantled

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)--A British army explosives expert acting on a tip today found and dismantled a 30-pound bomb outside a bank in Newry, an army spokesman said.

"If that had gone off, there would have been extensive damage," the spokesman said.

The incident was one of several investigated by the army Monday night and today during what the spokesman called a generally quiet night in Northern Ireland.

The bomb was dismantled outside the Belfast Bank on Hill Street in Newry, 33 miles southwest of Belfast.

Mendocino Gardens Plans Are Advanced

The Novato Planning Commission last night approved the tentative map of Mendocino Gardens of 28 lots on seven acres south of Novato Boulevard and west of Eucalyptus Avenue.

Normal T. Gilroy, the subdivider, agreed to deed two acres along Novato Creek to the city as an addition to the city park system. It is adjacent to Novato Creek Park.

Plans call for one new street, Mendocino Lane to go west from Eucalyptus to the western edge of the subdivision.

The vote was 5-0 with commissioner F. James Picchi absent.

The Novato Planning Commission Also:

APARTMENTS — Approved the master plan and precise plans for seven apartments on a lot on the east side of Railroad Avenue at the end of Grant Avenue for Fred Mauroni.

BUGEIA — Denied a request of the public works department to change the name of Bugeia Lane to Bahia Drive. Betty Machado, a member of the Marin County Historical Society asked that the name Bugeia be kept as the Bugeia family were pioneers in North Marin.

LOT SPLIT — Approved splitting a 24,000 square-foot lot on San Marin Drive at San Mateo Way into three lots of 7,500 square feet each with an easement for a street as requested by Richard W. Fowler.

CONTINUED — Continued until 8 p.m., Nov. 8 the review of a use permit for Nick Morf to operate a beer parlor in the Sundown Shopping Center, south of Hamilton Air Force Base; consideration of a 200-space addition to the Marin Valley Mobile Country Club, south of Hamilton Air Force Base; a study of the Scottsdale Crossroads area, plans for the Oaks Unit No. 2 of 80 single-family homes on 37 acres south of Vineyard Road for Condiotti Enterprises; plans for Pacheco Village of 180 apartments east of Marin Valley Drive, south of Bolling Drive, and an application for a variance to convert a garage into living quarters at 1279 Parkwood Drive for Kathryn Gruye.

MASTER PLAN — Informed the city council, meeting with it in joint session, that the planning staff will concentrate on updating the city's master plan, even if it means sacrifice of time devoted to advance planning. Commissioner Benjamin F. Edwards told the council the planning department had already adopted a council's recommendation that half the staff time and alternate commission meetings be devoted to the updating, giving priority to a housing element, open space, conservation and a seismic and geologic survey.

Reagan Faces Veto On VD School Bill

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Ronald Reagan's veto of a veneral disease instruction bill has been labeled "part of the right-wing syndrome" by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

But Marin's other legislator, Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, said the bill "goes beyond what is probably proper," although he originally voted for it.

The measure, AB 950, vetoed by Reagan, would permit the instruction in public schools without first requiring parental consent for children to attend the classes. Its author, Assemblyman March K. Fong, D-Oakland, has promised a legislative fight to override the governor's veto.

Current law requires such parental consent before attendance at such classes, thus hobbling schools, according to Mrs. Fong. She stressed that her bill would not deprive parents of their right to have their children excused from the classes.

But Behr told the Independent-Journal that the bill "clouded" this right of parents, thus he probably would not vote to override the veto, although he voted for it when it was approved by the Senate.

Bagley, who also voted for the bill when it went through the Assembly, said he would support an override of the veto only if there were a possibility the override would succeed. He said the prospect of an override so far was nil.

Bagley's staff reported that heavy mail has been flooding into his office, all of it urging his support of an override to pass the bill over the governor's objections.

Warned About Playing Hooky

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislators playing hooky when they should be on the floor of the Assembly have been warned by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti that he is going to crack down.

Moretti Monday sent a letter to each assemblyman asking them to try and arrange their schedules so they can attend floor sessions.

The current session has been slowed by absenteeism since early in the year, causing complaints from both Republicans and Democrats.

Moretti declared he will personally review each request for excused absence on legislative business.

If a lawmaker is granted the approval, he receives his regular daily allotment of $30 for expenses. Lawmakers often give vague explanations for their absences, but receive the expense money anyway.

Dissident Mill Valley Parents Air Gripes

sudden program changes; lack of classroom goals for student attainment; and insufficient testing and a lack of meaningful options.

Hugh A. Brown, of 191 Magee Avenue, added that petitioners weren't out "to return the district to an inflexible, rigid system." Rather, he said, the parents merely wanted a chance to have programs suitable to them.

Lynn Jessup, who said five of her children had attended Old Mill School — singled out by petitioners as the most offensive school — objected to "chaotic conditions harmful to some of the kids."

"The children are handicapped by the reduction of teaching basic skills, dirty schools, and the continual turnover of the teaching staff," she said. "The teachers just don't expect enough of the children."

The school board, she said, "hasn't achieved its stated goal of providing a meaningful alternative to those who want it. This is what we are asking."

"Nobody likes permissiveness. Nobody likes dirty schools," countered F. Conger Fawcett, of 100 Elinor Avenue. He identified himself as a "newcomer" in the district and said, "I'm not aware of the trend of education in the district, but I'm not aware either of what the dissidents would like to turn the trend to."

Still another petitioner, Sheldon Wolff, of 41 Eugne Street, listed these complaints:

Not enough emphasis on basic skills; no objective evaluation; pupils being taught by pupils, not by teachers; promotion of bad study habits; and undermining home discipline by teaching new life styles.

He found unexpected support from Allan J. Joseph, of 200 Summit Avenue. "I'm a fervent supporter of the schools and I happen to approve of the life style they're teaching," Joseph said. "But parents who don't like what's going on should be given alternatives."

Thomas D. Spencer, of 429 Live Oak Drive, agreed. "I'm not going to shove my life style down your throat, but I don't want it done to me, either."

Several persons, including teachers and current and former students of the school district, defended the innovations.

Madeleine Carner, a teacher at Old Mill School for 11 years, told the petitioners they have "no right to criticize unless you come and see what's going on in the classroom and stay for some time. Innovations and changes have to come through trial and error."

"Options are open," she told the petitioning parents. "We have all kinds of education available. We've been experimenting successfully for some time."

Another teacher, Priscilla Smith, said her three children attended Mill Valley schools and that she removed two of them from Old Mill before the "innovation" because of the "emptiness there."

She offered a cure for dissatisfied parents: "Sit down and observe and evaluate and dig in. Don't draw any conclusions until after four or five years. Trust the inborn thirst of kids to learn."

The dissatisfied parents blame innovation for what they feel is a lack of learning by their children, she said, but "long before innovation was tried out in public schools, Johnny couldn't read."

Edward Conroy, teacher at Edna Maguire school and president of the Mill Valley Teachers Association, also defended the modern teaching methods.

"I live in San Francisco, but I wish to God I could afford to live in Mill Valley," he said. "My six children go to school where there's no real innovation. They're lined up and marched into the classroom and some days they don't learn a single thing."

One young man, Stan Irwin, who said he was a former Old Mill student, said the school "is doing a very good job in directing children as to where they will be going in life. The freedom there is a very good thing. The kids are excited and happy working on their own."

Most students, he said, "are intrigued by academic efforts. Freedom will help them go where they want to go."

Although the rambling discussion touched on many points, none was resolved. William Klippert, Old Mill Teacher, recognized the problem.

"This meeting is too large, the issues are too big. We can't get a handle on things." He urged dissatisfied parents to go "straight to the source. If you have a problem with a school, go to that school."

U.N.

speakers in the historic debate voiced support for the Communists, U.S. and Nationalist leaders continued to reflect optimism.

However, informal vote surveys conducted by other sources showed that the U.S. sponsored move to save an assembly seat for Chiang Kaishek's Nationalists while seating mainland China in the assembly and the Security Council still was short of the winning votes.

With the balloting at least two weeks away, polls taken by diplomats favoring opposite sides in the Chinese question indicated that the outcome rested o a dozen countries still listed by both as undecided.

Of the first 11 speakers heard Monday in the debate's opening round, eight favored Peking and three Taiwan.

The Chinese hope for a five or six-vote victory on the U.S. resolution that would require a two-thirds majority vote of the assembly to expel the Nationalists.

U.S. Ambassador George Bush asked priority in the voting for this resolution Monday. If the assembly turns down the priority request the result would indicate little hope for carrying the two-thirds requirement.

Few diplomats believed Albania, masterminding the attempt to seat Peking, could muster a two-thirds vote to expel the Nationalists.

Thus, observers agreed, the crucial vote would be on the priority request.

The countries whose doubtful votes were regarded as probably decisive in the polls taken from opposite sides of the diplomatic lineup were Bahrain, Greece, Israel, Laos, Malta, Senegal and Togo, leaning toward the Nationalists; and Burundi, Guyana, Iceland, Ireland, and Italy leaning toward the Communists.

Bush, in his opening appearance in the debate, said the United States would welcome a "large and dynamic" Communist China but warned that the accompanying move to expel the Chinese Nationalists was "ill-advised and dangerous."

this hip culture," said Baar. "And they don't even know why they're here."

Supervisors also wanted to know how the juvenile delinquency prevention commission could keep closer touch with the community so that racial troubles like the dissension at San Rafael High School could have been nipped in the bud.

Rev. James C. Upshaw, chairman of the delinquency commission, and youth coordinator L. Charles Smith said the commission was tied up with helping Santa Venetia develop teen activities and did not have the resources to tackle another major problem.

Wornum suggested the commission use committees or miniboards to conduct local activities such as the Santa Venetia Teen Center so that they can keep in touch with problems elsewhere.

Supervisor John F. McInnis deplored the fact that too much effort is spent after the fact instead of in prevention of delinquency.

Green asked the supervisors for financial backing if workable programs for delinquency prevention are brought up by the delinquency commission.

Supervisors made no commitments but said they would welcome any constructive suggestions.

FAIR

Pattersons promised they would not seek tax exemption for the property.

Joan Fernandez accused the Pattersons of running a commercial enterprise grossing $500,000 per year "hidden under the cultural veil." She said the Pleasure Faire would be in direct competition with the Marin Veterans Memorial Building and the College of Marin Theater, both of which are supported by public funds.

"The Pattersons must have been talking to you," Maurice A. Guy of 2200 Lucas Valley Road said to Bragdon. "What do you owe the Pattersons?"

Guy said the Pleasure Faire will draw "hippies" and "so-called artists who run around the hills naked."

"Are they gonna add culture to our environment?" Guy jeered. "I think it stinks. . . I never saw such a two-timing proposal in my life."

Guy said the Pattersons have failed to clean up the "garbage" from this year's Pleasure Faire held in Novato. "They even tried to tear down a railroad shed to make booths."

Mrs. Patterson replied the faire caused no damage, and everything was restored to its original condition.

"The only thing we took out was some poison oak, and that we did not restore," she said.

Irving L. Schwartz, land planning engineer in the county Department of Public Works, said Lucas Valley Road may be able to accommodate 1,500 cars, but the Pleasure Faire plan shows a parking lot for 3,000 cars. Schwartz recommended that the stalls be enlarged and parking area be at least 50 feet from Miller Creek. He said a public transit system, not a shuttle system, is needed to handle the fair crowds that would congest Lucas Valley Road.

Marinoff said he would appeal yesterday's decision to the county planning commission. Residents, he said, would fight the Renaissance Centre proposal all the way to the county board of supervisors.

ECONOMY

temporary court could then be reviewed by the Supreme Court.

The bill also would give Nixon authority to control interest rates at "levels consonant with orderly economic growth." Treasury Undersecretary Charles E. Walker predicted, however, that no action would be required to control interest rates because he said they are declining under the pressure of market forces.

Walker said the bill also would give the pay board and the price commission legal authority to lift controls selectively once inflation had been overcome in a particular industry.

Much of the authority of the pay board and price commission will be lodged in the chairmen who will be a full time government employe. The bill authorizes a salary of $40,000 annually for the two chairmen.

The measure would waive federal conflict of interest laws for the part-time members of the two commissions.

The bill also would make it clear that the President acted legally in delegating a portion of his authority to the pay and price boards and would ratify decisions already taken during the freeze period.

Walker said the administration would "strongly oppose" any efforts in Congress to make members of the pay board and price commission subject to Senate confirmation.

Fiscal Problems Group On List

The San Anselmo School District board, meeting today at 7:30 p.m. at Red Hill School, will discuss establishing a citizens' advisory committee on operational and fiscal problems.

The committee would advise the board on priorities for spending district funds.

Big Pot Raid Nets 4 In Marinwood

Four men — including two Marin County residents — have been charged with federal marijuana violations after narcotics agents swooped down on a truck loaded with 1,200 pounds of pot on a Marin street.

Daniel J. Addario, special agent in charge of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics in San Francisco, said the raid occurred Sunday morning at a warehouse on Palmer Street in Marinwood. (There is no such address in that community.)

Attorney Joseph Kreamer, 32, of 65 Brighton Avenue, Bolinas; Allan G. Palmer, 30, of 1709 Indian Valley Road, Novato; Paul R. Pattengale, 32, of San Francisco, and Allister M. McKenzie, 29, of Boyes Hot Springs, were arrainged yesterday before a federal magistrate in San Francisco on charges of possessing marijauna with intent to distribute it.

Addario said his men and state and Marin County agents had learned of a plot to fly the 1,200 pounds of marijuana from Florida to the Bay Area.

Agents said they watched the four suspects unload crated marijuana Sunday from a twin-engine plane at Oakland Airport, then followed three of the men in the truck to Marinwood. There, 11 undercover cars and a helicopter were used to surround the truck.

Kreamer, who had left the Oakland airport in his own auto, was arrested later Sunday in Oakland, agents said.

The Bolinas man also was arrested Aug. 18 in Novato, after agents said they found 20 pounds of marijuana in his auto. He was free on $5,000 bail awaiting a federal court appearance next Tuesday on the first arrest.

3-Year-Old Pot Charge Dismissed

Three-year old marijuana charges against a former Novato High School teacher were dismissed yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

The charges against James David Kimmel, 36, now living in Sonoma, were dismissed by Judge E. Warren McGuire at the request of the district attorney's office.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Jerry R. Herman said the dismissal was requested because Kimmel had been convicted of other pot charges in Sonoma County.

A Superior Court jury found Kimmel guilty last year of resisting arrest, but deadlocked on whether Kimmel had used minors to obtain pot for him, possessed pot and used it on the high school campus in November 1968.

Judge McGuire yesterday set sentencing on the misdemeanor resisting-arrest charge for Nov. 15 — three years to the day of Kimmel's arrest on the Novato High School campus.

Kimmel had taught science at the school for a little more than a year until he was fired shortly after his arrest.

Following the high school arrest, Kimmel was arrested at his Sonoma County home in August 1970 on suspicion of growing a $20,000 marijuana crop, and again last month when Sonoma authorities said they confiscated several hundred marijuana plants growing in the shape of a peace symbol at his home in Sonoma.

Mill Valley Woman Injured In Wreck

Alice W. Williams, 59, of 111 La Verne Avenue, Mill Valley, has been treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital, San Rafael, for injuries suffered in a single-car accident northbound on Highway 101 in San Rafael.

According to the California Highway Patrol, her car struck a guardrail on the freeway near the Coleman School overcrossing at 8:50 a.m. Friday. She was treated for multiple cuts and bruises and neck strain.

LAGOON

10th priority among 17 recommended projects in the central coastal area of the state. It was designated as an area in "mild endangerment" of irreversible development that would threaten its future use for public enjoyment.

The plan also called for expansion of Marin Headlands State Park as more Army fort lands are declared surplus, and for completion of the national seashore, both requiring federal action.

The reconstructed Indian village would show how the Coast Miwok tribe lived, but the state plan offered no details on this recommendation. A department spokesman volunteered that this should be done by the National Park Service, not the state.

The county's own preliminary master plan for the lagoon, published last week, also calls for preservation of the lagoon, with observation points and nature interpretation centers the only developments allowed.

The lagoon was granted to the Bolinas Harbor District in 1959, but district voters dissolved it in 1969 after its directors had a plan drawn calling for extensive development. The Legislature then granted the lagoon to the county, requiring a master plan by next year.

ANGELA

He said questions about attitudes concerning Miss Davis revealed that San Francisco had the fewest number of persons who hold unfavorable attitudes. Alameda County was second, he said.

The other counties were equally or more prejudiced than Marin against Miss Davis, Paige said.

The professor said that his poll was conducted by 60 volunteers, most of whom were students.

He said that about 100 telephone interviews were made in each of the six counties. Lists of names were taken at random from voter lists, he said.

Paige conceded that using telephones cut those from the original lists who had unlisted numbers, who had moved or who had no phones.

"More blacks than whites have unlisted phones," the professor said, without explaining the matter.

Judge Richard E. Arnason, Contra Costa County jurist sitting in Marin, was not expected to rule today on where Miss Davis's trial is to be held.

She had been due to go on trial Nov. 1 on charges of murder, kidnapping and conspiracy stemming from the August 1970 shoot-out at the Civic Center. Today, however, Judge Arnason set that date for final hearing on a motion to suppress certain evidence in the case.

PLANS

last night reopened a public hearing on the plan and listened for 90 minutes to a repeat of the Oct. 4 arguments for and against the development and required extension of the road.

Residents of Butternut Drive charged the extension, which will run on a hill above their homes, will present safety and pollution hazards; that the developers had not been made to present any alternatives to the extension, and that the extension was "unfair" because Butternut property owners did not know of long-range plans for the extension when they bought their homes in 1966.

At one point during the hearing, a male member of the audience heckled Carlos E. Gonzales, engineer for the development, with racial slurs.

With councilman John A. Miskimen holding out for a 30-foot two-lane right-of-way, the rest of the council finally passed to print a zoning amendment approving plans for the development, including the 48-foot right-of-way, and rezoning its 27 acres from unclassified to planned unit development-single family residential district.

Storer Will Run Again For Congress

Thomas T. Storer, former Marin County supervisor who ran against Rep. Don H. Clausen in 1966, announced today he will try again for Congress — this time for the seat held by Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District.

Mailliard's district covers south and West Marin and a portion of San Francisco.

At a press conference on the San Francisco Marina Green, Storer promised a novel campaign which will feature no fund-raising and no billboards or bumper stickers. He will seek the Democratic nomination next June.

"I will have no public relations people or fund-raisers and will not accept a single cent from anyone," said Storer. "I am counting on neighborhood support and volunteers."

Reforms of the electoral process will be the main thrust of his campaign platform. He listed these specific campaign targets:

All private funds should be banned from campaigns. Free television time should be given all candidates with cost borne by tax dollars.

Terms of city councils and county supervisors should be limited to three four-year terms, and preferably two four-year terms.

California should be divided into two states, north and south.

The Golden Gate Bridge board should be abolished and its duties taken over by a regional transit authority in charge of all toll bridges in the Bay Area.

Paid lobbyists should be outlawed at all levels, state and federal.

All candidates, including incumbents, should be required to participate in television debates.

Storer announced he would fight for exclusive bicycle paths to the Point Reyes Seashore from the Golden Gate Bridge, from Central Marin, and from North Marin.

Mass transit to the seashore should be by the old-fashioned train, and no more freeways should be built in either Marin or San Francisco, said Storer.

Brinkley Sees No Intimidation

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Newscaster David Brinkley, disagreeing with his competitor from another network —Walter Cronkite —told a congressional hearing today that criticism from Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and others has not intimidated television journalism.

Cronkite, anchorman for The CBS Evening News told the forum on Sept. 30 that TV news' freedom to report is "curtailed or endangered by intimidation and harassment." He advocated elimination of government licensing of broadcasters to remove the possibility that a government official's criticism could be taken as a threat to silence a station. But Brinkley, an NBC commentator, in testimony prepared for today's hearing of the senate subcommittee on constitutional rights, took an opposite viewpoint.

"As for intimidation by our critics, there is none that I know of," Brinkley said. "Anyone who can't stand criticism should not go into journalism ..."

"Intimidation" is defined as the act of making someone timid or fearful.

Brinkley said television news is the target of "a fairly widespread public anger" which is "now reflected in the public statements of political figures who have detected this anger and hostility and have made a public issue of it."

The reasons, he said are that TV news is more personal than newspaper news; TV news is preceded and followed by light entertainment; and TV news is seen by a large audience which never read serious news in newspapers "and who don't really understand what its purpose is."

He said this is reflected in letters he receives asking why he glorifies or dignifies an ugly or depressing public event — letters now invariably ending with: "Agnew was right."

"The answer, of course, is so obvious it's almost embarrassing to have to make it," he said. "It is that we put this stuff on because we think the audience would like to know about it, or ought to know about it —certainly not because we like it or approve it or advocate it."

In contrast to Brinkley's confidence that television news would survive its critics, Cronkite contended that television news already has suffered from intimidation.

"Broadcast news today is not free," he said during his appearance. "Because it is operated by an industry that is beholden to the government for its right to exist, its freedom has been curtailed by fiat, by assumption and by intimidation and harassment."

Another of today's witnesses, C.A. McKnight, editor of the Charlotte, N.C. Observer and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, expressed concern over the state of press freedom.

The attitude reflected in recent public opinion polls showing that many people are willing to accept censorship of the press and government control of news media "is made respectable by those in high governmental positions who utilize the very media they criticize to engender suspicion and hostility toward the mass media."

McKnight defended the right of newsmen to keep confident information given them by their sources for background and not for attribution.

San Francisco School Burns

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Fire raged through an abandoned elementary school in the Bayview District for an hour and a half Monday before some 165 firemen could control the flames.

The three-alarm blaze began at the old Bayview Elementary School shortly before 7 p.m., a Fire Department spokesman said.

He said "damage was considerable" but no specific amount had been set.

Area Approved For Landscaping

The Novato Environmental Quality Committee last night approved plans for landscaping the area between Novato Boulevard and the houses along San Carlos Way, according to Rodney B. Brown, administrative assistant.

This narrow area is the street right-of-way and lies west of San Marin Park and east of San Marin Drive. Plans call for a pathway and plantings of trees and shrubs. No cost estimate has been made on the project, he said.

The committee approved installation of benches and a trash receptacle on the Grant Avenue side of the Marion Street School at a cost not to exceed $50, Brown said.

Giant Tax Saving For Ranch Land

Marin County now has 87,000 acres of ranch land under agricultural preserve contract, which will give owners of those ranches a total tax saving of $605,769 this year.

Marin County Assessor Bert W. Broemmel released those figures today, explaining that citizens have been asking for the names of those getting tax reductions from agricultural preserve contracts and the amount of savings. He released a six-page list showing property owners of 444 parcals, and the amount of savings to each owner.

Marin implemented the agricultural preserve contracts in 1966, when 6,600 acres got preferential tax treatment provided by the Williamson Act. The acreage under preserve contract rose to 49,000 in 1967, to 78,000 in 1968, to 87,000 in 1969, and to 92,000 in 1970. This year it dropped to 87,000 acres because some properties were purchased by the federal government for the Point Reyes National Seashore.

The $605,769 saved by those who have agricultural preserve contracts are made up by the rest of the taxpayers. That impact varies considerably with various government jurisdictions, said Broemmel. On county government, the difference in tax base is about one per cent, but in a rural school district like Shoreline Unified School District, the loss in tax base is about 14 per cent.

Gorman Is Sentenced To Life For Slaying

Jack R. Gorman, 43, was sentenced to life imprisonment yesterday, ending five years on San Quentin's Death Row for the 1965 slaying of a San Rafael bartender.

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court formally pronounced the sentence which was returned by a jury after nine hours deliberation Friday and yesterday.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Ernest C. Zunino had sought the death penalty in a 28-day retrial of the penalty phase of Gorman's murder trial.

Gorman and Marc C. Osuna were convicted and sentenced to death in 1966 for the slaying of bartender Mario Ferrari during a 1965 Labor Day holdup of the Mission Inn Tavern, 720 B Street.

The California Supreme Court upheld their convictions but ordered new penalty trials to determine if the two should receive life sentences or the death penalty.

Retrial of the penalty phase of Osuna's case ended last December in a hung jury and he was sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court.

Both Osuna and Gorman were parolees from San Quentin at the time of the robbery. They were convicted of shooting Ferrari when he tried to escape as they held him at gunpoint. Ferrari had told the bandits he was going for the police.

The two were implicated in the robbery-murder nearly a month after the shooting by another former convict who told police he knew of the planned holdup.

Bar owner Leo Albertoni, one of 35 prosecution witnesses in the penalty phase retrial, testified that Ferrari collapsed and died in the street as Osuna and Gorman picked up the tavern's cash and fled.

Zunino had urged the jury of eight men and four women to return a death verdict.

"Jack Gorman has already had two chances on parole and he failed both times," Zunino told the jury. "It's time the jury looked at him and said, 'Jack Gorman, no more.' "

But court-appointed defense attorney Leonard A. Bjorklund Jr. of Sausalito argued that Gorman was "institutionable."

He said that Gorman first went to prison when he was 18 years old, and that in 25 years he was involved in only one violent incident, the stabbing of another prisoner who had attempted to assault Gorman sexually.

Planner Meeting

GOP COUNTERS DEMOCRATIC REMAP PLAN

Senate Republicans, aiming for votes by dissident Democrats and armed with the threat of a veto by the governor, have come up with this reapportionment plan dislocating fewer existing Senate districts than the Democratic plan. The GOP plan would leave all of Marin intact in a district (left of the dotted line) expanded into the western portions of both San Francisco and Sonoma counties, thus saving the seat of Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael. But Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, who would get much of Marin under the Democratic dismembering of Marin, would be sacrificed under the GOP plan. It transplants his district south to take in Death Valley. The Senate is locked in intensive bargaining over reapportionment, which will set the political complexion of the Legislature for the next decade.

One Girl Assaulted; One Beaten

An 18-year-old Dominican College student was raped and her student companion beaten Friday by four men who offered to give them a ride to the school's San Rafael campus, Marin County sheriff's office reported today.

Deputies said the girls told them they were walking near Grand and Mission avenues in San Rafael when the men pulled up and offered to drive them to the campus.

The girls at first declined, but then accepted the ride, they said. They were driven past the campus and up to the Nike site flats off of North San Pedro Road in Santa Venetia, where both girls were beaten and one raped several times, they told deputies.

The men forced them back into the car and dropped them off at Dominican, they said.

Both girls were treated at Marin General Hospital for scratches, scrapes and bruises, deputies said.

Revitalization Of Petaluma Launched

A plan to revitalize downtown Petaluma starting with the removal of nearly all parking meters was approved yesterday by the chamber of commerce directors.

Chamber Mgr. Burdette A. Shannon said no objections were raised to the multiphased plan that would begin by seeking more parking lots for core area stores and removing most meters.

Shannon said petitions are being circulated to form a parking assessment district among merchants and that the required two-thirds of the businesses should be signed up within two weeks. The plan calls for the city to advance funds — perhaps $500,000 — to construct new parking lots and remove meters. The funds would be repaid from the assessment district revenue.

As phase two of the revitalization plan, the chamber urged that abandoned and deteriorating buildings in the downtown area be condemned and demolished to make way either for more parking lots or for new commercial buildings. The plan also recommends that more apartment development be permitted near the downtown area so retired persons can walk to shopping facilities with ease.

The final portion of the plan recommends improvements to the Petaluma River waterfront for recreation and commercial development.

Shannon said the plan and parking district program will be officially presented to the Petaluma City Council when petitions are completed and support assured.

Bills Killed On Insurance Taxes

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee has rejected two bills that would have boosted the state tax bills of insurance companies by at least $11 million.

The measures, which were killed Monday, would have removed from the law the provision which allows insurance companies to deduct all local property tax payments on home offices from their state tax bill.

On a voice vote, the committee defeated a bill by Sen. David A. Roberti, D-Los Angeles, which would have ended the exemption immediately.

Then the committee turned down a similar bill by Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, D-Beverly Hills, which would have phased out the exemption over a five year period.

Blueprint For Family Planning

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The administration has sent Congress an ambitious five-year family planning blueprint for the United States, the first such official population policy ever developed by an industrial nation.

The plan predicts a doubling of national family planning costs by 1975, says subsidized services and birth control devices will be needed for 6.6 million low-income women by 1975, and urges studies on the extent of sexual activity among unmarried persons.

The plan was sent to Congress after Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., accused the administration of disobeying the Family Planning Services and Population Rsearch Act of 1970, which called for submission of the five-year program by June 24.

SAUSALITO FERRY WINTER SCHEDULE

The Golden Gate Bridge District's ferry switched to its winter timetable yesterday, eliminating the first early morning and last late evening summer runs. Numerous changes, some up to 10 minutes, were made in weekday schedules, and weekend and holiday schedules were altered radically. The 6:08 a.m. weekday bus departure from downtown Sausalito to San Francisco's financial district will continue until December, when the bridge district begins its full bus system. Feeder bus schedules, to be available later this week, were changed to meet the new ferry timetable. Bus service, formerly ending at the district's North Sausalito parking lot on weekends, has been extended to the full routes weekends as well now.

Vocation Education Enrollment On Rise

The Marin County Board of Education was told last night that its vocational education program is growing in popularity.

According to Roger Falge, administrative assistant, enrollment in the program has increased this year to 342 students. Last year, 220 students were enrolled.

The program, titled the Marin Career Education program, offers seven courses ranging from welding to food service.

Falge said the program also has a waiting list of 91 persons wanting to enroll in the classes offered at various high schools and at the Manzanita Center in Marin City.

The most popular course, he said, is office occupations, which trains persons in office skills ranging from filing to operation of office machines.

Some 121 persons are now enrolled in office occupations with another 29 waiting, he said.

Falge said the advisory council and executive board, which oversee the program, are working on recommendations for expanding the program.

The Marin County Board of Education Also:

PERSONNEL — Approved the hiring of John Loya, 25, as an instructor at San Quentin Prison for $23.70 per day. Also Patricia Bryant of Novato as a bus driver at $2.87 per hour and Marcia Price of Mill Valley as an instructional aide at $2.73 per hour.

LETTER — Received a letter from Barbara Boxer, member of the schools office personnel commission, expressing "dismay" that the board had refused to accept federal money for two new positions under the Emergency Employment Act of 1971.

BYLAWS — Approved minor revisions to the board's policy handbook dealing with board meeting bylaws.

Greyhound Asks End To Marin Lines

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Greyhound Bus Lines asked the State Public Utilities Commission today for permission to discontinue all its commuter and local service in Marin County and to reduce service in neighboring Sonoma County.

The bus line said it wants to drop the routes on Dec. 1, when the Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transportation District will start its own bus service in the two-county area.

In its petition, Greyhound said an attempt to compete with the district "would be financially disastrous," and that the district's service in the so-called "Golden Gate corridor" would effectively replace Greyhound's there.

The petition sought the discontinuance of all Greyhound Marin County routes and of its Santa Rosa-to-Schellville and Schellville Junction-to-Sears Point routes in Sonoma County.

The line also asked permission to convert most of its other Sonoma County routes from regular or alternate service to "special operation service only."

Greyhound also asked the PUC to delete all intermediate stops on its routes between San Francisco and Santa Rosa.

Singer Bennett Gets A Divorce

HACKENSACK, N.J. (UPI)—Tony Bennett, 45, was divorced Monday on grounds of desertion.

Superior Court Judge August Heckman, after listening to several witnesses, including Bennett's 17-year-old son, awarded the divorce to Mrs. Patricia Bennett, 39.

The judge approved a settlement of approximately $90,000 a year and gave Mrs. Bennett title to the $150,000 home in Englewood, N.J.

D'Andrea Bennett, elder of the couple's two sons, testified Monday his father had walked out of the house in 1964 and never returned.

Commission On Planning Slated Again

The Rohnert Park City Council last night voted to reestablish a planning commission effective Jan. 1.

The council said the five-person commission would begin meeting twice-monthly in January and that persons interested in serving with the group should contact council members.

City Clerk Kathryn Logue said the council felt the planning commission should be reestablished since the number of planning matters on council agendas has increased greatly since the commission was dissolved three years ago. Homeowner groups had urged the commission be resumed as a better method of checks and balances as the city grows.

The council told City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan to arrange for professional planning assistance for the commission and for clerical help.

The Rohnert Park City Council also:

LOTS — Agreed to ammend its zoning ordinance to permit Arthur Condiotti to plan lot widths of 60 feet in his planned 269-lot subdivision on East Cotati Avenue. The Ordinance now requires frontages of 65 feet.

ZONING — Approved zoning for the northeast corner of Commerce Boulevard and Rohnert Park Expressway to permit construction of a bank and indicated the remaining 16 acres of the parcel would also be zoned commercial when a shopping center is ready to be developed.

CHAMBER — Agreed to contribute $5,000 to the Rohnert Park Chamber of Commerce, thus providing one-third the funds needed to hire a manager and part-time clerical help.

PIGEONS — Gave William Hatcher, 7684 Beverly Drive, 45 days in which to improve his pigeon coop to meet city standards.

MEETING — Adjourned to Thursday at 7 p.m. to review plans for a new city office building.

Surgery Repairs Gunshot Wound

A 23-year-old Marin City man was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital after surgery for a gunshot wound in the chest.

Marin sheriff's deputies said James Cook, of 155 Drake Aveune, apparently shot himself with a 38-caliber revolver at about 7:30 a.m. yesterday at his home.

'Knives,' Bombs At Quentin

Acting Warden James W. L. Park declined to attach any particular significance to the discovery, despite the Aug. 21 violence which left three guards and three inmates dead.

"I think this is pretty routine," he said.

Found Sunday in B section, a segregation unit similar in purpose to the prison's adjustment center, were a pipe bomb made with match heads and what Park described as two "sticking-type" weapons fashioned from metal.

(It was in the adjustment center that the Aug. 21 violence erupted, triggered when Soledad Brother George Jackson smuggled a weapon into the unit in a wig.)

A metal tube, possibly intended for use as a zip gun, also was found Sunday, imbedded in a bar of soap, Park said.

"We find potential zip gun barrels from time to time," he added. "But we find very few completed zip guns."

Circumstances of the discovery were not disclosed.

Park said weapons have been found in B section before, but added such discoveries occurred with less frequency than in other parts of the prison.

Asked whether prison officials had received any reports of impending violence, Park said: "We are always getting rumors for whatever they're worth. But we can't ignore them ... for the most part, they check out to be nothing."

An investigation was under way to determine how the weapons got into B section.

Waterways Safety Bill To Senate

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — A bill to impose airport-type traffic controls on congested ports and waterways won unanimous approval yesterday by the House of Representatives in a 335-0 vote.

The vote sent the bill, which took nine months to clear the House, to the Senate, where it faces a new round of hearings.

Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, is one of three cosponsors of the bill, which is similar to one he introduced after last January's oil spill when two tankers collided under the Golden Gate Bridge. He said the bill should prevent the recurrence of such disasters.

The bill, labeled the Ports and Waterways Saiety Act of 1971, would authorize the Coast Guard to require vessels to install and monitor common radio channels, to have pilots, and to use designated lanes.

The bill provides for a criminal penalty of not more than a $10,000 fine or 10 years in prison for willful violation of regulations written under the act.

Girl, 9, Injured In Car Wreck

A 9-year-old Homestead Valley girl has been treated at Marin General Hospital for cuts and bruises suffered in a two-car accident southbound on Highway 101 in Ignacio, according to the California Highway Patrol.

The patrol said Jennifer Fulle, of 107 Loring Avenue, was injured at 6:30 p.m. Saturday when the car in which she was riding, driven by Constance C. Alexander, 39, of 75 Morningsun Avenue, Almonte, collided with another auto, operated by Geoffrey R. Parkerson, 19, of 175 Corte Alta, Novato.

A passenger in Parkerson's car, William Harter, of 1055 Via Escondida, Novato, was to see his own doctor for pain in both knees, officers said.

Bill Signed On Caseload Work

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke Monday signed a bill requiring county boards of supervisors to submit estimates on welfare expenditures and caseloads to the legislature.

The bill by Assemblyman Gordon Duffy, R-Hanford, provides that the estiimates be submitted annually by May 15 to the Senate Finance Legislative Budget Committee.

Reinecke said he felt such information will be of "considerable value" in fiscal planning.

PRINCIPALS — Heard Principal William M. Cooper report that principals of all schools sending pupils on to Redwood High School have begun meeting monthly to coordinate programs with the high school.

LBJ Tells Of Peace Feelers To Ho

NEW YORK (UPI)—Former President Lyndon B. Johnson says in his book on the presidency that twice in 1964 he sent peace feelers to Ho Chi Minh but both times they were catagorically rejected, The New York Times said Monday.

Johnson said the feelers were sent through Blair Seaborn, a Canadian member of the International Control Commission for Vietnam, on June 17, 1364, and again later in August.

The incident was described in the second excerpt from Johnson's book, "The Vantage Point: Perspectives of the Presidency, 1963-1969," being printed by the Times. Monday's excerpt dealt with Vietnam during Johnson's period as vice president and the first months of his presidency.

The U.S. proposal stressed that the United States had no intention of trying to overthrow Ho, had no wish to retain military bases in South Vietnam, and had asked North Vietnam to abide by the Geneva agreement and keep its men and military supplies in its own area.

If the proposal was accepted, Johnson said, the United States was ready to economically assist all countries in the area and North Vietnam could benefit from that improvement. In return, Seaborn, a dispassionate intermediary, heard nothing but propaganda, Johnson said.

"Obviously, the Communist leaders believed they were winning in the South," Johnson said. "With things presumably going their way, they had no interest in a peaceful settlement....They slammed the door shut on our peace offer. In August when Seaborn tried again to discuss the idea of a peaceful settlement with them, they slammed the door even harder."

Much of the turmoil in South Vietnam during the early months of his presidency, Johnson said, was caused by the overthrow of Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem and the resulting chaos. Johnson blames this partially on a message sent to Saigon by the State Department.

Johnson said the message, sent Aug. 24, 1963, told U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge to inform Diem that internal reforms must be taken in South Vietnam. If Diem refused, Lodge was instructed to tell Saigon military leaders the United States no longer would support Diem, and if the military leaders took over the United States would support them, Johnson said.

"Once the ambassador acted on his instructions, preparations for a coup were stimulated," Johnson said. "In my judgment, this decision was a serious blunder which launched a period of deep political confusion in Saigon that lasted almost two years."

Convict Authors Don't Have To Pay 'Royalties'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Convict authors can no longer be forced to pay 25 per cent of their royalties and profits into an inmate welfare fund, the State Supreme Court ruled Monday.

By 6-1, the high court struck down a Department of Corrections rule under which the money had been collected.

"Although the justification stated for the rule is that the 25 per cent handling fee is necessary to defray handling costs,' the rule itself reveals that it is not actually used for this purpose," the court declared.

The decision indicated authorities may be allowed to charge prison authors if the fee has some connection with the costs of processing a manuscript, including a review of contents.

Deductions for prison-made handicraft and art works are legal because the welfare fund provides benefits, including shops, loans, fairs and exhibits, the court declared.

But "inmate writers receive none of these benefits" one must "bear both the burden of the cost of producing their manuscripts and finding their own publishers," the court held.

X-Rated Movies Booted By Paper

BOSTON (UPI)—The Boston Herald Traveler announced today it will no longer publish ads for X-rated motion pictures nor will it list the film in its daily theater timetable.

"It is our judgment that the vast majority of films rated 'X' by the Motion Picture Association of America are purely voyeuristic, sex-ploitation movies which pander to every conceivable pervision," the paper said in its lead editorial explaining the move.

Council Acts On Cove — Just In Case

An ordinance paving the way for condemnation of land on Strawberry Cove for a park was approved last night by the Tiburon City Council in order to be ready in case voters approve annexation today.

Asst. City Mgr. Robert L.Kleinert said the four councilmen present at last night's adjourned meeting — M. Carlisle Becker was absent — unanimously adopted the ordinance.

Kleinert said the council declared the condemnation suit will be filed in Marin County Superior Court tomorrow if Strawberry voters approve annexation today. The suit seeks to condemn 6.7 acres of land owned by Leonard B. Fleischman of Belvedere and slated for development.

In response to a question by Mayor Denis T. Rice, Kleinert said, City Atty. Robert I. Conn said the council could adopt an urgency ordinance immediately covering the property if annexation succeeds.

In other business at the 30-minute meeting, the council adopted a resolution "strongly opposing all gerrymandering" of state Senate districts in Marin County and on the Tiburon Peninsula.

Kleinert said the resolution will be sent to the Senate elections and reapportionment committee which is studying reapportionment proposals.

Democrats on that committee are seeking support for a proposal that would cut the Tiburon Peninsula from the rest of Marin and put it with a district stretching 200 miles north to Shasta County. The rest of Marin would be included with a district covering portions of San Francisco and San Mateo counties.

The council also endorsed Measure A on the Nov. 2 ballot, a $16.8 million College of Marin bond issue, and a Veterans' Day banquet to be put on by Tiburon businessmen for wounded veterans.

Airport Conveyer Moves Up And Down

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The first airport passenger conveyor system to move people both horizontally and between floors on the same moving belt went into operation Monday at Cleveland Hopkins Airport.

The moving walks, enclosed for all-weather protection, move passengers to a new multi-deck parking facility.

College Sports Fee Bill Finally Is Dead

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The chief Assembly cosponsor of a Senate bill to allow imposition of a $15 student fee for financing sports events and other activities at Sonoma State College abandoned the proposal Monday.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, permitted the bill to slide into the Assembly's inactive file with the explanation that "I'm dropping the measure."

The bill by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, was defeated by the Assembly Sept. 9 after a bitter floor fight. Bagley kept it technically alive by serving notice he wanted it reconsidered. He withdrew the request Monday.

The inactive file is the Assembly's repository for unwanted bills.

The student body of Sonoma State some time ago voted the student government out of existence, a move which signalled a halt to such student-sponsored activities as intercollegiate football. Under the Collier Bill, the state college trustees would impose a $15 fee for extracurricular activities if a majority of the students approved the action at an election.

Students and college administrators said today they had expected the bill's defeat.

Rand Link, student activities director, said the fees program would not damage his programs since they have been operating for more than a year without student fees.

"Our program is still operating and quite well based on the initiative of students to find their own events and a method of funding them," he said.

Cultural and entertainment programs have largely been provided by free services of speakers and entertainers and by small admission fees.

Athletic department spokesmen, however, said the department will have to continue to seek financial support from the outside community with the loss of student activities fees.

Bill Advances On Costlier Auto Plates

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A bill to give cities and counties additional operating funds by raising the cost of automotive license plates in 1973 has been approved by an Assembly committee.

The measure by Sen. Walter W. Stiern, D-Bakersfield, would boost the cost of license plates from two per cent of the vehicle's value to at least 2.65 per cent.

SEAL FOR NEW AGENCY

President Nixon has issued an executive order approving this seal for the Environmental Protection Agency. A flower with a bloom is symbolic for all the elements of the environment. The bloom is a sphere, the component parts of which represent the blue sky, green earth and blue-green water. A white circle within the sphere denotes either the sun or the moon. All are symbolic of a clean environment and are superimposed on a disc with a white background.

Quentin Escapee Is Held; Murder Probe

I-J Special Report

TRUCKEE — A San Quentin Prison escapee was booked yesterday for investigation of murder in the tavern death of an El Dorado County man earlier in the day.

Michael Keelor, 28, who walked away from a San Quentin work furlough program Sept. 26, was transferred to the Nevada County Jail in Nevada City after turning himself in to sheriff's deputies at Truckee.

The victim was Albert Sanders, 47, of Pollock Pines. Deputies said Keelor shoved Sanders during an altercation, and Sanders struck his head when he fell.

Authorities were uncertain, however, whether Sanders died from the fall or a heart attack. An autopsy was planned.

San Quentin officials said Keelor was serving a six month-to-five-year sentence for escape without force when he walked away from a work furlough job as a security guard at Playland in San Francisco. He originally was imprisoned for auto theft and second degree burglary.

S. Marin EOC Seeks Furniture

The Southern Marin Target Area Office of the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council is seeking furniture donations of all kinds, household articles and usable bicycles, according to area director Collie Gaines.

Mrs. Gaines said the goods will be sold at the People's Community Flea Market, held each Saturday and Sunday in Marin City, with proceeds going to the area office's current fund-raising drive.

Persons with items to donate may contact the target area office in Marin City. The office will arrange for pickup of donated goods.

Peacock Owners To Elect Nov. 3

Anti-Litter Law Tossed Out By State Court

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The city of Thousand Oaks' anti-litter ordinance is invalid because it interfers with constitutional guarantees of free speech and free press, the State Supreme Court ruled Monday.

The ordinance had prohibited delivery of pamphlets or other materials to homes without prior permission from occupants.

To be constitutional, the ordinance would have to be aimed "specifically at those who litter rather than broadly curtailing person-to-person, house-to-house distribution of written materials," the decision declared.

As a practical matter, justices said, prior approval would make political canvassing "prohibitively time-consuming."

Driver Hurt As Car Strikes Divider

Leonora G. Freitas, 60, of 20 Jefferson Avenue, San Rafael, was injured at 2:35 p.m. yesterday when her southbound car struck the center divider on Highway 101 in Corte Madera, according to the California Highway Patrol.

She was reported in good condition today at Marin General Hospital with a cut lip and scrapes.

THE SPOUSE GAP

Middle Years — Strains On Ego

(Condensed from the book, "The Spouse Gap")
By ROBERT LEE and MARJORIE CASEBIER

While the wife is trying to cope with being a middle-aged, unemployed mother, the husband is usually engaged in the battle of being meaningfully and gainfully employed. Becoming middlescent is inevitable, but for some it means coping with an occupational crisis.

Men who achieve high-echelon, executive rank usually gain that achievement at a time coinciding with the onslaught of middle age. Within a relatively short time after arriving at the position for which he fought so hard, therefore, the man must begin preparing some younger rival to take over. The very name of this game is "prepare your successor." Such a shift in focus from a competitive thrust to a selfless regard for the business brings built-in strains on the ego. A vague feeling dawns on one that not only machines but people — especially middle-aged people — become obsolescent.

The depressive effect of the middlescent malaise may reflect a growing sense of disillusionment concerning work itself.

Meanwhile, wives of busy executives, faced with absentee husbands, frequently feel abandoned and resent the amount of time their husbands spend on the road and the amount their husbands usually drink; and they are fearful because of the growing number of heart attacks among the ranks of middle-aged managers and executives. Such resentment and fear cannot help but take their toll in marital discord at home. Often the wife of the hard-driving executive who is totally committed to the goals of the corporation is left wondering just how low she rates in the order of priorities that claim her husband's affections.

Another form of the middlescent work crisis appears when the breadwinner finds himself out of a job. Unemployment, recession, and inflation take their toll. There is, in particular, a rising tide of unemployed managers, executives, and financial consultants who once lived high on the hog. For instance, merged corporations leave a number of executives jobless — the "merger-expandable men."

Often the white-collar worker who is unemployed is embarrassed to apply for unemployment benefits, finally going in for assistance after several months as a last resort. Many executives find it hard even to face the fact they have been fired. One man faked his job status for a whole summer, calling the company chauffeur to take him places and charging his telephone bills to his company credit card. One study told of the vice president of a bank who lost his job but did not tell his family. He left every day at the same time, but instead of job hunting he spent his day in movie theaters and in window shopping. When a bill collector finally caught up with him a few months later and repossessed the new car he had bought his son, the man told his family he had resigned from the bank.

Nearly all studies of jobless men agree that the most important thing in his life at that crisis period is an understanding, helpful wife; for here is where "for better or for worse" gets tested. The spouse may react in any number of ways, of course. She may, with him, miss the fringe benefits, finding it hard to adjust downwards in her style of living. She may be relieved, and rather enjoy the return to a simpler life and the freedom from corporate pressures. Or she may simply worry about how to explain the situation to the bridge club. In any case, there will be a noticeable drop in socializing for the unemployed executive. For many wives, the hard thing is having to uproot the family from friends and familiar surroundings.

For some couples the job loss becomes the last straw, particularly if the marriage relationship is fragile anyway, or if they are unequipped to deal with the crisis, or if one or the other spouse is unable to hang in and make things work in the light of the various difficulties.

The storm of middlescence has hit with a frenzy and the marriage is fraught with crises that are blowing the spouses farther and farther apart.

Two primary manifestations of responses to the growing gap can be seen in the retreat into excessive drinking and in the advance of extramarital affairs. The prevalence of these two activities was noted by a Michigan judge reporting on his experience with divorce cases. The reasons people began divorce proceedings after being married 25 to 30 years, the judge concluded, could be summarized as either a new love interest or an old drinking problem.

Act Two has taken us through the complications of the middlescent malaise, the suspension of the sexual readjustment at mid-life, and into the crisis of the escalating spouse gap. The children are grown and on their own, the job offers little sense of personal fulfillment, and the atmosphere is charged with the temptation to seek comfort in illicit sex. The curtain thus falls on the marriage drama with the crisis in full sway. We are ready to explore the climax in Act Three.

Behind The Scenes At An Elegant Feast

By JOAN LISETOR

"Everyone should spend a day in jail and a night as a waitress," said Mrs. John Collette, wearily slipping into a kitchen chair.

Kay Collette, a vice president of the Marin Symphony Association, performed the duties of a waitress, along with an elite group of volunteers, at a dinner party last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Owen in Kentfield.

Guests were not told that the party was the result of the Owens being the high bidders for a "gourmet dinner for 20 prepared by Mrs. Alan Jarach and served in your home" at last year's Whole Works Auction, sponsored by the symphony association, and they were not aware that they were being served by amateurs.

FOR $160 Mel and Davette Owen got the services of "head bartender" Francis X. Kelly, an accountant and member of the San Rafael Board of Education; his "assistant" Dr. Alan Jarach, a physician; and waitresses, friends of Audrey Jarach's and members of the association, Mrs. Kelly, Mrs. Raymond Taylor, Mrs. Al Newman, Mrs. Len Chapman and Mrs. Harold Becker, whose husband is a symphony violinist and member of the board of directors, and "head dishwasher" Mrs. Barry Boland, orchestra manager.

After finishing their kitchen duties Patti Newman, Betsy Chapman and Audrey Jarach, chairman of the auction last year' and "chief cook and bottle washer" of last night's bash, provided entertainment for the guests.

As chaos reigned in the kitchen the 40 guests dined on elegant French cuisine, creme de Courgettes, quiche Lorraine, couronne d'agneauaux flageolote, riz percille, tomatoes provencales, salade verte, fromages varies, bombe and cafe.

Forty guests at a dinner for 20? Well, chef Audrey, who lived in France for three years, explained, "Mrs. Owen and I set the date and a few days later she called and asked if 22 would be all right, and I said, 'okay.' She called a few days later and said, 'It's looking more like 30.' Again I said 'okay' thinking, 'never again.' A few more days passed and she called and said, 'I hate to tell you but it looks like 40.' Then I said, 'Stop sending invitations.' "

Pandemonium reigned in the kitchen as pots boiled over and stuck to burners, water spilled and ran in little rivers along the kitchen floor. But the first crisis of major proportion occured when the soup ran out.

"We're out of soup," cried a waitress.

"WE CAN'T be. My book said two gallons serves 40 people," said Audrey, adding a mumbled "never again."

"Open up a can of split pea soup," suggested another member of the kitchen crew.

"Never again," mumbled Audrey, who had spent three days preparing the elegant feast.

Contrasting the mad dashing about in the kitchen was the subdued party, where the dignified guests blissfully dined unaware that the waitresses serving them were nervous wrecks, worrying whether to serve from the right and remove dishes from the left or remove from the right and serve from the left.

"WILL SOMEBODY please tell people not to come flying out of tha kitchen," pleaded a waitress.

"Never again," mumbled Audrey, as about a dozen coffee mugs came tumbling down to the floor.

And then the big moment arrived. Hostess Davette Owen announced to the guests, "This dinner was brought to you by members of the Marin Symphony Association, in case you have been wondering why everyone is having such a great time in the kitchen."

A few guests chuckled, but the announcement seemed to have little impact.

She introduced Audrey, who invited the guests to the second annual auction, to be and to become members of the symphony association.

"WE'RE HAVING a great time in the kitchen," she told the guests. "Never again," she mumbled as she came back to the kitchen.

Paul Haerle, a guest, stuck his head in the kitchen and remarked, "So this is where the action is."

Judge Morton Colvin, a guest entered the wild kitchen and over the clanging sound of pots and pans, said, "I knew you weren't professionals when you started to serve. You know what the tip off was? You didn't put your fingers in the soup."

"Never again," mumbled Audrey in the kitchen, while Davette Owen in the living room was telling her guests, "We'll bid again for a party like this at this year's auction."

Also attending the party were Messrs. and Mmes. Hale Ashcraft, Thomas C. Reed, Frank Woods, Ned Hutchinson, Joe Russ IV, James Brumjeacher, Edwin Thomas, John Grossman, Howard (Hap) Hassard, James Stapler, Rollin Post, Winton Hill, John W. Rakow, Donn Chappellet, Welton Whann and Edwin O. Holter Jr., Judge and Mrs. Samuel Conti, Sen. and Mrs. Peter Behr, Dr. and Mrs. Julian Youlmans and Mrs. Colvin.

RETURN OF THE REAL SKIER LOOK

Ski clothes are following the fashion trend toward the classic look with styles in sleek, clingy stretch fabrics. The trio of skiers (left) wears parkas with bold red, white and blue stripes on a new, silkier cire nylon fabric. The industrial zippers zip up to the neck or down for great big lapels. The hip-length parka (right) runs the entire spectrum of blues in wide horizonal stripes. All by Bogner, the parkas have the slenderizing cut which gives a long, lean line over stretch pants and offer comfort and maneuverability.

So You Think You Were Adopted — Take Interest In Legal Documents

DEAR SUE AND HELEN:

The other day my brother and I were into a big fight and he said the reason I acted that way (it wasn't half as bad as HE acted) was because I was adopted and my real mother was retarded.

Later on he told me he was only kidding, and not to mention it to our folks or they'd get him.

I can't stop thinking about this, Helen and Sue. Every time I do something dumb and my folks look at me funny, I wonder if they're regretting me. That is, if they really did adopt me. The more I worry, the surer I am.

How can I find out without getting my brother in trouble? I really like him, most of the time. And besides, he'd stop letting me wear his T-shirts if I told on him. — MARCIE

SUE'S VIEWS
Dear Marcie:

Welcome to the club! At one point or another in our kidhood, almost all of us suspect we're adopted — usually because an older brother or sister or cousin or some other stinky person says so. It's a neat way to hurt without drawing blood (and getting clobbered by your parents), and I might even use it myself except I don't have a younger brother or sister.

My sister Kathy once told me I was left on the doorstep and my parents took me in because I was a cute baby (but then I grew up).

I was scared to come right out and ask Mom for two reasons: Kathy would sit on me and, more important, I might find it was true. So instead I "just happened" to get curious about marriage licenses and birth certificates (while looking through an old family picture album) and asked if I could see all of ours.

Try this, Marcie, and I think you'll discover you're a "natural," just as I did. Most parents don't make a secret of adoption. — SUE

HELEN'S ANSWER
DEAR MARCIE:

. . . And five years later, at "remember when" time around the dinner table, the family will finally learn why you took a sudden interest in legal documents. By then it will be funny, even to you.

P.S. On the outside chance that your brother wasn't kidding, a discussion of birth certificates will probably lead into the story of your life — something your parents may have been waiting for the right moment to tell you. If this is the case, don't let that word "adopted" throw you. After all, you are especially chosen, therefore loved in a very special way! — HELEN

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I've been dating a girl from a different town and her parents don't know my background. They liked me fine until Karen's grandmother told them that a policeman friend told her that I had a record and was always in trouble. This isn't true, but it turned her folks against me, and now Karen isn't allowed to go out with me.

I found out it's another guy in my town with almost my same name who people are getting me mixed up with. We're even the same age, 16.

How can I convince Karen's folks? I tried talking to them but still she can't see me. — INNOCENT

DEAR INNOCENT:

Why not get a signed statement from your friendly neighborhood cop, stating that you wear the white hat? You might need it for other occasions too. — SUE

DEAR INNOCENT:

Or prove you're the good guy by inviting Karen's folks over for a Sunday afternoon visit with your family. Good luck! — HELEN

It's Halloween, Not Ho-Hum, So Make It Safe

(I-J Special Report)

LOS ANGELES — Parents who take a ho-hum attitude toward basic halloween safety precautions are courting disaster, according to Dr. Albert H. Domm of Los Angeles, medical director for the western home office of the Prudential Insurance Company.

"Every year, at least a few children fall victim to malicious tricks and bizarre handouts," Domm said. "Don't let it happen to your child this year."

Domm says most Halloween perils can be avoided if parents of small children will heed the following warnings:

Beware of masks that hinder free breathing or impair vision.

Check carefully all handouts children receive.

This year a whole house will be haunted, the committee announced, with living room, parlor, kitchen and other rooms decorated for spine-tingling effect. Witches, ghosts and goblins will greet the children.

Last year 25,000 persons ventured through the Haunted House.

The house will be open from 3 to 9 p.m. weekdays, noon to 9 p.m. Saturdays and 1 to 7 p.m. Sundays through Oct. 31.

A food booth will be run by the Peter Pan Chapter of the Children's Home Society.

All proceeds will go to the statewide private adoption agency.

A preview party for the Haunted House will be held Friday night for the merchants, businessmen and others who assisted with the haunting this year.

Judges for the rooms of the house will be San Rafael Mayor Paul Bettini, Novato Mayor Joseph Gargiulo, Mrs. Peter Arrigoni, and Ron Magers and Barry Tompkins, Marin residents who are with KPIX television.

INSIDE YOUR HOME

If You're A Busy Housekeeper, Here Are Some Helping Hints

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY

Some of the most interesting houses in America are managed by women who operate on a full-speed-ahead time schedule. And their business contributes to the reasons why their houses and civic lives are interesting.

When they conduct life on a high level of activity, there's little time and energy wasted in performing mundane chores. They are masters at paring jobs down to bare essentials. And they know how to select furnishings that help them run an easy-care household.

1. Don't stack dishes in cabinets after each washing. Simply reset them into place settings for the next meal. If you serve dinner in a dining area, breakfast and lunch in the kitchen or family room, this is a good trick. Dinner dishes just stay in place from one evening to the next. Glassware can be turned upside-down if you worry about dust.

2. Find a handsome tray or box with a lid to keep on each table. Place sugar, salt, pepper, vitamins and other garnishes on the tray. If the individual containers are handsome, all the better. They could all be blue and white china, wooden forms or sterling silver, things you won't mind glancing at during the day. A small flower arrangement, popped into a cream pitcher or something similar, will add color.

3. Keep consumables stored near the area in which you use them. Rolls of toilet tissue and facial tissue should be right in the bedroom-bath wing. Paper towels right under the counter. Maybe you should switch cabinet storage thinking so that some pots and pans are at arm level instead of floor level. (We do a lot of scrabbling for pots in lower cabinets!) Little-used china would be better placed in an obscure low-level cabinet.

4. Plan a major storage cabinet for the living room and dining room. If these are not already built in, buy one of the engineered cabinets to hold flat linens, placemats and sterling holloware in the dining room; record storage, tapes, chess sets, checkerboards, cards, cocktail napkins and coasters in the living room.

5. Get the laundry equipment into the area of the house where most linen is soiled — the bedroom-bath wing.

6. Keep a smaller separate vacuum cleaner and broom in the bedroom wing. Place all the cleaning necessities for bed and bath right in a closet in that area. How about a big wastebasket in a hall, so the littler ones can be emptied into it?

7. If you haven't one now, how about an extension phone? I'd pick the most distant location from the present phone, except a nursery. I'm not plugging for the telephone company, just trying to save energy for other more important things.

The list could go on. The idea is to think about what you've been doing over and over again and try to decide how you can stop.

Wallcoverings Simple To Clean

Today's wallcoverings are easy to put up, simple to clean and a breeze to take down, according to About the House, a home furnishings publication.

No longer called wallpaper because it is made of vinyls, wallcoverings peel off easily when you move or when you get tired of the pattern. Even lush looking flock patterns can be washed with soap and water.

Many patterns are pre-pasted, requiring only dipping into waterboxes that come with the rolls, lifting out and smoothing on the wall.

WINNING BRIDGE

Mathe Won't Waste Time To Pick The Olympic Team

Los Angeles expert Lew Mathe can be counted on to waste no time during the match this weekend to pick the United States team for the 1972 Bridge Olympics. Mathe starred in the semifinals a few weeks ago when his team beat a group of young New York experts by 11 international match points. The hand shown today, which took Mathe only two minutes to play, might well have taken some of the other players three times as long.

RELUCTANT

West opened the nine of diamonds since he was understandably reluctant to lead away from any of his kings. Mathe put up dummy's ace of diamonds and dropped the three from his own hand to conceal the whereabouts of the deuce. More of this later.

Mathe then led a trump from dummy to try a finesse with the queen. West won with the king of spades and wondered what to lead next. A switch to clubs would have defeated the contract, but West thought his partner's play of the six of diamonds at the first trick might have been encouraging from K-J-6-2. West therefore led his other diamond, and the danger to the contract passed quietly.

SHOWS HAND

Mathe allowed the diamond to ride around to his hand, drew two rounds of trumps and one more diamond, and then showed his hand. "I'm leading clubs," he announced. "You can take two clubs but then you're end played."

Since the opponents were first-class players they understood his claim without further explanation. After taking two clubs the defenders would have to lead hearts; and then Mathe would surely take a heart trick with the queen or jack. If they led a third club instead of hearts, Mathe could ruff in dummy and discard a heart from his hand. Either way the defenders could take two clubs and only two hearts.

If Mathe had led hearts himself, he would have lost three tricks in the suit. This would have cost him the contract and would have wasted several minutes.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - 10 4
♥ - A 10 9 6
♦ - J 7 6
♣ - A 10 6 2.

ANSWER: Bid 1-NT.

The hand is strong enough for a response, but not strong enough for a response at the level of two. If partner had opened with one club or one diamond you would have bid one heart.

Guest artists for the series will be pianist Robaline Meacham, soprano Margot Power, and Jean Stevens, principal oboist of the Marin Symphony.

Additional information may be secured from Mrs. Philip C. Smith of San Rafael and Mrs. Nancy Ingalls of Ross.

Corte Madera Fire Advisers Approved

The Corte Madera Town Council last night authorized expenditure of up to $4,000 for consultants to the fire department if a special citizens committee agrees.

Approval of the expenditure is an outgrowth of the Oct. 4 meeting when residents jammed town hall demanding greater fire protection in the wake of a disasttrous fire in September.

That fire, sparked by a car battery charger, destroyed two homes and damaged a third on Constitution Drive.

According to Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels, the consultants — a fire chief and a structural engineer — would adivse the town onfire department shortcomings and recommend changes for greater immediate protection at little or no additional cost.

If approved by the citizens committee, which will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at town hall, the consultants would be hired sometime next week.

The Corte Madera Town Council Also:

BOARD MEMBERSHIP — Adopted an ordinance changing the membership on the town's board of adjustments from two planning commissioners and one resident to two residents and one planning commissioner.

LOT SIZE — Continued to its Nov. 1 meeting an ordinance amendment which would exclude underwater property from being considered when figuring building density on shoreline properties.

HANDICAPPED — Approved an ordinance amendment which empowers the planning commission to require special parking and sidewalk facilities for handicapped persons (espicially those in wheelchairs) at new buildings.

DEVELOPMENT CHANGE — Set Nov. 15 for a public hearing on reducing the acreage size for planned unit development (a less restrictive zoning classification) for the present 25 acres to one acre.

REZONING — Set Nov. 15 for a public hearing on a rezoning request from W. F. Riley of Mill Valley for nine parcels of property opposite the Uplands Apartments on Paradise Drive. Riley wants the zoning changed from single-family residential to medium-density multiple dwelling.

SPEED LIMIT — Introduced an ordinance to change the speed limit from 35 miles per hour to 25 on Paradise Drive from Robin Drive to the town limits.

LIBRARY PARKING — Approved a one-hour limit on parking in front of the new library on Meadowsweet Drive. Currently there is no limit.

PREFAB APPEAL — Set Nov. 15 to hear an appeal on the planning commission denial of a three-unit prefabricated building at Paradise and El Camino drives.

RECREATION GOALS — Adopted a statement of goals and policies for the town's recreation program.

EMPLOYMENT — Authorized the staff to contract with the county for an engineering aide under the Emergency Employment Act provided the town is not required to retain the man at its expense after federal money dries up.

CLOSED SESSION — Entered closed session for 15 minutes to discuss possible litigation for acquisition of a quarter-acre at El Camino and Paradise drives. The council emerged to announce the town will not acquire the parcel, owned by Donald Presley of San Rafael, and has abandoned ideas of proceeding with condemnation proceedings.

SEWER DEVICE — Adopted an ordinance requiring new homes in flood-prone areas of town to have anti-backflow devices connected to sewer lines.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to today at 7:30 p.m. for a joint workship session with the planning commission at town hall.

Free Lot Is Planned At Terminal

A free parking lot for bus commuters is being planned by the Golden Gate Bridge District on its ferry terminal property in Larkspur.

Frequent bus service to San Francisco via the district's fleet of 154 coaches would serve the parking lot, which will accommodate "several hundred" commuters' cars, according to plans drafted by Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring.

The bridge district's bus fleet will begin service in December, and the parking lot could be ready for use early next year, he said. The lot would be on the district's 25-acre property on East Sir Francis Drake Boulevard opposite the quarry, using about four acres for parking.

Luehring noted that while the district has an option on the property, its purchase has been delayed in the hope of qualifying its $1,250,000 cost for two-thirds federal funding.

After ferry operations being in 1973 from the Larkspur terminal, he said, commuters could choose with which system to use, perhaps taking the bus one way and the ferry the other. Plans for the lot will go to district directors soon, Luehring said.

White Panthers Win Food 'Service' Right

The White Panther Party was granted a six-month home occupation permit last night by the Corte Madera Town Council, but was warned not to expect a renewal for its controversial "Food Conspiracy."

The council's action, on a 3-to-2 vote with Councilmen Byron D. White and Edward W. Colthurst dissenting, ends a four-month fight by the Panthers for such a permit.

The permit was granted grudgingly even by those who voted for it and sparked assurances from nearly every councilman that the town's municipal code is in for a "housecleaning."

"I think (granting) it violates the spirit of the home occupation permit," Councilman Harold B. Wagstaff said, adding he would vote favorably based on legal loopholes found by the Panthers' attorney.

Represented by Dann J. Meehan of the Legal Aid Society of Marin County, the Panthers successfully argued that their distribution of food at 122 Willow Avenue was not a business venture.

It is simply "offering a service" to the community, he said. "It's not a business, not in the classical sense."

The Food Conspiracy operates by purchasing bulk amounts of fruit, vegetables, eggs and cheese from farmers and wholesalers and then reselling the items — at cost — to member-customers.

Councilmen appeared in agreement that such an operation in a residential neighborhood would be an imposition on other residents but only two urged its outright denial.

Colthurst, in urging the council to reject the Panthers' application, said the home occupation permit was originally conceived to help persons unable to do their own marketing, because of handicaps.

"People are now using it for full-time business," he said. "I'm unhappy with it. This is going beyond the bounds of what the permit is for."

Colthurst and White urged the matter be denied or continued until the council and planning commission have reviewed the code for change.

(Home occupation permits will be discussed today at 7:30 p.m. at town hall when the two bodies meet for a workshop session on community problems.)

"I intend to do all I can to change this tomorrow night," White added at last night's meeting.

"It's a poor ordinance," Mayor Holmes S. Norville agreed. "But I don't see how we can in good faith deny this permit" since it meets the code requirements.

At Norville's suggestion, the permit was granted for only six months — half the normal time usually allowed.

$6,300 Is Returned In Bilking Case

A Sausalito woman, bilked of $6,300 in a classic swindle last July, has been reimbursed for the full amount, police said yesterday.

Police said Marie Pasquinucci of 4 Glen Drive last week was sent a cashier's check from the two women who have admitted the fraud.

The pair, Jackie Dickerson, 23, and Carol Reida Simpson, 25, both of whom have no known address, pleaded guilty last week in Marin Superior Court to felony charges of grand theft.

Miss Dickerson is to be sentenced Nov. 8 and Miss Simpson on Nov. 22.

They duped Mrs. Pasquinucci into giving them the $6,300 in cash on the pretense they would share with her $38,000 they told her they had found on the street.

The women were arrested July 2 when they returned to Mrs. Pasquinucci's home to collect an additional $3,000, she had promised them, police said.

School Easement Grant Considered

The Fairfax School District board will consider granting an easement on the White Hill School property to the Marin Municipal Water District at a meeting at 7:45 p.m. today at the district office, 58 Park Road.

The easement is about 1,200 feet long and 20 feet wide, according to Gwyneth McGee, secretary.

Fall Flower Festival In Ross

The Garden Society of Marin will present its 25th annual Fall Flower Festival this weekend in the Livermore Room and Northgate Theater of the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

The show will be open from noon until 6 p.m. on Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday.

Saturday's demonstrations and lectures will include flower arranging by Mrs. Charles Giggy at 1 p.m. and soil preparation by William Kapranos at 2 p.m.

"What Makes a Good Bonsai" will be discussed by Robert Vittier at 1 p.m. and Mrs. Forrest Slack will talk about orchids at 2 p.m. on Sunday.

Special exhibits will include Mrs. Glenn Ensign's native plants; scenes from the Audubon Society Canyon Ranch by Mrs. Sydney Higgins, and specimens from the Marin Bonsai Club and Orchid Society of Marin.

Many of the plants will be on sale and awards will be given to the best plant and flower displays.

Director Ford Cited For Films

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Veteran director John Ford was cited Sunday by the Screen Actors Guild for being "one of the few giants" in motion pictures.

John Birch-Backed Corte Madera Talk

Charles E. Smith, publisher of the Voice of Watts newsletter, will speak today at 8 p.m. on "The Meaning of the Street Revolution" at the Edgewater Inn, 1815 Redwood Highway, Corte Madera.

Smith's speech is sponsored by the John Birch Society's Committee for Truth About Civic Turmoil.

Tam Drive Rebuilding 90% Done

The Tamalpais Drive reconstruction project in Corte Madera is about 90 per cent complete, the town council was told last night.

According to Town Engineer Arthur N. Morrison, the completion figure does not include extensive landscaping for the widening project.

Items which remain include lane marking, for which the council last night authorized another $1,325 for installation of raised traffic reflectors instead of the ordinary paint striping.

Morrison said the additional cost will be made up in several years since yearly painting maintenance runs about $600.

Completion of the $125,000 project, including landscaping, is not expected until next spring. However, actual road construction should be finished by the end of the year, he said.

Extra Water Lines Are Sought

(One of a series of articles to be published this week and next the Independent-Journal outlining the issues and presenting the candidates in the local elections Nov. 2)

The North Marin County Water District has placed a $1.6 million bond proposal before voters to finance additional transmission lines from the Russian River: Measure C on the ballot.

A two-thirds favorable vote is needed for passage and there are 13,624 registered voters in the district. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

There hasn't been any organized opposition to the measure, but one candidate for the district board, Pat Heffernam, has questioned the need to import water, saying it will bring growth that will be a burden to taxpayers.

Delivery of the district's allocation of 10,000 acre feet of water a year from the Russian River is endangered by lack of transmission facilities, according to Dist. Mgr. Eugene S. Churchill.

If the proposed Sonoma-Marin project is dropped because Marin Municipal Water District fails to gain voter permission to participate — Measure B on the ballot — the North Marin district would proceed with its own project, Churchill said.

With the $1.6 million and $1.3 million in previously authorized bonds, North Marin County Water District could build an overdue transmission line or finance its share of the first stage of the proposed Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct, Churchill said.

The cost either way would be about $3 million and could be financed without substantially changing the district's tax rate of 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation, he said. A 10 to 15 per cent increase in the water rates probably would be required in about five years, Churchill said.

"Without the additional facilities, North Marin may face water shortages by 1973 and will be unable to meet the water demands caused by additional growth," he said.

Through a 1960 agreement with the Sonoma County Water Agency, the district's supply has been coming from the "surplus capacity" of an agency line from Russian River to Santa Rosa, he explained.

This year the demands on that line by the district and the City of Petaluma began to exceed the available surplus. At this point, the district and Petaluma have a contractual obligation to build an additional line and intake valves, he said.

This project, which should have been in operation this year, has been forestalled by the proposed Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct, he said.

The district-Petaluma project would include construction of a line from Russian River to Cotati to hook into an existing line now serving the two entities.

Churchill said the proposed aqueduct would bring the district an additional 3,000 acre feet of water per year at about the same cost and "provide North Marin's water needs for an additional six years, until about 1995," based on current population projections.

The earliest possible date for water delivery from the aqueduct would be early in 1974, while the Petaluma-district project could be completed in late 1973, Churchill estimated.

If the Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct isn't approved, the district vust proceed with the transmission line project, he said.

If the bond proposal fails to get the required two-thirds vote, the district's ability to participate in the aqueduct would be jeopardized, and the district would be required to finance transmission lines through the Sonoma County Water Agency, which could involve higher costs, Churchill said.

Views On Schools Sought

The Sausalito School District board agreed last night to give the public a voice in deciding the future of the district, Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg reported.

The board set a public meeting to discuss the district's future for 7:45 p.m. next Tuesday in the Central School auditorium.

District residents will be encouraged to come to the session and express their views, he said.

For the past several months, according to the superintendent, the board has been considering a variety of possible future reorganization plans for the school district.

He said the study is needed "because of the problems the district has had in the past several years, including declining enrollment, high cost of educating students and ethnic imbalance of students."

Among the possibilities which the board is studying are:

Exchanging students with neighboring districts or districts throughout the county; merging of Sausalito with one or more school districts, and contracting the district's operations to another school district.

The Sausalito School District board also:

AIDE — Voted to hire Elizabeth Van Anda as an education aide.

ASSOCIATION — Agreed to recognize the Sausalito District Teachers Association as official bargaining agent and negotiator for credentialed employees in the district.

CONTRACT — Heard a report from the superintendent that a performance contract program with the Sullivan Reading Centers is now under way in the district, involving 20 students at all levels of ability. The pilot program is designed to test the effectiveness of the performance contract in Sausalito, Lindberg said.

Inmate Denied In Plea For Garry

One of six San Quentin inmates charged in connection with the Aug. 21 violence at the prison yesterday was denied his request to have attorney Charles Garry appointed, at public expense, to represent him.

The denial of inmate John Larry Spain's request was among a series of orders issued yesterday in connection with the case by Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court.

Judge Mcguire yesterday also denied Spain's request that he be allowed to receive certain books which he called necessary to his defense, but which he said were forbidden by prison authorities.

Among the books were "Soledad Brother — Prison Letters of George Jackson," "Venceremos: Speeches and Writings of Che Guevara," "Quotations of chairman Mao Tse-Tung," and selected writings by Mao and others.

McGuire held under submission a request by the six inmates that they be allowed a joint conference to be attended by attorneys G. Douglas Vaughn, John Thorne and Garry.

The inmates — Hugo A. Pinell, Louis N. Talamantez, Fleeta Drumgo, David Johnson, Willie Tate and Spain — are charged, along with missing East Bay attorney Stephen M. Bingham, with murder, conspiracy and assualt in connection with the prison violence in which inmate George Jackson, two other convicts and three San Quentin guards were killed.

The inmates are to return Oct. 29 to Marin Superior Court.

Access To Pond Is Guaranteed

The use of two properties on Da Silva Pond in Southern Marin was turned over to the Strawberry Recreation District last night, according to clerk Jeanne Heick.

She said the district board accepted title to land behind a car wash planned for the Redwood Highway frontage road and a recreational easement for land behind MacDonald's restaurant nearby.

Title and easement will guarantee public access to the shore of the scenic pond, an arm of Richardson Bay.

Mrs. Heick said the board also endorsed Measure A on the Nov. 2 ballot, a $16.8-million College of Marin bond issue, and adopted a resolution opposing a reapportionment plan that would split Marin.

The board also accepted Mrs. Heick's resignation, effective Dec. 31. She said she is quitting after five and one-half years for personal reasons.

Reed Schools Meet Tonight

The Reed School District board will consider appointments and tasks for seven district committees when it meets at 8 p.m. today at Bel Aire School in Tiburon.

Prior to the meeting the board will hold a 7 p.m. closed session on committee appointments and employment of personnel.

The committees are drug abuse, finance, research and instructional assessment, study of small schools, community service funds, recreation program and school facility and transportation.

Only One Challenger In Novato Fire Panel Race

(One of a series of articles to be published this week and next by the Independent-Journal, outlining the issues and presenting the candidates in the local elections Nov. 2)

Incumbents on the Novato Fire Protection District board face another challenge from Richard William Price, a volunteer fireman, in the Nov. 2 election for three seats.

Price is the lone challenger. He tied for a seat in 1967 and didn't get it and was a runnerup in the 1969 election, although later passed over when a vacancy occurred.

There are 12,601 registered voters in the district and the polling places will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

The candidates are:

Henry V. Alvernaz, 46, of 1048 Eighth Street, chief dispatcher in Marin County Communications Department, a member of the board since January 1966.

Fernando Clementino, 44, of 1052 Fifth Street, a contractor, who was appointed to the board in December 1969 to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Donald Donahue.

Price, 43, of 1 Rowland Court, employed in the maintenance and repair division of American President Lines, San Francisco.

Joseph F. Silveira, 41 of 573 Olive Avenue, a rancher, who has been on the board since 1965, when he tied with Alvernaz and won on the toss of a coin.

Price is adamant that a runnerup in an election should be appointed when a vacancy occurs on the board. "At least, he should be asked," he said. "It should be that way whether I'm the runnerup or any other person."

He believes he is "familiar with most areas of the fire department," and that he can offer a "fresh approach" to the board.

He is a native of El Paso, Tex., and served in the Army during the Korean War.

Alvernaz advocated a new fire headquarters, saying the present facility at Grant Avenue, near Highway 101, has outlived its usefulness. Sleeping quarters are overcrowded, he said.

Alvernaz is treasurer of the Parent-Teacher Guild at Our Lady of Loretto Church. He is a native of Stockton, attended schools in Marin and served as a Marine corporal during World War II.

Clementino said his main concern "is to save the taxpayers money and maintain a good fire district."

Clementino opposed building a new headquarters. "We don't need a new fire headquarters," he said. "I'd rather see new equipment than a firehouse."

Clementino, a native of San Joaquin County, has been a resident of Novato since 1936, and operates a grading and excavating business.

Silveira said he wants to "keep taxes down for landowners and homeowners and at the same time keep good fire protection."

Silveira agreed with Clementino's stand that a new fire headquarters isn't needed now. "I don't think we're ready yet."

The board has lowered the tax rate, and "I'll go on the record," he said. "I want to give the right protection and be fair to employees and everybody and keep our rate down."

Silveira, a native of San Rafael, is a partner in the Silveira Ranches, north and south of Novato.

Costly British Hydrofoils Hit

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The prospect of whisking between Marin and San Francisco on high-speed air cushion vessels was torpedoed yesterday in a report on the vessels by the general manager of the Golden Gate Bridge District.

Dale W. Luehring, reporting on his inspection of the vessels in England early this month, concluded that they still were too expensive to operate and maintain, cramped and, in some cases, possibly even dangerous in rough water.

Purchase of such vessels for the district's ferry fleet should await improvements in their development, Luehring said in his 14-page report on his European trip. He was accompanied by board president Lowell Edington of Napa County to the annual convention of the International Bridge, Tunnel and Turnpike Association in Barcelona.

Edington told the Independent-Journal he concurred in Luehring's finds about the air cushion vessels.

His findings, however, would not interfere with proposals by federal officials that the district seek federal funds to test the vessels to aid their development.

The district already is committed to building three 165-foot conventional ferries at a cost of $2.1 million each, but is undecided on whether expansion of the fleet should depend on more of these conventional ferries, on air cushion vessels, or on hydrofoils.

Bridge director Stephan C. Leonoudakis, the board's primary ferry advocate, proposed last April that the air cushion vessel be tested. The Department of Defense, however, finally denied permission for the test in September.

A waiver is required to import any vessel manufactured abroad, and the district now is trying for a waiver through the Department of Transportation.

Two types of air cushion vessels are being considered for the test, and Luehring inspected both. One, a 60-passenger vessel made by Hovermarine, has rigid sidewalls and rides on a cushion of air trapped by flexible skirts fore and aft. The sidewalls remain in the water like a catamaran.

The other, the 270-passenger Vosper Thornycroft VT-1 Hovercraft, has skirts around its entire perimeter, riding along on its skirts as if they were an inner tube.

Both make about 40 miles an hour.

Hamilton Man Saved After Plane Ditched

A Hamilton Air Force Base pilot was rescued yesterday two hours after he ditched his F-106 Delta Dart 35 miles at sea west of the Sea Ranch in Mendocino County.

Maj. Russell Weber, 39, was taken to the airbase hospital and later transferred to Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco with minor fractures in his right leg and shoulder and facial cuts. He was reported in good condition today at the hospital.

Cause of the failure in his aircraft has not been determined, Air Force officials said. The Air Force will call a board of inquiry to determine why the plane crashed and sank.

Weber's aircraft and others piloted by Maj. A.A. Bledsoe Jr. and Lt. Richard T. Grinnel, all of the 84th Fighter Interceptor Squadron from Hamilton, were on a routine training mission when Weber's plane developed trouble and he ejected at 2:39 p.m., at 12,000 feet altitude.

Bledsoe and Grinnel were able to locate Weber in his one-man life raft.

Hamilton sent an HC-130 rescue plane and an HH-53 helicopter to the scene, and the Coast Guard sent two vessels.

Pararescue men A/1C Nicholas Barr and A/1C Carl Woehlie jumped from the HC-130 to be with Weber. S/Sgt. Robert Loud rode the hoist down and removed Weber in a stretcher. All the men are from the 41st Aerospace Rescue Squadron.

Weber was picked up at 4:30 and returned to Hamilton shortly after 5 p.m.

A children's arts and crafts program, to be held Mondays through Saturdays, is scheduled to begin at the center on Nov. 1, she said.

College Board Should Clarify Its Intentions

In a mailer advocating passage of Measure A on the Nov. 2 ballot — the Marin Community College District $16,750,000 bond issue — the Citizens Committee for Proposition A says:

"With Proposition A the costs will be spread over a 25-year period, rather than concentrated in a few years, as with pay-as-you-go financing of buildings."

In an address before the Ross Valley Kiwanis Club last week, Ernest H. Berg, president of Indian Valley Colleges — construction of which the bond issue would fund — said flatly that the district board is committed to build the new college on the outskirts of Novato by levying a special tax if Measure A fails to win the necessary two-thirds support at the polls.

WHAT THE BOND committee's publicity hints and what Berg stated are based, apparently, on a resolution passed by the college board in a moment of frustration and rebellion, at its first meeting after turndown of a bond issue for the same purpose last November.

That resolution stated the board's intention "of completing College of Marin to master planned size of 5,000 students and constructing the first two phases of the new north college" by (a) funds from the November bond issue if the U.S. Supreme Court held that the two-thirds approval requirement was unconstitutional (which it did not), (b) funds from a subsequent bond issue to be put before the voters, or (c) "through levying of that tax necessary to raise local district funds to match amounts provided by the state under provisions of" the Junior College Construction Act. This act permits an override tax for such purpose, by junior college districts only, without voter approval.

From conversations with some members of the present board of the college district, we fell sure that they have no intention of "ramming down our throats" a $16-million construction program through added taxes without voter approval. But that is what the resolution adopted last November by a previous board indicates. And that is what some of those urging passage of the bond issue have threatened.

Obviously, there are other courses open to the college board if the bond issue fails. They are not attractive, but they are there.

WE BELIEVE that the Novato campus is needed. We believe that the bond financing provided in Proposition A is the most painless way to build it.

We believe also that the trustees of Marin Community College District are cognizant of their obligation to the residents and voters, and would not attempt to levy a tax that might mount to over $1 per $100 assessed valuation without the voters' approval — even though state law says they can legally do so.

To clear the air, to reassure the voters, and to enhance the chances for the bond issue's passage, we believe the board should publicly go on record that it will examine all other possible courses if the issue is rejected — and telling what some of those courses might mean.

By RUS WALTON:

Old Tax Reform Truck Just Sits There On Blocks

SACRAMENTO — Back on my dad's farm, we had an old truck parked behind the barn. It had long since given up the spirit of the Dodge boys and it sat there, up on concrete blocks, a repository of nuts and bolts and other unassorted odds and ends and kids.

On rainy afternoons we used to pile onto the driver's seat and tour the world. We had the fantasy that the harder we spun the wheel and kicked the pedals and juggled the levers, and the more we yelled and jumped and wiggled, the faster and farther we'd go.

And so we'd sit there and yell and yank and jiggle and wiggle . . . but when the dinner bell clanged we hadn't moved an inch. Not an inch.

I thought they had junked the old truck years ago, carted it off to some bottomless swamp or sold it to the junkman for a used tire and a buck-fifty. But, I was wrong.

THEY HAVE PARKED that damn truck over at the state capitol — right in the middle of the rotunda.

For almost 10 months now, they have been kicking and screaming and jerking over there, those fellas. And they haven't moved an inch. Not on tax reform.

As a matter of fact, it's been more than 10 months. They have been yakking about tax reform since 1967. Gone through four sessions of the legislature, three governor's task forces, 27 million hours of talk, 60 zillion reams of paper. And still no tax reform.

Governor Reagan said something about it the other day. He said if the lawmakers didn't come up with tax reform the voters would. On the ballot, next year, through the initiative petition. That's what he said. Then he took a whole covey of aides and flew off for the Orient.

WELL, LOS ANGELES County Assessor Philip E. Watson is trying to oblige the governor. Watson is back with his tax reform proposal to put a lid on property taxes. In 1968, he got Proposition 9 on the ballot. It was defeated by about two-to-one.

The big argument against Watson's amendment in 1968 was that, given time, the legislature and the governor could come up with a better program. Opponents claimed Watson's proposal would raise hell with the state's finances and would force the legislature into hasty and impractical action.

Well, it's been almost four years, now, and still nothing on tax reform. And in those years property taxes statewide have jumped another $2 billion. Which is why Watson is moving again.

He hopes to qualify his initiative for the June ballot. This time it ranges far wider than his 1968 measure.

WATSON WOULD PUT a ceiling on property taxes of $7 per $100 assessed valuation. On a $25,000 house, that would mean a property tax lid at about $437. He estimates that the average reduction in property taxes would be about 38 per cent.

He would make up the $2.2 billion drop in tax revenues through other levies: a severance tax on oil and minerals; increased taxes on alcoholic beverages and tobacco products; a hike in bank and corporation taxes (from 7 to 11 per cent), and repeal of the home-office tax exemption for insurance companies.

The state income tax, Watson proposes, would be frozen at its present levels unless raised by a two-thirds vote of the legislature. His attraction for education groups is a provision which would guarantee state expenditures of $825 for every pupil from kindergarten through high school.

Like I said, that old truck just sits there in the capitol. Up on blocks. And, unless the lawmakers want a tax reform proposition on the ballot next year, they had better get things moving.

Stories In Advance Of Meetings Helpful

On behalf of the League of Women Voters of Central Marin, I would like to commend the Independent-Journal on the recent articles concerning board, council and commission meetings that are of vital concern to all citizens of Marin County.

The article headlined ' 'West Marin Rezoning Will Be Considered," in the I-J on Oct. 9, was very informative and by elaborating on the agenda was useful in creating public interest and encouraging public attendance at the planning commission meeting on Oct. 11.

The League of Women Voters believes that democratic government depends upon participation of all citizens in government and politics, and that the news articles concerning what is scheduled at board, council and commission meetings are as important as the coverage of the meeting and follow-up stories.

Quick Action Needed For Fire Protection

Harrah! to the I.J. for the editorial focusing on the untenable fire department situation in Corte Madera. The "decoy" station in East Corte Madera is a folly of no little importance.

Unfortunately, the town manager's recommendation of a consultant and the formulation of a questionnaire will take time. The terrible fire of Sept. 17 reminds us of the immediate need for more manpower. Five fulltime firemen with seven pieces of rolling equipment are a farce. If Corte Madera has two adequately equipped fire stations, where is the proper fulltime manpower?

The residents of Corte Madera, with the facts properly presented, have no choice but to call upon the town council for immediate action to temporarily solve the manpower problem prior to the results of a consultant's study and questionnaire being compiled. Immediate steps should be taken to increase the size and efficiency of the volunteer section of the fire department. I realize manpower is only a part of the answer, but it is better to take action than wait.

Let us not gamble with the lives of residents of Corte Madera before the town council acts. Election time for the Corte Madera Council is upcoming in the spring. Let us bring pressure for a more responsive council who acts upon the most pertinent issues first.

I realize that with a $40 million shopping center, the HUD project, and the Meadowsweet project of 640 more dwellings proposed for Corte Madera, we will need many services extended. Let us be ready and plan ahead through the use of a well informed and progressive town council.

State Must Take In Order To Give

Headlines, picture, in I-J of recent date, "A Family of Five on Welfare." Perhaps not new news but good news — and to your credit. It started people to thinking. When people think, it is one step toward freedom.

The solution to this family's problem by a reader: "The mother gets a job, the 19-year-old daughter gets a job, the 17-year-old son works nights in a service station. You're welcome" — was priceless. May I supply the thanks?

Comes the rebuttal: See how soon some hapless individual, while lazying around on welfare money, discovers in the dictionary the key word "discrimination ." Aided by abbeted by one of our wily, disruptive incompetent attorneys — subsidized by your government with your tax money — together they stretch the process of law, which they mock with such shilly-shally, and charge invasion of rights, use of four-letter words (WORK) in the press, fascism, cruelty to children, discrimination, what have you? Any shallow, stupid excuse for not working. Courts are clogged with appeal after appeal until some weak-kneed judge renders a decision in their favor on the strength of "inadequate representation."

Meanwhile their welfare and your taxes roll merrily on. The state cannot give a cent to any man without taking it from another man who had produced and saved. Wake up, J.Q.C.T. (John Q. Citizen Taxpayer)!

School Strife Stories Called Shabby Reporting

Your stories about San Rafael High School in Tuesday's and Wednesday's paper are sickening examples of biased reporting. Mr. David Dietz apparently is quite willing to write, and you to print, vicious racist propaganda in the guise of a news story. The purpose of the story, if not simply to arouse fear apparently is to further the as-yet-unannounced political ambitions of a Mr. Robert L. Grime.

All through your front-page story you refer to "blacks." Yet consistently you say "white students." You never have the courtesy or the simple truthfulness to admit that you are writing about black students . . .

Mrs. Grime's role in this whole sorry affair is apparently that of rabble-rouser. He sounds off in your letter column, accusing the police department, the whole teaching and administrative staff of the school and much of the student body of lying about the extent and seriousness of any trouble.

Mr. Grime seems willing to take scandalous gossip as fact. Your reporter has tried a little harder to find the few and very non-threatening facts which underlie the gossip, yet he is not above implying that the vice principal, Robert Royles, is evading the truth, and that miscellaneous students not directly involved in a particular fight know more, by hearsay, about what happened than the participants . . .

Your reporter and your editorial staff seem to have taken at face value some very shabby "confrontations" staged by Mr. Grime. Beware of being fooled further by him. He may be dangerous. Seek another interpretation of any future issues he presents.

Huge Campaign Spending Leads To Corruption And Inflation

WASHINGTON — Money, if not the root of all evil, is certainly the tap root of the corruption of the American political process. That corruption is so pervasive that the struggle in Congress to put some limits on the buying of public office comes up against a stone wall.

The odds are against a bill out of Congress this pre-election year putting any effective restraints on total campaign spending or on individual contributions. Too many officeholders do not want any restrictions. At the top of that list is President Nixon.

After long and painstaking effort Rep. Torbert H. MacDonald's bill has come out of the House Commerce Committee. It puts a limit on total spending for a presidential candidate of 10 cents per eligible voter, of which not more than 50 per cent can be spent on radio and television. A rival bill, sponsored by the ebullient Wayne L. Hays of Ohio, is described by those who closely follow the struggle to be as full of holes as a Swiss cheese, If it should pass, the President would welcome it as an engraved invitation to a veto.

THE SENATE has passed a bill with some respectable elements but two serious weaknesses. With no ceiling for contributions and no real enforcement powers, it is a well-intentioned gesture.

The whole matter is now deeply embroiled in party-line politics, with the Republicans voting with few exceptions against restrictions while the Democrats pick and choose their own gimmicky measures that for the most part fall short of a realistic barrier against spending. This is one of the sad consequences of president Nixon's veto last year of a spending bill that had broad bipartisan support. The veto left the Republican leadership on an embarrassing limb, since they had gone down the line for it.

The law limiting individual campaign contributions to $5,000 has been on the books for 31 years. No attorney general has ever tried to enforce it. The list of those who contributed more than $10,000 in 1968 takes 61 printed pages in the thorough and highly useful book, "Financing the 1968 Election." Mr. and Mrs. W. Clement Stone of Chicago are listed as giving the Republicans $101,000. Their total is generally believed to have been close to a half million dollars.

ONE OF THE TOUGHEST jeremiads ever delivered on the national scandal of buying and selling public office and public favors came the other day from John W. Gardner of Common Cause. A mild-mannered, even gentle, man, Gardner called the roll of county courthouses, judgeships, the Congress, the executive and the barter in votes for money. He observed that, according to the best available estimates, $100 million was spent in 1968 on the presidential race, $100 million more on all other campaigns. This was an increase of 50 per cent over 1964, and 1972 is likely to show another big jump.

As this cynical capital knows, speeches are a dime a dozen. But back of the speech is a move by Common Cause in federal court. If for 31 years no attorney general has tried to enforce the law, then a public interest suit can compel disclosure of contributions and put the finger on those violating the law.

As a first step, Judge Barrington D. Parker in district court here upheld the right of Common Cause to bring such a suit. That right was contested by the Democratic National Committee and allied political organizations. The next step is for a citizens' suit on the merits of the allegation that continual and flagrant violation of the law governing money poured into political campaigns deprives the average citizen of any real voice in filling public office. Without a corrective, the end, as Gardner said in his stern, tough speech, is dissillusion and a distrust so corrosive as to put an end to democratic institutions.

SEEING THE THRUST of a citizens' suit compelling enforcement of present laws covering campaign spending, the opposition in Congress promptly moved to repeal those sections calling for prosecution of violators. Without powerful pressure the Congress will continue to diddle along with no measure with any teeth as 1972 comes over the horizon.

The President has asked all Americans to cooperate in a wage-and-price freeze. Why not a freeze on campaign spending? The millions poured into the campaigns next year — another record in all probability — are surely inflationary. Here is a loophole Mr. Nixon overlooked.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Agreement On Berlin Possible At Long Last

By PHIL NEWSOM.
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Don't bet on it, but sources close to West German Chancellor Willy Brandt believe agreement between the two Germanys on Berlin still is possible before Christmas.

It could mean that for the first time since 1966, West Berliners may be allowed to pass through the Berlin wall to visit relatives in the communist east, and that for the first time in more than 20 years definite steps had been taken to remove the divided city as a major irritant between East and West in the heart of Europe.

AGAINST SUCH an early possibility is that fact that it took the Big Four powers from March, 1970, to the beginning of September, 1971, to reach among themselves the agreement which they have now passed on to the Germans for the working out of final details.

And that it took the Germans from Sept. 3 to Sept. 30 to agree on the translation of a single word in the Big Four agreement.

Economics led the communists to erect the Berlin wall 10 years ago.

But it was the human element that supplied most of the grim statistics:

Approximately 150 East Germans killed attempting to flee either to West Berlin or to West Germany since 1961.

From a high of 100 persons an hour fleeing to the west in the hours just before the Berlin wall went up, to a low of fewer than 100 per year now.

Nor does agreement mean, the disappearance of the wall of reinforced concrete which stands 10 feet high and extends 99.4 miles completely surrounding West Berlin.

THE BEST THAT CAN be hoped foris an easement growing out of new world conditions which for the Russians demand establishment of a status quo in Europe and perhaps a chance to shift to the east along the borders with Red China some of the Soviet forces now stationed along the Warsaw Pact line in Central Europe.

These were the conditions which suddenly led the Soviet Union to recognize its responsibilities in Berlin.

They necessitated the removal of Walter Ulbricht, East German communist leader whose unyielding hardline against the West made any agreement impossible.

They led to the sudden progress in the negotiations between the two Germanys which followed Brandt's recent meeting with Soviet party leader Leonid Brezhnev on the shores of the Crimea.

THE EAST GERMANS shifted abruptly from their position denying the Bonn government's right denying the Bonn government's right to negotiate for West Berlin and agreed to improved telephone and mail services which for years had ben the subject of fruitless conversations.

There is still a long way to go. There remains the question of the right of West Berliners to the eastern zone of the city and the matter of the free flow of civilian goods to and from West Berlin. In the latter category, the East Germans once ruled against the memoirs of the late Chancellor Konrad Adenauer

Bitter experience has demonstrated the snail's pace at which negotiations with the communists move.

And a Soviet change of heart still is possible toward the seeming new era of goodwill toward Berlin.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Oct. 19, 1961

Gunman Maxwell Fleischer of New York was killed by Marin Sheriff's Deputies Ernest Nielsen and George Johnsen in a roadblock shoot-out after Fleischer robbed a San Francisco cab driver and a Mill Valley couple.

A proposal to annex hundreds of acres on the east side of Mount Tamalpais to the City of Mill Valley was disclosed at a Mill Valley City Council meeting.

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 19, 1951

The San Rafael Planning Commission recommended that the city buy properties on Fifth Avenue between B and C streets, on C Street between Second and Third streets, and on Third Street between Cijos Street and Lootens Place for municipal parking lots.

Millard Caldwell, U.S. civil defense chief, told the national American Legion convention in Miami, Fla.: "The next war will come to Main Street."

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

If language is not correct, then what is said is not what is meant, if what is said is not meant, then what ought to be done remains undone. if this remains undone, then morals and art deteriorate; if morals and art deteriorate, justice will go astray; if justice goes astray, the people will stand about in helpless confusion. — Confucius.

Park Development Destroys Novato Tree-Growing Project

Shortly after the Novato Civic Foundation was organized to promote parks in the Novato area, it undertook a tree growing project. It had a two-fold purpose, to grow trees to plant in parks and to sell for Christmas trees to make money for the foundation.

North Marin County Water District donated land and water for a nursery at its Stafford Lake treatment plant. Seedling trees were purchased and planted in 1965. Members of the foundation weeded and watered the trees for three years.

Then in 1968 began the process of replanting the trees. The foundation sold groves of trees at $5 a tree to raise money. It also planted many trees in rows so that they could be thinned and sold for Christmas trees when they were large enough.

Individuals bought single trees as memorials to members of their families. The Lorene Bunker family purchased a $100 grove. The Kiwanis Club, Novato Garden Club and Novato Senior Citizens all purchased groves in the names of their clubs. Plaques were put in each grove and on the individual trees designating the donors.

THESE TREES WERE planted under direction of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Department at designated locations. Hundreds of people, both young and old, donated many hours of time to plant the trees. The Novato Fire Department watered them with its tanker trunks until the trees had roots enough to grow by themselves.

Altogether 1,000 redwood trees and approximately another 1,000 pine and fir trees were planted. Of course, some of them died and some of them were stolen. By this year, the shores of Stafford Lake were showing the results of the many years of labor. Some of the trees had reached a height of 10 to 12 feet and were starting to make rapid growth.

RECENTLY THE COUNTY started developing the Stafford Lake Park. Members of the foundation watched as back hoes lifted trees out of the ground, putting them into trucks to be hauled away. Pierre Joske, Marin County parks and recreation director, said they would be replanted in five-gallon cans in hope of saving them.

This was the year that the foundation planned to sell its first Christmas trees from the grove planted in rows. This systematic thinning would have left a good standing grove.

This grove, too, was destined to fall to the progress of the park. After the bulldozer was finished, 37 trees remained. The county moved 20 of them to the Civic Center, leaving 17 trees standing at the lake.

Edwin V. Grundstrom and Peter J. Ferrarese, past presidents of the foundation who had worked hard for the tree project, did not know of its demise.

"The county could have let us know of its plans and we could have moved the trees elsewhere around the lake," Ferrarese said.

Grundstrom said that members of the foundation and others who had helped in the project could have transplanted some of the trees into their own yards rather than see them destroyed.

The foundation's board bowed to the inevitable the other night. They accepted what had already been done. Their project to beautify the lake with trees and make money for the foundation was gone.

ART BUCHWALD

Crime Is Up On Television — But Quickly Solved, Of Course

WASHINGTON — The first crime figures for the fall television season are now in, and it has been confirmed that there were increases in all categories of crime in prime time, from rape to involuntary homicide.

For example, there were twice as many murders committed on the networks in September of this year as in all of 1971.

Aggravated assaults were up 176 per cent and robbery rose 320 per cent, if you include the reruns of old James Cagney movies.

The report indicated that while guns were still the chief weapons in television crime, writers were introducing more sophisticated methods of doing away with victims. These included holding their heads under sewer water, throwing gasoline on them and setting them afire, pushing them into bubbling vats of molasses, and running them down in 1938 Buicks in dark alleys.

A SPOKESMAN for the criminal division of television broadcasting said, "It's true that there has been an upsurge of crime on TV as compared to last year, but I would like to point out that despite the increase, every crime committed on one of our shows has been solved in 90 minutes or less."

The spokesman was asked why most of the crimes this year were solved by private investigators and not by the police.

He said, "The reason for this is that the private eye, as we like to call him, has more flexibility than a city detective. A private eye doesn't have to worry about such things as applying for a search warrant, using brutality on a suspect, lying to the police, or making out with the wife of the victim.

"The recent Supreme Court rulings have made it impossible for us to use the city police in our shows other than in supporting roles or for comic relief."

"WHY DO THE POLICE in all TV crime shows arrive on the scene of the crime five minutes after the private detectives?"

"We have found from experience that if the police arrive late, it gives the private eye an opportunity to find the needed evidence that will lead him to the killer. If the police arrived at the same time as the private eye, they would find the evidence first, and then you would have no show."

A reporter asked the spokesman if he were concerned that there is more violence on television than ever before.

"We're always concerned with violence, and we try not to overdo it. But at the same time there are just so many ways you can kill somebody, and the more imaginative the crime, the more the public will respond. The one thing that has all the criminals on TV worried is that they will become predictable."

"CAN WE EXPECT a new TV crime wave in 1972?" a reporter asked.

"It's too early to say. Perhaps when the ratings are in, we'll know how much crime the public will stand. I personally predict there will probably be fewer family murders, and we may have more crazed killers in '72."

"Why more crazed killers?"

"The TV writers are running out of plots. When you have a crazed killer, you don't need any motivation for his crime. He does it because he's crazy. You can't imagine how that simplifies a story line."

"What happens if the crime shows don't get high ratings?"

Mayor Rice Hits Remap Proposals

Legislative plans to reapportion Marin among two or more Senate districts were denounced yesterday by the mayor of Tiburon as treating the county "with the most callous indifference to its political integrity."

Mayor Denis T. Rice objected especially to a revamped Democratic plan under which Tiburon and Belevedere "would be sliced off from the rest of Marin, like a piece of stale salami, and stuck into a grab-bag district" consisting of Solano, Colusa, Glenn, Sutter, Yuba, Tehama and Shasta counties.

Lumping the Tiburon Peninsula with Shasta, Rice declared in a letter to Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, "is the most egregious gerrymandering, and patently based on the most petty of partisan considerations."

Rice, noting in his letter to Moscone that he had supported the senator's election campaigns, concluded that it was up to Moscone, a leader of the majority party, "to see to it that basic precepts of representative government are followed."

Woman Faces Charges Over Gun, Assault

The 35-year-old wife of a serviceman was arrested Saturday night on suspicion of threatening her husband with a revolver, assaulting police officers, resisting arrest and battery on police officers.

Kathleen Ellen Howell of 103 West Kelly Drive, Hamilton Air Force Base, was released on $1,500 bail to appear Wednesday in Marin Municipal Court.

According to Novato police S/Sgt. Robert Earl Howell, 31, went outside their home and sat in the car following a family argument. Mrs. Howell ordered him out at gunpoint, neighbors reported to police.

When security police from the base and Novato police attempted to get the revolver from her purse, she bit them and tried to fight them when arrested, Novato police reported.

Aqueduct Measure Debated Wednesday

The pros and cons of Measure B on the Nov. 2 ballot, in which the Marin Municipal Water District seeks to contract for construction of the Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct, will be discussed at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Brown's Hall, Mill Valley.

Speakers will include William R. Seeger, water district general manager, attorney Thomas H. Thorner and Harold E. Gregg, director of the Marin Conservation League.

The Spouse Gap

Weathering the Marriage Crisis During Middlescence

by local Marin County authors Robert Lee & Marjorie Casebier

A 12-installment condensation of the book

Middlescence—the new crisis years of marriage—is the subject of this unique book. The authors examine the problems and possibilities facing middle-aged married couples.

Many of us assume that if a marriage works for 15 to 20 years, there's nothing to worry about. This just isn't true. Middlescence is a time of life when couples face some of their toughest battles: worry over kids and how to support them; aging parents who may need help; and the psychological and physiological problems which can and do crop up in the middle years. On top of all this, the marriage relationship itself may be showing signs of neglect.

Beginning with the dating days and early gaps in marriage, the authors help the reader view some of the difficulties he may face: middlescent malaise; problems with sex; crises when children leave the nest; adultery; lack of communication; and the specter of divorce.

Finally they propose some exciting possibilities for bridging the spouse gap through rediscovery of one another, through frank appraisal of and suggestions for improving the sexual side of marriage, and through the re-creation of a full life together.

Schools Told To Iron Out Space Need

A nursery school for retarded children, operated by Marin Community Mental Health Services in Kentfield, will be allowed to continue for another year if a parking controvery can be ironed out with the adjoining Lady Bug Pre-School Nursery.

That was the ruling handed down yesterday by Marin's deputy zoning administrator, Ralph D. Cairns.

The location is at 1030 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, at the intersection with Butterfly Lane.

The problem developed because the mental health services' nursery school has no loading and unloading zone. Barbara Del Amo, director of the Lady Bug, complained that school parking spaces were being usurped by the county community mental health services.

Cairns asked for a written agreement on joint use of Lady Bug's loading and unloading zone.

In another zoning hearing, Tamalpais Community Services District won permission to add a shop and storage area to its community building at 305 Bell Lane, Tamalpais Valley. Deputy zoning administrator Harvey E. Bragdon approved the expansion on condition that the new structures be subject to design review by the county planning staff.

Federal Funding For Marin Parks

State and federal funding totaling $235,850 has been approved for two Marin County Parks, State Sen. Peter H. Behr's office has announced.

The money — $69,650 for Stafford Lake Park near Novato and $166,200 for McNear's Beach Park, San Rafael —will provide picknicking, fishing, hiking and restroom facilities.

Petaluma Cuts Swim Club Rates

The Petaluma City Council last night granted a rate reduction to the Petaluma Swim Club for pool use and said it would open discussion next month on rates for 1972.

Several hundred youthful members of the swim club and their parents crowded into the council chambers and spilled out into the hallway for the meeting.

Attorney Clyde Nelson, a club director, told the council the club wants the pool open on an 11-month basis rather than the current seven months to permit more practice. He said the club's annual budget of $17,000 pays salaries for four coaches and cannot afford more than $400 per month for pool use in off-season months. During summer, the club pays $150 per month for use of pool during nonrecreational swimming hours.

The council said it was concerned about the $14,000 deficit incurred at the pool for 1970-71 fiscal year and said a complete financial review of the pool operation and all recreational programs was being prepared by finance director Cecil G. Gealta.

Councilman Richard W. Clecak originally suggested the club be charged $500 for the month of November and the pool be used only for club practices. In the past, the club has sublet the pool to school classes to reduce its cost.

Parents spoke against the $500 charge along with several members of the recreation, music and parks commission. G. Raymond Boccaleoni, a commission member, said the $750 per month pool cost would leave the city a bill of $350 per month for the four extra months requested by the club. "That adds up to $1,400 and the club is worth a lot more than that to the community," he said, receiving a long burst of applause.

The council agreed to the $400 rate and said finance studies should be completed soon and a 1972 rate agreed upon in December when the pool will be closed.

The Petaluma City Council also:

AMBULANCE — Approved the purchase of a 1972 Cadillac ambulance from the Pacific Coach and Ambulance Co. of Burlingame at the low bid of $16,025.

NAMES — Approved changing the name of the proposed Marcy Way to Cindy Lane and to changing the name of Cherry Street to Antone Way between Magnolia Avenue and Cherry Street.

TAXES — Approved a resolution urging Congress to permit residents to deduct garbage collection fees on income taxes.

SEWER MEETING — Adjourned to Monday at 8 p.m. for a report on possible methods of financing the necessary sewer plant addition including a possible second try at a bond election. In June voters defeated a $2 million sewer bond election.

Fairfax Women Set Whist Party

The Fairfax Volunteer Fire Department will sponsor a whist party at 8:30 p.m. Nov. 13 in the Fairfax Women's Club.

Proceeds will be added to a compensation insurance fund for volunteers. Tickets may be purchased through the fire department.

San Rafael Landowner Wins Assessment Round

A San Rafael man last night persuaded the San Rafael City Council to overrule a condition imposed by the city's planning commission on proposed development of his east San Rafael property.

Fred Grange, owner of property at 2029 and 2031 Francisco Boulevard, convinced the council that requiring him to commit the property to a future drainage assessment district would be making him pay twice for drainage problems that were not his.

Grange had strong support in his appeal last night with his attorney, Wallace S. Myers, presenting his case in a soft-sell style that Mayor C. Paul Bettini called the finest presentation ever made before the council, and Marin Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner, owner of eight acres next to Grange's property, contending that he, Grange and other property owners were being "crucified" by the future assessment district requirement.

Gardiner said he has paid $26,069 for drainage work under a Francisco Boulevard assessment district formed in 1962 and now he and other Francisco Boulevard property owners in east San Rafael were being required to commit their property to a future district aimed at correcting drainage problems on property behind theirs.

Myers said that Grange has paid $16,000 under the old district and said that requiring Grange's participation in a new district would be illegal.

The council agreed and approved Grange's plans for a building for debris box storage and repair.

The San Rafael City Council Also:

STREETS — Approved a recommendation by City Engineer Ely Caillouette Jr. that implementation of a plan to make portions of A, B, C and D streets one-way be delayed from Nov. 15 until January 1972 because of sewer construction work and Christmas season traffic.

HOSPITAL — Passed to print zoning ordinance amendments approving plans to enlarge Kaiser Foundation hospital into a full-service hospital for members of the Kaiser health plan and emergency treatment of others.

PARK — Ordered city staff to study complaints by Russell Amos of 1415 Nye Street about an embankment at Boyd Hillside Park adjacent to his residence and directed the staff to report back to the council Nov. 1.

YACHT CLUB — Approved hiring an appraiser to determine both a fair sale price and fair market rental for city property leased to the San Rafael Yacht Club. The lease expires next March 31.

PERMIT — Approved a use permit for Harry Heifetz for a temporary auto wrecking yard, firewood storage and sales, and storage and maintenance of contractor's equipment at 1515 Francisco Boulevard.

AUDIT — Approved a $1,200 contract with the San Rafael accounting firm of Sleezer and Eckhoff for an audit of books and records in connection with the sanitary sewer reconstruction project.

COURTHOUSE — Authorized McCown to work with county officials to hire an appraiser for a new appraisal of the old courthouse property in San Rafael and appointed Bettini and councilman Harry A. Barbier to work as a committee with McCown and the county on a proposal for the city to purchase the property from the county.

BIDS — Called for bids on a new storm drain culvert on K Street and repairs to the levee in the east San Rafael drainage easement. Bids will be opened Nov. 1 on both of the projects, each estimated at about $6,000 by Norris M. Rawles, public works director.

CLOSED SESSION — Met in closed session to discuss possible litigation against the city.

Marinite To Exhibit

Paintings by Emily Burns, a member of the Marin Society of Artists, will be displayed during November at the Northlight Gallery in San Francisco. The show will be open from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays.

Federal Program Delayed

The San Rafael City Council looked a gift horse in the mouth last night and balked at accepting it. (Another San Rafael City Council story, page 1.)

The council refused to approve an agreement for participation in the federal emergency employment program under which the federal government would pay 90 per cent of the salaries of 10 unemployed persons hired by the city.

John B. Averette, finance director, said the city's application proposed hiring a planning technician, automotive serviceman, recreation program aide, fire dispatcher, administrative intern, maintenance man, parks groundsman, public works draftsman and two clerks.

But the council questioned whether the extra employees were needed and what would happen to them when the one-year federal funding ran out.

"We shouldn't jump on the bandwagon if we don't need the jobs," said Mayor C. Paul Bettini.

Bettini noted extra costs and delays caused the city by meeting conditions attached to a $275,000 federal grant for its $1.4 million sewer reconstruction project and said the city's "experience with federal grants is something to behold."

A motion by Councilman John A. Miskimen to approve the agreement died for lack of a second, and Bettini asked City Mgr. James H. McCown to present more information on the plan at the council's next meeting, Nov. 1.

Bids Will Go To Rid Landslide

Mill Valley Vetoes Mart Project

The Mill Valley City Council last night unanimously voted to advertise for bids to remove the Miller Avenue landslide, an unwelcome landmark in the city for 986 days.

City Engineer Stanley M. Bala estimated the cost of the project aimed at doing the minimum amount of work necessary to make the road and sidewalk safe for thoroughfare at about $22,300.

City Mgr. William H. Cunningham said the cost would be billed to the three land owners, Melinda Row-Beddoe, Joseph A. Moore and Henry T. Gunderson.

Benjamin Dreyfus, attorney for Moore, told the council that there was no slide on his client's property. Bala admitted that he couldn't be sure because the area was not legally surveyed.

Asked why Moore was included if the city was not sure if the slide occurred on his property, Cunningham said, "He was put in the resolution because his property might be included."

Bala proposed that the city just remove the dirt hanging over the street and set up minimum drainageways. He emphasized that his proposals were not intended to repair the slide, but merely to make the street safe. He said additional work may be necessary to prevent future slides.

The Mill Valley City Council also:

SPECIAL MEETINGS — Set Oct. 26 for a special meeting to consider how to spend $450,000 approved in sewer bonds and set Nov. 23 for a special meeting to take up matters the public might wish to discuss such as dog control, litter, parking or noise.

PLANS AND BIDS — Approved plans and authorized bids for concrete crib walls at 79 Elinor Avenue and Monte Vista and Hazel Avenues, and for Warner Creek drainage.

After more than three hours of public hearings, the Mill Valley City Council last night shut the door on one proposed supermarket-drugstore development and left another up in the air.

With more than 100 citizens jamming the council chambers, the council rejected 3-to-2 expanding the present Safeway store at Miller Avenue and Camino Alto, adding a Long's Drugstore, relocating a Texaco station and wiping out a medical building.

The council continued to Oct. 26 a proposal for an Alpha Beta market and a Thrifty drugstore at East Blithedale and Lomita avenues until the city attorney could determine if the city could require the developers to construct a covered culvert along their property on East Blithedale.

The council's action came after it voted 3-to-2 not to deny the project outright. After a long pause, Wickham cast the deciding vote joining Boessenecker and Councilman Robert H. Andreson in overturning Councilman Jean S. Barnard's motion to deny the project because of "too many unsolved problems."

Andreson initiated the motion against the Safeway-Longs proposal saying there was not an adequate review and comment by the planning commission and the architectural advisory committee; the buildings were too big for the site; the development would generate an inordinant amount of traffic and would preclude development along Warner Creek.

Mrs. Barnard added that she wanted the medical building to remain on the property. She was joined by Dr. Martin Long who said there isn't any other area in Mill Valley to relocate the building.

The audience burst into applause when Dr. Thomas R. Knez exclaimed that the real issue is land use and he felt the town would lose its uniqueness if the council approved two large chain stores.

The Alpha Beta-Thrifty proposal was carried over because the council did not know if it had the right to impose drainage improvements on the developer, Sutter Hill Development Co. of Palo Alto.

Attorney Philip Torre, acting for City Attorney Leland H. Jordan, said an agreement made between property owners and the city might not give the city the right to impose drainage improvements.

'Fiddler' Seats Bought Out For Education Unit

Landsberg, president of a San Francisco paper products company, is the sole sponsor of a premiere performance of the film, "Fiddler on the Roof" at the Fox Wilshire theatre in Beverly Hills Nov. 16.

Proceeds from the sale of tickets for his 1,000 guests go to the Oral Education Center of Southern California, an organization serving deaf children.

Landsberg has received private instruction in lipreading at the center because he has suffered a 60 per cent loss of hearing, due to a condition called "nerve deafness." He bought out the theater out of gratitude to the instruction he has received.

Air Force Junkets Expenses Claimed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Air Force spent more than half a million dollars last year taking various civic leaders to bases around the country for briefings and fire power demonstrations, according to Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis.

Reuss released an audit from the General Accounting Ofice which detailed some of the tours, adding "this kind of costly Madison Avenue salesmanship has no place in the kind of lean, hard military program we need in a time of soaring budget deficits."

Redwood-Terra Linda Tilt Tops Football Slate

By RON LENT

The muddled Marin County Athletic League football leadership picture become clearer this weekend when Redwood High School and Terra Linda square off Friday, 8 p.m. at San Rafael High.

KTIM will air this game live at 8 p.m.

In other MCAL games: Drake visits Novato, 11 a.m. and San Rafael treks to San Marin on the Novato High field, 1:30 p.m., both Saturday affairs. Marin Catholic invades Tamalpais, Mill Valley domain for a non-league go Saturday at 1 p.m., thus completing the slate.

Of the four MCAL battles, the Redwood-Terra Linda affair shapes up as a mid-season crucial, if only for Don Lucas's Trojans. Terra Linda, 2-1 in conference play, could ill afford another loss, particularly to co-leader Redwood, 2-0.

SHOULD THE Giants win, the Trojan's chances of retaining the MCAL crown would be nearly nil. Conversely, a Terra Linda triumph would vault the pass-minded Trojans into a probable three-way tie for second with Redwood and San Rafael. It would also push the Trojans back into the title contention limelight.

The Giants could hammer another nail into the Terra Linda coffin with a victory and set the stage for the Nov. 5 showdown with Novato, the other front-running team.

REDWOOD, FRESH from a convincing 21-13 win over erstwhile pacesetter San Rafael Friday night, will again rely on its outstanding running attack and stingy defense.

Like Terra Linda, Drake is in a must-win situation while confronting host Novato. The Pirates, 2-1, have rebounded after a slow start on the strength of an aggressive defense and running unit.

THE GREEN and white have Don Seward to anchor the defensive line with Tom Perry and Rick Bozzio filling the holes at linebacker. Offensively, the Pirates stand on the running of speed merchant Phil Wilkinson and the powerful plunging of Bozzio.

This running tandem will be sorely tested by the vaunted Novato defense, which prides itself on stopping the rush. "Nobody can run up the middle on us," Novato mentor Al Scott has said. With middle guard Rick Reis and tackles Pat Karinen and Russ Weklych bulwarking the "pit," the defense has lived up to Scott's billing.

HOWEVER, IF Drake penetrates the Hornet "11" to win, all kinds of confusion will reign in the MCAL standings with a likely three-handed knot in the runnerup slot between Novato, San Rafael and the Pirates. Or. . .

While MCAL observers continue conjecturing on these two games, consider San Rafael's demise. The Bulldogs, 1-1, will attempt to battle back into contention by defeating underdog San Marin. Despite the painful setback, the Red and White still possess a superior attack and a good defense. I-J Prep of the Week winner Scott Duncan spearheads a sterling backfield which also includes dandy fullback Mark Farrar, wingback Dave Urquhart and quarterback Dirk Gansloser. Alternate tailback Jim Grigg is an outstanding runner, particularly when coming off the bench.

ALTHOUGH the Bulldog arsenal is impressive, San Marin coach Bob Martin concedes nothing. "We have a good, young defense," he said. When sophomore quarterback Hoza Wright finally lights the Mustang offensive pyroantics, the Mustangs will really come on, MCAL followers contend.

Marin Catholic will attempt to notch its fifth straight win at Tamalpais's expense. The Wildcat's will try to keep the streak alive despite the loss of sensational senior tailback Pat Parnow, out three weeks with a knee injury. The Indians will be seeking their first victory.

OSU FULLBACK

Pac-8 Honors Dave Schilling

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Dave Schilling, Oregon State's 226-pound fullback, carried on 47 of his team's 81 rushing plays and scored three touchdowns in a 24-18 upset of Arizona State.

For this stellar performance Saturday, Schilling has been named offensive player of the week in the Pacific-8 Conference. The two-year starter from Hillsboro, Ore., ranks third among Pac-8 rushers with 632 yards in 143 carries.

Stanford

At the same time, he said starting fullback Hillary Shockley, a 220-pound senior, should be back in the lineup Saturday when the Indians play Washington State at Stanford Stadium. Shockley missed the last three games with an ankle injury.

Ralston said Shockley could have played against USC "but he wasn't ready mentally."

Wide receiver and kick returner Eric Cross is still having hamstring problems. He has missed nearly all of the Indians six games and reinjured the thigh muscle pull when he fielded his first pung against the Trojans.

California

BERKELEY (UPI) —California football coach Ray Willsey says the Bears last-second victories over Oregon State and Washington State in the past two weeks "puts us in a good frame of mind for playing UCLA."

"A Los Angeles game is always big for us ... whether it's against USC or UCLA," said Willsey. The Bears play at UCLA Saturday night but it won't count in the Pacific-8 standings because Cal is on NCAA probation.

Willsey said he was glad to see Ray Wersching boot a 20yard field goal with 64 seconds remaining against WSU. "Wersching had never been in that kind of pressure situation," said Willsey. "I'm sure this will be a benefit to him to know he can pump it through to win a game."

Regarding the overall performance of the Bears, Willsey said, "we're improving each week." The improvement must continue because the Bears tackle USC, Washington, Oregon and Stanford after UCLA.

UCLA

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Coach Pepper Rodgers of UCLA made a change in his first string backfield Monday, moving former fullback Randy Tyler to the slotback position after his fine showing against Arizona.

Tyler was tried at slotback for the first time in the game and Rodgers said his excellent blocking and running led to the change. To fill Tyler's fullback post, Dom Mancini has moved up to second-string behind Gary Campbell.

The Bruins worked more on their passing game Monday with quarterback Scott Henderson throwing from the I formation. UCLA also uses the wishbone formation.

Lamonica Nurses Hurt Leg

OAKLAND (UPI) — Quarterback Daryle Lamonica and wide receiver Rod Sherman of the Oakland Raiders are nursing leg injuries suffered in the 34-10 pasting of the Philadelphia Eagles.

Lamonica said he again stretched a bothersome hamstring in the right thigh during the latter stages of Sunday's comeback win. But he figures he'll be ready to answer the call this Sunday when the Cincinnati Bengals come to Oakland coliseum.

Lamonica sat on the bench in the first half against Philadelphia. However, Coach John Madden asked the Notre Dame graduate if he could go in the final two quarters. His response was affirmative, and the results were four touchdowns in the second half.

Sherman's ankle sprain was diagnosed within minutes by a new $10,000 X-ray machine installed next to the raiders dressing room. Sherman's foot and ankle were X-rayed when he came limping off the field in the first half.

"We learned that Sherman hadn't suffered a broken bone," said Dr. Bob Rosenfeld. However, it is doubtful that Sherman will see action against the Bengals.

Running back Charlie Smith was activated for the Eagles game and was thrown for an eight-yard loss on the final play. Smith probably will see more action against Cincinnati.

The Bengals have beaten the Raiders two of the last three times they've played, both at Cincinnati. But so far this season the defending Central Division champions have been struggling with a 1-4 record.

Dawson Leads Kansas City Win

QB Silences Critics On Passing Display

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — "Dawson's arm is hurting him."

"Dawson can't throw long."

"The Chiefs' offense stinks."

Those are the kind of statements you can hear on any street corner in this pro-football-crazy town.

The nationally televised game between the Kansas City Chiefs and Pittsburgh Steelers began like it was going to be a long night for the Chiefs. Roy Gerela erected a 9-0 Steeler lead with three field goals in the first quarter.

But Dawson and the Chiefs simply exploded in the second period, scoring four touchdowns and running away with a 38-16 victory. In that quarter, Dawson threw three touchdown passes and completed 5-of-8 passes for 170 yards.

Dawson's second quarter completions covered 5, 51, 27, 82, and 5 yards. Otis Taylor caught four of them and rookie Elmo Wright the other.

The 82-yarder was the killer. Ahead 14-9, the Chiefs were backed up to their 10-yard line after incurring a clipping penalty on a punt return.

Dawson back-pedalled to the goal line trying to find a receiver. He side-stepped one tackler and launched an 82-yard strike to Taylor who was pulled down on the Steeler eight-yard line. The pass sailed approximately 70 yards in the air.

Although the game was out of reach for the Steelers, an oddity occurred in the fourth quarter which must have galled them. Quarterback Terry Bradshaw launched a pass to second-year receiver Dave Smith.

But Smith raised his arms in celebration as he neared the goal line and, as the ball skipped free, he tried to spike it in traditional touchdown-scoring fashion. The ball bounced out of the end zone and the Chiefs

49ers Try Squeezing The Ball

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Thoughts of the San Francisco 49ers turned to better offensive execution this week as they began preparing for a trip to St. Louis to battle the Cardinals Sunday.

It's no secret head coach Dick Nolan would like to iron out the wrinkles in a 49ers offense that has scored only two touchdowns in the last two games, both on second-half passes by John Brodie, to Ted Kwalick and Gene Washington in the end zone.

The drills will be aimed at having the 49er ball carriers hang onto the football more tightly. Ken Willard fumbled away the ball twice and Vic Washington once in Sunday's 13-0 shutout of the Chicago Bears. Brodie also threw two interceptions in the game, equalling the 10 he threw all last season.

After hearing that the Washington Redskins blanked the Cards 20-0 Sunday, Nolan said: "Now they'll really be mad when they play us."

Washington (thigh), Kwalick (thigh) and Willard (foot) all came out of the Chicago game hobbling. In addition, safeties Mel Phillips (ankle) and Roosevelt Taylor (neck nerve) are hurting.

BASEBALL AND ANTI-TRUST LAWS

Flood To Get In Court

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court agreed Tuesday to a request by Curt Flood to consider whether organized baseball should be subjected to federal and state antitrust laws.

The Court will schedule arguments this term and follow with a written opinion. Flood, a former St. Louis Cardinal star, claims that baseball's reserve clause system illegally restricts a player to the club that "owns him" for the duration of his career.

A U.S. district court in New York City ruled Aug. 12, 1970 that baseball was exempt from both federal and state antitrust laws.

Flood filed suit against Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn after the Cardinals tried to trade their star centerfielder of 12 years to the Philadelphia Phillies in October, 1969. Flood refused to report to Philadelphia and sat out the 1970 season.

The Phillies later sold their rights to negotiate with Flood under the reserve clause system to the Washington Senators. Flood signed a $100,000 contract to play for the Senators in the 1971 season. However, he quit the team last May and went back to Europe where he had previously gone into business.

The Supreme Court ruled in 1922 in a Baltimore case that professional baseball was exempt from federal antitrust laws.

WYOMING RACE CASE

Gridders Get Legal Loss

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Ewing T. Kerr of Cheyenne, saying the evidence didn't support the charge, Monday ruled that the civil rights of 14 University of Wyoming black athletes were not violated when they were dismissed from the school football team in 1969.

Kerr, who earlier in the year dismissed a $1.1 million suit against then coach Lloyd Eaton, school trustees and the state filed as a result of the dismissal, said the athletes "failed to sustain by a preponderance of the evidence the material allegations of their complaint."

Mel Hamilton, one of the 14 and now a member of the UW Black Student Alliance, said the decision would be appealed to the U.S. 10th Circuit Court of Appeals and to the Supreme Court if necessary.

"I was not surprised he (Kerr) ruled that way," said Hamilton. "In the past we've had Kerr (as a judge) and he doesn't strike me as being a man of fair play. We will try and get a fair ruling somewhere."

Kerr had been ordered by the Circuit Court of Appeals to conduct the second trial to determine if the rights of freedom of speech of the 14 football players were violated when Eaton dismissed them from the team.

The 14 had gone to Eaton's office the day before the BYU football game and told him they wanted to wear black armbands on the field to protest what they said were racial policies of the Mormon Church. Eaton dismissed the players from the squad.

During the hearing, Eaton testified that all members of the team were familiar with his rule that forbade any participation in demonstrations.

The state had claimed that allowing the athletes to wear the armbands would have meant de facto sanction of the protest by the state, since UW was a state-supported university.

"The rights of the plaintiff to freedom of speech as guaranteed by the first amendment cannot be held paramount to the rights of others to practice their religion free from state-supported protest," Kerr's decision said.

"Individual liberties cannot be left completely uncontrolled to clash with similarly asserted liberties of several thousand others," Kerr said.

The decision said "the fullest realization of true religious liberty requires that government neither engage in nor compel religious practices, that it effect no favoritism among sects or between religion and non-religion and that it would work deterrence of no religious belief."

TRADE VIEWED

Russell Faces Old Mates

NEW YORK (UPI)—Gallery gadflies in Madison Square Garden will be watchingall the moves of Cazzie Russell and Jerry Lucas tonight when the Golden State Warriors and New York Knicks collide.

During the summer, the New York Knicks traded Russell to the Golden State Warriors for Lucas to improve the Knicks rebounding strength. This theyai forward has done, to a degree.

Meanwhile, the 6-5 Russell has scored 32 points for the Warriors who humiliated Boston 97-75 but then looked rather shabby in losing 108-93 to the Baltimore Bullets.

So the Knick fans will be eyeing Russell and Lucas closely to determine which team got the better of the trade.

The Knicks haven't been setting the NBA afire. After a pair of opening-season losses, the Knicks were forced into overtime before pulling out a 121-120 win over Cleveland Sunday night.

New York still has its rugged standbys of Willis Reed, Walt Frazier, Dave Debusschere and Bill Bradley to haunt the opposition.

After the knicks, the Warriors play the Cavaliers in Cleveland Wednesday and then open their home season against the Detroit Pistons Saturday night at the Oakland Coliseum.

Becker Fires 73 To Win Tourney

Chuck Becker, bartender at the Duck House in Sausalito, birdied three of the last four holes for a one-over-par 73 to win the Bartenders and Bar Owners golf tournament at San Geronimo National course.

Becker had nines of 32 and 41 to win the low gross honors in the tourney which attracted about 100 players.

Other winners included Charles Lammori, 81-10—71, low net A; Ross Akers, 92-20—72, low net B; Tom Heileg, 116-43—73, low net C, and Joe Scotto, closest to hole-in-one, 12 feet, 3 inches.

Satisfied Clemente Plans Rest

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Roberto Clemente, for obvious reasons calling this his most satisfying season, said Monday he would go home to Puerto Rico and celebrate by doing nothing.

"I've been playing baseball for 20 years," Clemente said. "That is a lot of games. I'm just going to go home and rest and do nothing else."

The Pirates' superstar said he would not even play any winter ball this year but would devote some time to a business he runs, supplying parts to auto body shops.

Clemente, who has won four batting titles and was the National League's Most Valuable Player in 1966, said he was more satisfied with this season than with any other because he was the Pirates' team leader, as well as their leader on the field, in the drive to the World Championship.

"I talk to the players," Clemente said. "There was a lot of pressure on me. I knew I had to come through."

He said the toughest period was in August when Pittsburgh blew a big lead in the NL east by losing 26 of 35 games and he was sidelined with a sore shoulder. But when Clemente returned Aug. 23, the Pirates won 19 of their next 26 games to pull away.

"It was hard for me when I was not playing," Clemente said. "But I told them that when I get back, things will be different. And then we started winning again. But if I not play well, maybe we not win. That is why I say I had a lot of pressure on me."

Clemente, 37, batted .341 during the season, .333 in the playoffs and .414 in the World Series. He was named the outstanding player in the series after the Pirates disposed of the Baltimore Orioles in seven games.

"All you heard from the people in Baltimore was that we didn't stand a chance," Clemente said, opening his mail in the Pirates' nearly-deserted clubhouse and fingering his 1960 World Series ring, a reminder of an earlier championship.

"I don't like to argue about baseball but I even was arguing with the cab driver on the way to the ballpark in Baltimore," he said. "All they kept saying was that Baltimore is the best team in the world and things like that."

Clemente also revealed he had a hand in the improved play of shortstop Jackie Hernandez because Clemente helped get Hernandez to relax. In the series, Hernandez, whose fielding has been criticized frequently, started six of the series games and handled 24 chances without an error.

"For me," Clemente said, "One of the biggest things in the series was the way he played."

Clemente, manager Danny Murtaugh and General Manager Joe L. Brown all plan to leave Pittsburgh Wednesday, heading in different directions.

Clemente will go to New York to receive the auto he won as series MVP, then will fly directly home to Puerto Rico.

Murtaugh will return to his home at Woodlyn, Pa., and spend some time with his family to decide whether he wants to return for another season in 1972.

And Brown will be off to Ireland for a three-week vacation after which he says he will get down to the business of making some improvements in the Pirates for next year.

"Our primary need would be another shortstop because we don't know for sure about Gene Alley's knee," Brown said. "This has nothing to do with Hernandez. We feel that Hernandez can play every day, and we can win, but we just feel we have to carry two shortstops."

The other Pirate need is pitching and, although Brown has talked to the Cleveland Indians about Sam McDowell, the prospects of landing a frontling pitcher in a trade are slim.

"We're not going to break up our club to get even a great pitcher," Brown said.

Gossett Dislikes Coach George Allen

By RALPH CHATOIAN

BRUCE Gossett's feelings toward coach George Allen hasn't changed one bit, even though both have gone their separate ways. Gossett, place kicker for the San Francisco 49ers, was guest speaker at yesterday's luncheon meeting of the 49er Goal Rushers Club at Holiday Inn, San Rafael.

Most of Gossett's question-and-answer session with the 49er boosters was on a humorous vein — that is until former Marin District Attorney Roger P. Garety asked Bruce to compare George Allen, whom Gossett played under when with the Los Angeles Rams, to Dick Nolan, head coach of the 49ers.

"I don't like the man," Gossett said about Allen, now head coach with the Washington Redskins. "I have no respect for the man at all."

Gossett told the boosters about some of the events leading to his trade to San Francisco prior to the 1970 season, a deal in which the Niners sent cornerback Kermit Alexander to the Rams for Gossett, to the pleasure of 99 per cent of the 49er fans.

The blond, 29-year-old Gossett told the Goal Rushers how members of the Rams team were awarded prizes of television sets and clothes for outstanding games, and Allen was the one who decided such things.

"There was one game in which I kicked three field goals and we won, 16-14. I didn't win any of the prizes but that didn't bother me that much," said Gossett. It was later, when Allen came over to me and said, 'Bruce, I know your three field goals won the game, but I decided to give the awards to football players.' I told Allen I would finish out the season but I would never play for him again."

Not long after that he was traded to the 49ers.

According to Gossett, there is just no comparison between Allen and Nolan.

"For Dick Nolan's sake, I hope he does have a Super Bowl champion team," said Gossett. "If anyone deserves to win, he does. He treats all of us as equals, regardless of where we play. He treats us as human beings, not pieces of machinery."

One of the first questions asked Gossett was about the wind and its effect on his kicking in Candlestick Park.

"The wind does not seem as great as it was at Kezar at times, but at least there you knew what direction it was coming from. At Candlestick it keeps changing."

Another questioner wanted to know why he squeezed the ball before placing it on the tee before his field goal tries.

"Well," he smiled, "when I was a kid I saw Lou Groza do it on television, so now I do it, too."

The 6-foot, 228-pound Gossett told the 65 Goal Rushers that when he broke into football with the Rams in 1964, he wanted to show he wasn't like other kickers, that he could be tough and make tackles.

"It was my first game as a pro and it was against the Lions. I kicked off and started running down the field to try to make the tackle. No. 76, Roger Brown, blocked me on the right side and I went up in the air. Just then No. 71, Alex Karras, hit me from the left. Then I heard Karras say, 'Hey, Roger! Make a wish!' "

Gossett threw out some kind words on 49er taxi-squad quarterback Joe Reed from Mississippi State, and somehow Steve Spurrier, backup man for John Brodie, was lost in the end zone or somewhere.

"I have a lot of confidence in Joe Reed," said Gossett. "Joe is going to be an excellent passer, he has a magnificent arm. I feel when John retires we have a man to take over." And he wasn't talking about Spurrier.

When asked to name his choice for most underrated 49er, Gossett said center Forrest Blue, "who does all the centering, for punts, field goals, and is one of the first ones to get downfield under punts."

And commenting on 49er rookie punter Jim McCann who is averaging better than 43 yards per punt, Gossett said, "McCann can lead the league on his bad ones. He kicks that ball so far and so high.He's only 165 pounds but I watch him kick 57-yarders in practice, with the wind and against it."

Mets Peddle Shamsky To Cards For Taylor

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Mets Monday traded outfielder Art Shamsky and three minor league pitchers to the St. Louis Cardinals in return for utility man Jim Beauchamp, reliever Chuck Taylor and two minor leaguers.

Shamsky, 30, has been hampered by a chronic back problem the past three seasons and only played in 68 games in 1970, hitting .185.

The Mets also gave up right-hander pitcher Jim Bibby, who won 15 games this year at Tidewater in the International League. The Cardinals also got lefthanders Rich Folkers, 25, and Charley Hudson, 22. Folkers was 7-11 at Tidewater while Hudson had a 1-2 record.

Bullets' Guard Duo Traded

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The Philadelphia 76ers traded strength for numbers Monday in a three guard deal that sent veteran guard Archie Clark to the Baltimore Bullets for guards Kevin Loughery and Fred Carter.

Don Dejardin, general manager of the Philadelphia team, said the Bullets also gained the rights to the 76ers No. 2 draft choice in 1973 plus an undisclosed amount of cash.

In Clark, the Blets gain a stronger defensive guard to pair with Earl "the pearl" Mnroe. Clark, 30, also ranked as No. 2 scorer for Philadelphia last year with a 21.3 average and 1,746 point total.

He came to the 76ers from Los Angeles in 1968 in a four player trade that saw Wilt Chamberlain go to the Lakers.

Loughery, 31, is a 10-year NBA veteran who tallied at least 1,000 points a season during his seven years with Baltimore. The 6-foot-3 former St. John's guard came to the Bullets in 1963 in a trade with the Detroit Pistons.

He relies on hard-driving layins and off-balance jump shots, but was hampered by injuries last season that brought his average down to 15.1 and total points to 1,237.

Carter, 26, comes back to his hometown in the deal. The Mount St. Mery's graduate moved from forward to guard when he came to the Bullets. Last season he tallied 799 points for a 10-4 average.

Philadelphia coach Jack Ramsey said Loughery is "one of the better outside shooters from the guard position in the game." He classified Carter as a "young, quick, dynamic type of player who can do an outstanding job on bigger guards."

The trade gives the 76ers six guards—including holdout Wally Jones.

"Duncan's A Winner," Says Coach

By RON LENT

"He's a winner," San Rafael High School football coach Bob Muster proclaimed, referring to his two-time All-Marin County Athletic League halfback Scott Duncan.

The 5-foot-10, 165-pound senior showed why he merited these honors by gaining 187 yards in 23 carries for a gaudy 8.1 average. This effort earned him the Independent-Journal Prep of the Week award.

When informed of Duncan's achievement, Muster commented: "He deserves it. He is a great competitor and a great kid."

APPARENTLY DUNCAN'S teachers agree, if a 3.0 grade point average is any indication. Though excelling in his courses, the shifty halfback has not found his classroom calling. "I don't know what I'll major in in college, or what school I'll go to."

Duncan expressed preference for West Coast universities and listed psychology, anthropology and English as topics of scholastic interest.

"But I don't know if I want to major in any of them in college," he added. Despite the uncertainty of picking a major, Duncan has some schools in mind, such as Notre Dame, Stanford, Navy and the University of Southern California. All four schools sent him questionnaires or "feelers" but only "New Mexico has given me a definite offer," he intimated.

BEFORE MAKING up his mind on any of this, the curly-haired athlete wants to concentrate "on winning the football championship and my courses."

The emphasis on the academic aspects reflect parental influence, he continued, "because my parents just don't want me to be a jock.

"They (Mr. and Mrs. Richard Duncan) want me to go to college, but they leave the sports issue up to me. They've always encouraged me and watched me play. But that's it, no pressure."

This "no pressure" approach has produced results, both in the classroom and on the field. When playing, Duncan admitted "I enjoy the contact.

SCOTT DUNCAN
Rushing sensation

"I TRY TO run around tacklers. But, if necessary, I'll lower my head and drive for three or four more yards." This type of effort netted him 11 touchdowns and 856 yards as a sophomore and another 830 yards plus 13 tallies while a junior.

Though not blessed with blazing speed, Duncan compensates with great quickness. "He starts off into the hole fast. He then knows where the goal line is and goes after it," Muster interjected.

Duncan's statistics apparently verify Muster's theory. In two league games to date, he has amassed three touchdowns and 286 yards on 36 tries for an 8.6 clip.

MANY OBSERVERS attribute Duncan's prowess to the belief "he is simply too strong for most of the other boys;" but Duncan denied this, noting "I've never been very big physically.

"In fact," he confided, "I'd like to put on 20 pounds to play college ball. I'm not big enough to be a college halfback." Regardless of the future, Duncan voiced gratitude for the present and, particularly for Muster's "great coaching knowledge. He's really helped me out. He's been like a father to me."

Muster has tutored his star through three years of competition, which included a stunning 210-yard showing against the eventual champions Terra Linda in 1969. However, a last second field goal precluded a Bulldog upset.

DUNCAN WAS no stranger to success even as a seventh grader on the Palo Alto Knights Pop Warner football team. "But I was too big as an eighth grader. That was the only time that ever happened, so I had to wait until I had moved up here with my family as a freshman."

"We won the championship that year," he recalled.

Thus, in all but his sophomore year, Scott Duncan has been associated with only winning teams; no wonder his coaching staff considers him a winner.

Gilbert Leads Hockey Scorers; Seal Third

MONTREAL (UPI) —A four assist performance has vaulted Rod Gilbert into the top spot among National Hockey League scorers, making him the first member of the New York Rangers to head the list in nine years.

Gilbert, off to the fastest start in his 10-year career, earned his four assists in Sunday night's 8-4 victory over Montreal and he now has a total of 11 points —including a league-high eight assists —in five games.

The last Ranger to lead the weekly scoring list was Andy Bathgate on Jan. 17, 1963.

High Scoring Seals Host Montreal Tomorrow

OAKLAND (UPI) —It may take some terrific goaltending to shut out the California Golden Seals this season.

Though the Seals netminders have allowed 25 goals in five games, the Seals offense has generated 19 goals. Flashy Bobby Sheehan of the Seals is tied for the National Hockey League lead with Yvan Cournoyer of Montreal in goals scored with five. Sheehan has seven points to rank third in scoring along with New York's Vic Hadfield and Jean Ratelle.

The Seals, now 0-3-2, try for their first win at home against Montreal Wednesday night.

At Long Last I Got A Buck

By AL GIDDINGS

LITCHFIELD, Lassen County — Wife Mary and I left Honey Lake after our first day duck hunt. We were heading for the mountains near Ravendale, Lassen County, to join Howard Leach and Jack Schaub at their buck camp.

Of course they were out after bucks when we arrived, though Schaub's two boys, Mike and Ron were in camp. Mike is 12, Ron is 10; both were worn out from two days hiking with their dad while he hunted, so today they had slept in. I questioned them about Leach's cooking. Both answered, "It's usually greasy and burnt, but if you're hungry it's all right. But you've gotta be real hungry."

About 6 p.m., the hunters rolled in with a four-pointer and six ducks! Schaub's two older boys were the lucky ones, so the camp was a happy one that night.

On Monday, Mary had to go home for the week for some post office work, and all the kids headed for home too. That left just Leach, Schaub and me in camp. We resupplied the camp, got some gas and water and went for a short duck hunt, picking up two gadwalls and a widgeon near the camp. Then we planned Tuesday's hunt over a dinner of liver and onions and three of my ducks (the teal) from Honey Lake. It was great.

I'm usually the last up in the morning so just for kicks, though the alarm was set for 5 o'clock, I got up at 4:30 a.m. This created a sensation! We were away and hunting by 6:30 a.m. We each took a backpack with crackers, cheese, sardines, candy bars, water, sodas, a skinning knife, saw, deer sack and some light rope. Sounds like a great amount, but really it isn't. The entire load probably weighed about 10 pounds, or less.

With Sunday and Monday as rest days and with a week or so of hiking already under our belts, all of us were anxious to go. We hunted about four hours on one of the mountains in the area; I had just reached the top when a pretty good three-pointer busted out of some sage and maghogany brush. It was really an easy shot. Ha! — It took me 12 days to get it. At almost the same time, Howard jumped two and he had his — a four-pointer — probably a little smaller than mine. He said the other was a real trophy. It was about 11 a.m., so we ate lunch, each in our own area. Schaub ran back and forth between us while we each skinned out, de-horned and halved our bucks. One half of my buck went on my pack, Schaub took the second half. Leach decided to take a half of his some distance down, then return for the second half.

It was hot as blazes, and every juniper tree enroute that afforded some shade was a blessing. Schaub hiked directly to the car, while Leach and I struggled along. Eventually, Schaub came back taking the odd half, then it was a straight go from there. We reached the car at 6 p.m., dog tired, but happy.

Back at camp, Leach cooked a stew, then decided to make a cake. Schaub, not to be outdone, decided to make biscuits. It was like being with the "Odd Couple," except that there were two ' 'odds'' in this case. You ladies would never believe it. Leach made up a regular cake mix in a cake pan, then he put this in a large Dutch oven he always brings along. He put 3 or 4 small stones on the bottom of the Dutch oven, set the cake pan on top, then covered it. The cake was beautiful!

Schaub did the same thing with the biscuit dough, except for shaping the dough into biscuits and they also were beautiful. With this, we had liver and onions, potatoes and salad. Now you can't beat that. We put butter and blackberry jam on the biscuits and ate the cake with some high mountain coffee. Leach also talked me into having a couple of pre-dinner drinks to celebrate our good luck and good fellowship. It was quite an evening. In the days after that, we took a few rides, shot a few mallards, and in general, just took it easy. Schaub gave it a go one day for his buck, but didn't connect.

On Friday those two miserable so and so's Leach and Schaub started going home. Yep, they were leaving me up here all by myself. It was raining and snowing to beat the band. I said, "this is not for me, take me to Litchfield, to the Seven Acres Motel." As they were pulling out, I grabbed my guns, binoculars, a suitcase and left the camp with my tent up and the camp in all it's glory! Mary had taken the car home so I was without wheels. I think Leach was giving me the business, probably in return for one column I worte about him a while back. They'd have loved leaving me in the mountains with no car, no stove, and the snow bombing me and the camp! I just called Mary at home, and she's on the way! We saw that one buck — the real trophy — that she might just get this week! And I just had a bath, a shave and a cheeseburger! Let it snow!

Al Woodard, Gilman Questioned In Probe

Gilman would not comment after his appearance, but Woodard said the jury asked him if he knew of any blacklisting of players by the 26-team league.

Both Jimmy Jones and Mike Rae did the throwing to receivers Lynn Swann, Edesel Garrison and Mike Morgan.

Tailback Sam Cunningham was in uniform but did not participate in the drill because of bruises he suffered in the Stanford game. Cunningham said he would be ready for Saturday's game. Two other injured backs, Chuck Hinton and Lou Harris, took part in the workout. Harris wore a bandage on his knee but was able to run.

Oregon

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI)—Oregon's Webfoots held a brief nopads workout Monday after viewing films of their 23-21 Pac-8 win over Washington.

The team spent most of the afternoon on conditioning. The offense went over its passing game with quarterback Dan Fouts at the helm.

Oregon State

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI)— Oregon State coach Dee Andros made a couple of lineup changes Monday in preparation for the Beavers' game against Washington in Seattle Saturday.

He returned tackle Chris Veit to his starting position on offense and moved safety Joe Davis ahead of Jim Lilly.

Also returning to the starting defensive unit Monday was tackle Scott Woods.

Washington State

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI)— Washington State worked for 90 minutes Monday in shoulder pads and sweat clothes in preparation for Saturday's Pacific 8 Conference game with league leading Stanford at Palo Alto.

Coach Jim Sweeney said his charges would have to play again this week without the services of either safety Harry Thompson or fullback Ken Grandberry. Both were injured two weeks ago and missed the Cal game this past Saturday.

"I thought Thompson would be ready, but now it looks as though he may be out longer," Sweeney said.

Amazing Bing Recovering Fast

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)— Dave Bing is amazing.

Here is a man who should have been worried to death about his pro basketball career Monday, even after doctors told him the surgery to reattach his retina did its job and Bing's vision should return, in time, to near normal.

But all the star guard for the Detroit Pistons could think about was the condition of his good friend Lem Barney, who plays defensive cornerback for the Detroit Lions.

Barney had suffered a pulled groin muscle Sunday while the Lions were beating the Houston Oilers, 31-7, and Bing had heard he'd been taken to a Detroit hospital for possible internal hemorrhaging.

"Can I call him?" Bing leaned over and whispered to a friend who was sitting next to the University Hospital bed the basketball player has been using quite a bit ever since his eye operation Friday.

The look of concern on Bing's face told you far more about the quality of this man than even the classy way he conducted himself, knowing as he did there is an element of doubt about his ever playing pro basketball again.

"People don't realize how lucky they are, just to have sight," said Bing, who knows it now because his wife had to lead him around by the hand for 12 hours after the operation because his eyes were both covered to prevent eye movement.

"It may be months before we know what Mr. Bing's residual vision will be in the eye," said Dr. Morton Cox, who headed the three physician team which performed the cyrosurgery on the star guard's right eye.

"Even though the reattachment was successful, some irreversible tissue damage occurs on injury," Dr. Cox said. He said the retina was "intact."

"Instead of them having to put it in place, it flopped back by itself," Bing said the doctors told him about the operation.

"Even though the operation was a success," the 27-year-old all-time scoring and assists leader of the Pistons said, "they haven't given me any indication of when I'll get my sight back.

"Saturday, a man came up — his daughter is in the hospital for something — who had the same," Bing said. "He said within two or three days he was seeing out of his eye."

Bing is making such quick progress he's being allowed to go home before the weekend, rather than the two or three week stay originally planned for him.

"They say there's no reason why I can't come all the way back. There's no reason for me not to be optimistic."

The lithe clutch man in Detroit's offense admitted to being worried but feels he was more confused than anything else.

"It really took me by surprise," he said. "One doctor told me it would clear up by itself within 48 hours...then another said if no operation was performed I'd lose the sight in the eye."

Bing has 20-40 vision in his left eye, the result of falling on a nail when he was five years old. Now, if he plays again, and this seems likely, Bing will have to wear contact lenses.

Nobody who knows him doubts he will come back. Because courage can be spelled the usual way — and D-a-v-e B-i-n-g.

Market's Decline Speeds Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market decline accelerated during the second hour of trading today, with leading market averages in reverse gear for the fifth consecutive session.

Selected stocks were hit by some unfavorable third quarter earnings statements, but in general corporate earnings for this period provided a mixed bag for investors.

Generally weighing on the market were the fuzziness of Phase Two of the administration's economic program, and its eventual effect on corporate profits.

Among the most active Amex issues were STP Corp. down more than 2 on around 50,000 shares, and Champion Home Builders down a point on 35,000 shares.

On the Big Board, Studebaker-Worthington fell another 3⅛ after tumbling 6¾ Monday. The firm reported lower third quarter earnings last week.

Stocks down a point or so included Superior Oil, Wrigley, UAL Inc., American Airlines, Control Data, Honeywell, Texas Instruments, and Xerox. The last reported a higher third quarter net.

Steels, motors and chemicals generally surrendered fractions.

NO RAIN IN SIGHT—YET

Bathed in sunshine, Mount Tamalpais, Corte Madera Creek and a portion of the Ross Valley were the scene of tranquility today. But, much like last year, the weatherman was wary of things to come. Last Oct. 20, the first major storm of the season dumped 1.04 inches on Marin. This year, the National Weather Service predicts a 40 per cent chance of rain overnight and a 20 per cent chance tomorrow, indicating history may repeat itself.

Pleasure Faire Promoters Clear A Zoning Hurdle

Charges Of Favoritism Hurled By Ired Lucas Valley Residents

By WAT TAKESHITA

Operators of the Renaissance Pleasure Faire, who want to establish an "Old English Village" in Lucas Valley, cleared their first hurdle yesterday over the solid opposition of about 70 residents who packed a hearing at the Civic Center.

Emotionally charged residents complained that the proposed Renaissance Centre is a blatantly commercial enterprise masquerading as a cultural undertaking.

When Deputy Zoning Administrator Harvey E. Bragdon approved a use permit with a series of conditions on parking and traffic control, opponents launched a personal attack on Bragdon, accusing him of favoring Ronald and Phyllis Patterson over the 2,200 residents who signed petitions or voiced their protests.

Ronald H. Marinoff, Lucas Valley Homeowners Association spokesman and a Marinwood Fire Department battalion chief, said that on weekends only one regular fireman is on duty and that the department depends on volunteers who answer calls in private vehicles. With the Pleasure Faire drawing 100,000 persons, Marinoff demanded to know how volunteers would respond to fires.

"God forbid that any tragedy should occur, because if it does, it's gonna rest squarely on your shoulders," he told Bragdon.

Others in the audience began shouting at Bragdon from all sides. They asked why he was favoring the Pattersons when 2,200 residents of the immediate area were begging him not to issue the permit. "Whose interest do you weigh?" asked Calvin B. Colt of Mount Shasta Drive. "The three developers or 3,000 residents?"

Bragdon replied that the Pattersons will be required to meet health and safety standards laid down by state and county officials, provide for adequate parking, and pay for professional patrolmen to act as traffic guides at every intersection along Lucas Valley Road during the Pleasure Faire.

Having public patrolmen or county officials hired by private developers is unethical, Marinoff said. "We shouldn't go in for rent-a-cop, rent-a-sanitarian, or rent-a-fireman."

Bragdon said the use permit also is conditioned on the county approving a rezoning of the property, the 1,100-acre Grady Ranch east of Big Rock. The rezoning hearing is scheduled for Nov. 1 before the Marin County Planning Commission.

If the county rejects the rezoning, then the use permit would be null and void, Bragdon said.

Several persons accused Bragdon of "buck passing."

Paul Straube of 17 Mount Lassen Drive charged that Bragdon had appeared at the hearing with a preconceived notion in favor of the Pattersons and against the wishes of 2,200 persons.

Fire Chief Gaylord E. Bonfield warned that traffic would choke the Lucas Valley turnoff from Highway 101 and the Miller Creek and Las Gallinas Avenue turnoffs. Access to homes would be jeoparadized because Lucas Valley Road is the only access, the chief said.

Marinoff introduced letters from the California Highway Patrol, the Division of Environmental Control and Deputy Zoning Administrator Ralph D. Cairns to back up his contention that the Pleasure Faire of past years caused traffic and health problems.

These charges were rejected by Mr. and Mrs. Patterson, represented by attorney Hadden W. Roth. They said they have abided by and will abide by all requirements on offstreet parking and traffic control. The

Council Approves Townhouse Units

By C. P. McCARTHY

The San Rafael City Council last night approved plans for a 107-unit townhouse development on an extension of Manuel T. Freitas Parkway, despite bitter opposition by neighbors of the proposed development. (Other San Rafael City Council stories, page 27.)

Following a lengthy hearing, the council voted 4-1 to approve the plan exactly as it had indicated it would following a previous hearing Oct. 4.

Approval of the proposal bogged down that night when the council questioned plans to make the Freitas Parkway extension four lanes.

The council referred the proposal back to the planning commission with instructions to revise the road extension plans to two lanes, but still require the developer, International Clearing Corp. of San Francisco, to give the city the same 48-foot right-of-way approved for the four lanes.

The planning commission Oct. 12 voted to send back to the council its original recommendation for the 48-foot right-of-way, with the suggestion that it be striped only for two lanes until future traffic demands require four lanes.

With the recommendation it wanted in its hands, the council

Hearing Into Angela Venue Change Opens

By MARY LEYDECKER

A Berkeley professor took the stand in Marin Superior Court today to describe a six-county poll he took which led him to the conclusion that San Franciscans are less prejudiced against Angela Davis than Marin residents.

Jeffery Paige, a sociology professor at the University of California, testified in connection with Miss Davis's request that her case be moved to San Francisco from Marin.

Albert W. Harris Jr., the assistant attorney general prosecuting the case, said today that while he did not oppose a change of venue from Marin County, he did oppose Miss Davis's request for a specific county.

Harris said he did not believe that the motion for a transfer to San Francisco only, was a legal one.

Paige said his survey of Marin, San Francisco, Alameda, San Mateo, Sacramento and Santa Clara counties showed that while interest in the Davis case is high in all the counties, it is much greater in Marin.

He said that 75 per cent of the Marin residents interviewed said they had discussed the case with friends or relatives, while in the other counties, 50 per cent said they had.

Japan Hits One Plan To Oust Taiwan

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Japan said today the move to expel Nationalist China from the United Nations on a simple majority vote would be irresponsible because it ignores the real situation in the Far East.

Former Japanese Foreign Minister Kiichi Aichi spoke on the second day of the China debate as pro-Peking and proTaiwan forces scrambled for a dozen undecided votes.

Nationalist Chinese diplomats expressed confidence the U.N. seat would be saved by a margin of five or six votes. Sources close to the U.S. state department talked in terms of a three or four-vote victory margin.

Aichi pointed out that most countries in Asia and the Pacific area supported U.S. resolutions calling for the seating of Communist China in both the Assembly and tte Security Council while requiring a two-thirds vote for approval of Peking's demand for the expulsion of Taiwan.

The Albanian resolution containing Peking's demand, Aichi said, was "unreasonable and preemptory."

"Quite frankly, to adopt the Albanian resolution by a simple majority would be, in our considered view, an irresponsible attitude not befitting the high prestige and noble obligation of our world organization," said Aichi.

Tiburon Annex Vote Is Light To Moderate

Light to moderate turnouts were reported this morning at three polls where residents of Strawberry, Bel Aire, Eagle Rock and Bayview Heights were voting on whether to annex to Tiburon.

At 11 a.m., precinct workers reported approximately 335 voters had cast ballots. There are 1,889 registered voters.

Turnout was heaviest at Strawberry Point School where 175 out of the precinct's 900 voters had cast ballots. At Bel Aire, 97 out of 672 had voted, while 63 out of 379 had cast ballots at the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, a turnout a precinct worker called "light."

Polls will remain open until 8 p.m.

Baar Hits Communal Living Among Teens

The chairman of the Marin County supervisors and members of the juvenile delinquency prevention commission split sharlpy today on the question of communal living as a form of delinquency.

Chairman Louis H. Baar said that one of his chief concerns in Marin today is the younger people "getting into the hip culture," blowing their minds with drugs, and unable to get out of the situation.

"It does not necessarily follow that there is any more delinquency in communes than among kids from good families who run in packs," said Supervisor Michael Wornum.

Other supervisors remained silent on the issue.

"The assumption is that to be hip is to be delinquent, and I don't think that is true at all," said Gary T. Giacomini, a member of the delinquency commission.

Commissioner Richard Oesterman also disagreed with Baar. "I don't think living in sin is being delinquent. Living together without benefit of marriage doesn't mean a G.D. thing. Why, I lived in France for nine years without being married."

Commissioner Gerald Green said the older generation must realize that a new life style exists, and communication must be opened up with youth.

Baar explained that the problem young people in communes is that they become involved with drugs and end up on county general relief with no sense of direction.

"Kids are coming from all over the country, obsessed with

25,000-Acre Bolinas State Park Is Proposed

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Creation of a 25,140-acre Bolinas Lagoon State Park and reconstruction of a "major" Indian village in Point Reyes National Seashore have been recommended in a new state plan.

The new state park would include extensive upland areas as well as the lagoon.

The park would mean return to the state of the lagoon, which came under county jurisdiction two years ago after a bitter fight to preserve the lagoon from development. Of the 25,140 acres envisioned in the new state park, about 900 acres are held by the county in the lagoon under its state grant.

The recommendations came in the Department of Parks and Recreation's Coastline Preservation and Recreation Plan. A broad outline of its provisions was released after Democratic legislators leaked it to newsmen.

The plan called for a $1 billion program to save the endangered coastline, and preliminary details became available today.

Department officials stressed that the aim of the park would be to preserve the lagoon and adjacent coastline, not to provide for intensive recreational use.

The plan, however, designated 702 of the 8,904 acres on land as suitable for development for public recreation. These 702 acres would be in upland areas away from the lagoon.

The plan did not estimate the cost of each recommended park project, instead lumping their total cost in the $1 billion figure.

Kosygin Engulfed By Heavy Guard

Kosygin, unhurt by the incident Monday, was encircled by a bolstered force of some 10 bodyguards as he arrived at the parlaiment buidling for his second round of talks with Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

Nixon Asks Economic Extensions

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon sent Congress legislation today to extend for a year his authority to control wages and prices, give him standby power to control interest rates, and establish rules for the second phase of his economic program.

Administration officials emphasized, however, that Nixon has authority under existing laws to conduct his program of economic controls at least until April 30, 1972.

The proposed legislation would add a $2,500 civil penalty for violation of stabilization rules. Present law provides for a criminal fine of $5,000, but government lawyers generally agree that civil court actions are easier to win than criminal cases.

The Economic Stabilization Act of 1970, used by Nixon in imposing the current 90-day wage-price-rent freeze and in establishing policy for the period after the freeze ends Nov. 13, expires April 30.

The administration bill would extend the act until April 30, 1973, and would rewrite many of the details of the law.

The bill would create a new Temporary Court of Appeals consisting of three or more federal district or circuit court judges, designated by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, to handle appeals from decisions of the Pay Board and Price Commission.

Officials said actions involving decisions of the pay or price panels would first go through a federal district court and then could be appealed to the temporary court. Decisions of the

Dissident Mill Valley Parent Air Gripes

By GEORGE NEVIN

Parents objecting to the "trend of education" in Mill Valley School District got their first chance to voice their concern in public last night — and won unexpected support.

Backing the dissident parents were many who said they approved of what were called "innovative" and "experimental" programs in the district but didn't wish to force their views on others.

It had been feared by some that the special meeting — called to explore points raised by 1,233 persons who signed a petition presented to the board Sept. 27 — would lapse into emotional statements and personal charges.

But the three-hour session, attended by more than 500 persons who filled Ruby Scott Auditorium at Tamalpais High School, was calm and constructive.

It ended on a postive note when Attorney Douglas P. Ferguson, of 76 Eldridge Avenue, called on all parents in the district — whether supporting or opposing innovation — to consider giving the dissatisfied parents programs to their liking.

Another special meeting was set for 8 p.m. Nov. 4 at the auditorium for discussion of how to provide alternative choices to the petitioners.

Specific concerns of parents, alluded to at tow previous board meetings and in the petition but never clearly stated, were discussed for the first time last night.

James F. Henthorne, of 296 Lovell Avenue, read off seven items which he said typified the complaints of the petitioners. They included:

Wrongful deemphasis of academic achievement and proper behavior in the school; a credibility gap among parents, teachers and administrators; an atmosphere of distrust, fear and lack of confidence; lack of evaluation of school personnel;

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Agnew Reception

GARGAGLIANOI, Greece (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew was almost mobbed by friendly villagers today as he visited his father's birthplace to unveil a plaque commemorating Agnew's Greek inheritance.

The crowds pulled and shook his hands, shouting "Agnew! Agnew!" Some were holding signs saying "Welcome, Mr. Agnew" and "Long Live Agnew Who is Back with Us." Many school children wearing national costume waved the American flag.

The vice president is paying his first visit to Greece. The visit included three days as the official guest of the government, followed by a five-day private visit to the countryside and islands.

The vice president's father, Theofaras Anagnostopoulos, emigrated to the United States in 1906. He later changed the family name.

Drug Warning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Adminstration (FDA) today recommended new precautions in the use of a tuberculosis drug linked with the deaths of two Capitol Hill newsmen last year.

The precautions, spelled out in a bulletin mailed to the nation's 335,000 physicians, apparently were not observed when the U.S. Public Health Service gave the drug Isoniazid, to 2,321 congressmen and Capitol hill workers last year. Nineteen contracted hepatitis and two, both newsmen died.

The drug program was curtailed after Timothy Bleck, 30, a St. Louis Post-Dispatch reporter, and Robert L. Stuckey, 38, WTOP-TV television sound man, died of liver disease.

Kissinger Stop

AGANA, Guam (UPI) — Presidential foreign policy adviser Henry Kissinger today arrived in Guam — the last stop before he goes to mainland China to prepare the way for President Nixon's forthcoming trip to Peking.

He and his aides took off in a presidential Jet Monday afternoon after a relaxing stay in Hawaii.

Kissinger and his aides planned to stay overnight in Guam, then to fly to Shanghai and Peking Wednesday, Asian time.

Connally Picked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has selected Treasury Secretary John B. Connally Jr. instead of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew as his personal representative to South Vietnam and Tokyo in two weeks, according to administration sources.

Precise details were not disclosed on the Connally trip to Saigon Oct. 31 for the inauguration of President Nguyen Van Thieu and to Japan about Nov. 7 for top-level economic talks.

There was the possibility that the only Democrat in the Nixon Cabinet would make several stops between Saigon and Tokyo.

'Grave' Situation

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi today called the military buildup on both sides of the border between India and Pakistan a "grave" development and said she was "prepared to meet anybody" to solve the problem.

Pakistani and Indian troops Sunday massed along the West Pakistan border after tensions in the area increased sharply over the East Pakistan refugee problem. Nearly 9.5 million war refugees have fled to India, and Pakistani leaders charged that India will not permit them to return.

"I am prepared to meet anybody if thereby something is solved," Mrs. Gandhi said in a news conference today.

Sidesteps Nominee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon went to one of the first plays ever written about women's lib last night, but refused to say whether he will nominate a woman for the Supreme Court.

"I won't get into that argument," Nixon told reporters as he browsed in the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts after the dedication of the Eisenhower Theater.

"I really have not thought of it in that way women's lib," Nixon said of the play, Henrik Ibsen's "A Doll's House."

"It's a play not limited to women versus man . . . ," Nixon said. "It's about life generally. Some individuals are totally unconcerned with appearances, others are concerned with realities.

"More often than not, the woman is in this position, but it could have been the other way."

Thief Plunges 19 Stories In His Getaway

NEW YORK (UPI)—A man who beat and robbed an elderly guest at the exclusive St. Moritz Hotel Monday climbed out of the hotel window apparently thinking there was a window ledge to use in his escape.

There was no ledge and the robber fell 19 floors to his death.

Police said the man followed Marcus Cohen, 72, from the lobby of the hotel, located on the south side of Central Park, up to Cohen's room.

There Cohen was robbed of $3,400 and beaten with a lead pipe. Police said 30 stitches were required to close Cohen's head wounds.

The man fell to the pavement in front of the hotel and died instantly, police said. A passerby found a blood-soaked roll of $100 bills and turned them over to police.

'Second Gun' Theory In Killing Of Robert Kennedy Thrown Out

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A five-month investigation into the case of Sirhan Sirhan has confirmed that the condemned assassin acted alone when Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was killed, District Attorney Joseph P. Busch Jr. said Monday.

Busch said a "second gun" theory was made by "people who are trying to make something out of nothing. You will never put and end to the theories of people who think there were two guns."

At a Hall of Justice news conference, Busch said, "We are satisfied Sirhan Bishara Sirhan killed Sen. Robert Kennedy and only he alone is the murderer."

The controversy was touched off by Barbara W. Blehr, an attorney who attempted to block a promotion of Dewayne Wolfer, the criminologist who headed the ballistics investigation in the Kennedy assassination.

It was alleged by Miss Blehr and later in a lawsuit by freelance writer Theodore Charach that Wolfer violated standard procedures in testing the .22-caliber revolver used by Sirhan to kill Kennedy at the Ambassador Hotel.

They said an independent investigation indicated another gun may have been used in the melee in the hotel pantry moments after Kennedy claimed victory in the 1968 California presidential primary.

Busch, who was appointed district attorney after the case was closed and Sirhan was sentenced to death, said his investigation revealed that Wolfer had made only a clerical error in labeling the trial exhibit envelope containing three bullets test fired by him from the gun that was wrenched from Sirhan's hand.

"We have reached the conclusion that the charges made against Mr. Wolfer are untrue," Busch said. "Our findings show he did not violate proper ballistics procedures in the Sirhan trial.

"The mislabeled envelope in no way detracts from the salient reality that the murder verdict returned was just and correct," the district attorney said.

Busch said Wolfer earlier positively identified the Sirhan gun as the murder weapon by comparing bullets test fired from it with a bullet removed from Kennedy's body.

Then, a second series of tests were carried out after the original murder weapon had been entered into evidence and was not available.

Wolfer borrowed an identical model of the weapon, an IvarJohnson Cadet revolver, from the police department property division, and used it to verify sound characteristics and muzzle distances.

The mislabeled envelope had the substitute gun's serial number on it, but the package contained three bullets test fired from Sirhan's gun, Busch explained.

The district attorney said it was a "serious" clerical error only because it resulted in another investigation.

Memory-Blocking Drug May Be In Use By 1984

STANFORD (UPI) —By 1984 a drug will be produced which will block a person's memory of a "particularly traumatic experience that would best be forgotten," a researcher predicted Monday.

Dr. Leo E. Hollister, Palo Alto Veterans Administration Hospital psychiatrist, also forecast a drug that would stimulate a failing memory.

The memory-blocking drug, he added, will be administered by doctors and possibly by ambulance stewards.

Dr. Hollister's talk was given at a Stanford University sponsored symposium on drugs and drug abuses.

U.S. Jet Kills 18 S. Viets

SAIGON (UPI)—A U.S. jet fighter-bomber mistakenly killed 18 South Vietnamese paratroopers helping defend American Fire Base Pace near the Cambodian border, U.S. spokesmen said today. It was the worst combat accident in more than seven months.

The paratroopers were spotted in the open Monday by a Forward Air Controller (FAC) who mistook them for Communist troops. He called in two A37 Dragonfly jets and one of them laid a pair of 500 pound bombs on the paratroop position, killing 18, wounding seven seriously and a number of others less seriously.

CLEARANCE

Spokesmen said the FAC called for and got a clearance for the air strike from the Vietnamese paratroop commander at Thien Ngon Fire Base about five miles to the south. He marked the paratroop position with a smoke rocket.

One Dragonfly dropped its bombs but the other was told to cancel the mission after a frantic radio message from the ground.

Pace, about 80 miles northwest of Saigon, has been under siege for several weeks. U.S. military sources in Tay Ninh told UPI correspondent Don Davis that a direct hit from incoming Communist fire knocked out one of the four American longrange field guns there. A second fieldgun was out of commission because its recoil buffer was not working.

UNDERSTRENGTH

The U.S. command has been trying to replace the 175 mm and eight-inch cannon but has been prevented by Communist pressure. As result, it said, the U.S. artillery battery there has been reduced from 90 men to 60. An understrength U.S. infantry company is still participating in defense of the base.

Gen. Nguyen Van Minh, the South Vietnamese commander in the area, told Davis and UPI correspondent Ken Braddick that fresh South Vietnamese units were being sent in as reinforcements. But he said the Communists were dug into such deep bunkers that even B52 strikes could not dislodge them

Thieu's Election Won't Be Probed

SAIGON (UPI) — The South Vietnamese Senate voted down today a move to investigate the results of President Nguyen Van Thieu's unopposed reelection. Rampaging students burned four cars and trucks and smashed a fifth in continuing protest demonstrations.

The Senate voted 37-18 against the proposal to investigate the 94.8 per cent margin in favor of Thieu in the Oct. 3 elections, although individual senators codemned the result from the floor.

The student demonstrators also were demanding the immediate U.S. withdrawal from the Vietnam War.

The South Vietnamese Supreme Court heard arguments today on suits from four supporters of Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky challenging the election, but deferred a decision until at least Wednesday.

Lawyers for the four charged that a one-man election was unconstitutional and urged the court to make a "historical gesture."

Yippies Will Be At GOP Convention

NEW YORK (UPI)—Yippie leader Jerry Rubin says there will be demonstrations at the Republican national convention in San Diego, Calif., next July similar to those at the Democratic convention in Chicago in 1968.

"We will do the Republicans in San Diego what we did to the Democratic party in Chicago," Rubin said in a radio interview Monday. "We will defeat Nixon in 1972 just like we helped defeat Humphrey in 1968.

"We need only five of you to make a coup d'etat," said one lawyer, Nguyen Phuoc Dai.

The attacks by the students from Cao Dat Technical College marked the second day of a campaign against foreign-owned vehicles in Saigon as a means of protest. Monday students bured a three-wheeled minibus that belonged to the U.N. Childrens Emergency Fund (UNICEF).

About 20 South Vietnamese high school students carrying antigovernment and anti-American banners today attacked a civilian utility vehicle near Van Hanh Buddhist University in the same area as Monday's attack. The driver of the vehicle fled and the students smashed the car's windows and overturned it. The students carried out a series of raids between 4 and 5 p.m. today in widely scattered locations in Saigon and burned four more vehicles including a pickup truck, a jeep owned by a Filipino and two unidentified American-made sedans.

An attack on a fifth sedan belonging to a police doctor misfired and ended by burning only a heap of trash.

The students distributed leaflets bearing slogans such as "Oppose higher tuition, protest the Oct. 3 election, oppose U.S. imperialism, demand the U.S. withdraw immediately, (and) the U.S. should stop aid to dictator Nguyen Van Thieu immediately." In parliament, Sen. Hyynh Van Cao, leader of the progovernment bloc in the upper chamber, abstained from voting on the investigation commission resolution —the second consecutive time he had done so.

THE NEW HILARITA PROJECT

This scale model of the proposed 112-unit Hilarita project in Tiburon will be among exhibits on display tonight at a preview of precise plans for the low and moderate income housing project. Designed by San Francisco architects Kaplan and McLaughlin, the project will sit on four acres north of Tiburon Boulevard (shown at left). Lines in the model indicate contour intervals. According to Edwin G. Weed, president of the Tiburon Ecumenical Association, sponsor of the $2.8 million project, interested persons may view the plans at 8 p.m. today at Reed School. The Tiburon City Council is scheduled to consider the plans next Tuesday.

More Novato Creek Plans Presented

Plans for a pilot project to beautify Novato Creek from Seventh Street to the western edge of the downtown shopping center were revealed last night.

They were shown and explained at a joint meeting of the Novato Planning Commission and Novato Parks and Recreation Commission which endorsed them.

Asst. Planner Gary Holloway said that this project would show the residents of Novato what the creek could look like throughout the city. Estimated cost of the project is $19,525.

The plans, drawn by the Novato Citizens Creek Committee, call for a small dam of redwood planks at the Seventh Street Bridge. These could be removed during the rainy season and replaced in the summer to hold a pond.

Paths are planned for each side of the creek. The one on the south would go behind Sambo's restaurant, the Novato branch library and the Sequoia Medical Center. The one on the north would traverse the length of the shopping center.

Some brush clearing would be done under the big trees and turf planted in some area. Other trees would be added where needed.

There would be benches and drinking fountains along the creek. Ornamental lights would keep the paths illuminated so that they could be used night and day.

Leroy M. Gerner, president of the Novato Civic Foundation and retired landscape architect, will head the project.

He said that the first concrete for the dam was poured yesterday at no cost to the city, but would not say who paid for it.

Camera Taken

Two credit cards and a camera valued at about $300 were taken sometime Sunday or yesterday from an auto owned by Candice M. Healy of 35 Ridge Road, San Anselmo, police said today. The auto was parked at her home.

Bomb At Bank Is Dismantled

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)--A British army explosives expert acting on a tip today found and dismantled a 30-pound bomb outside a bank in Newry, an army spokesman said.

"If that had gone off, there would have been extensive damage," the spokesman said.

The incident was one of several investigated by the army Monday night and today during what the spokesman called a generally quiet night in Northern Ireland.

The bomb was dismantled outside the Belfast Bank on Hill Street in Newry, 33 miles southwest of Belfast.

Mendocino Gardens Plans Are Advanced

The Novato Planning Commission last night approved the tentative map of Mendocino Gardens of 28 lots on seven acres south of Novato Boulevard and west of Eucalyptus Avenue.

Normal T. Gilroy, the subdivider, agreed to deed two acres along Novato Creek to the city as an addition to the city park system. It is adjacent to Novato Creek Park.

Plans call for one new street, Mendocino Lane to go west from Eucalyptus to the western edge of the subdivision.

The vote was 5-0 with commissioner F. James Picchi absent.

The Novato Planning Commission Also:

APARTMENTS — Approved the master plan and precise plans for seven apartments on a lot on the east side of Railroad Avenue at the end of Grant Avenue for Fred Mauroni.

BUGEIA — Denied a request of the public works department to change the name of Bugeia Lane to Bahia Drive. Betty Machado, a member of the Marin County Historical Society asked that the name Bugeia be kept as the Bugeia family were pioneers in North Marin.

LOT SPLIT — Approved splitting a 24,000 square-foot lot on San Marin Drive at San Mateo Way into three lots of 7,500 square feet each with an easement for a street as requested by Richard W. Fowler.

CONTINUED — Continued until 8 p.m., Nov. 8 the review of a use permit for Nick Morf to operate a beer parlor in the Sundown Shopping Center, south of Hamilton Air Force Base; consideration of a 200-space addition to the Marin Valley Mobile Country Club, south of Hamilton Air Force Base; a study of the Scottsdale Crossroads area, plans for the Oaks Unit No. 2 of 80 single-family homes on 37 acres south of Vineyard Road for Condiotti Enterprises; plans for Pacheco Village of 180 apartments east of Marin Valley Drive, south of Bolling Drive, and an application for a variance to convert a garage into living quarters at 1279 Parkwood Drive for Kathryn Gruye.

MASTER PLAN — Informed the city council, meeting with it in joint session, that the planning staff will concentrate on updating the city's master plan, even if it means sacrifice of time devoted to advance planning. Commissioner Benjamin F. Edwards told the council the planning department had already adopted a council's recommendation that half the staff time and alternate commission meetings be devoted to the updating, giving priority to a housing element, open space, conservation and a seismic and geologic survey.

Reagan Faces Veto On VD School Bill

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Ronald Reagan's veto of a veneral disease instruction bill has been labeled "part of the right-wing syndrome" by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

But Marin's other legislator, Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, said the bill "goes beyond what is probably proper," although he originally voted for it.

The measure, AB 950, vetoed by Reagan, would permit the instruction in public schools without first requiring parental consent for children to attend the classes. Its author, Assemblyman March K. Fong, D-Oakland, has promised a legislative fight to override the governor's veto.

Current law requires such parental consent before attendance at such classes, thus hobbling schools, according to Mrs. Fong. She stressed that her bill would not deprive parents of their right to have their children excused from the classes.

But Behr told the Independent-Journal that the bill "clouded" this right of parents, thus he probably would not vote to override the veto, although he voted for it when it was approved by the Senate.

Bagley, who also voted for the bill when it went through the Assembly, said he would support an override of the veto only if there were a possibility the override would succeed. He said the prospect of an override so far was nil.

Bagley's staff reported that heavy mail has been flooding into his office, all of it urging his support of an override to pass the bill over the governor's objections.

Warned About Playing Hooky

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislators playing hooky when they should be on the floor of the Assembly have been warned by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti that he is going to crack down.

Moretti Monday sent a letter to each assemblyman asking them to try and arrange their schedules so they can attend floor sessions.

The current session has been slowed by absenteeism since early in the year, causing complaints from both Republicans and Democrats.

Moretti declared he will personally review each request for excused absence on legislative business.

If a lawmaker is granted the approval, he receives his regular daily allotment of $30 for expenses. Lawmakers often give vague explanations for their absences, but receive the expense money anyway.

Dissident Mill Valley Parents Air Gripes

sudden program changes; lack of classroom goals for student attainment; and insufficient testing and a lack of meaningful options.

Hugh A. Brown, of 191 Magee Avenue, added that petitioners weren't out "to return the district to an inflexible, rigid system." Rather, he said, the parents merely wanted a chance to have programs suitable to them.

Lynn Jessup, who said five of her children had attended Old Mill School — singled out by petitioners as the most offensive school — objected to "chaotic conditions harmful to some of the kids."

"The children are handicapped by the reduction of teaching basic skills, dirty schools, and the continual turnover of the teaching staff," she said. "The teachers just don't expect enough of the children."

The school board, she said, "hasn't achieved its stated goal of providing a meaningful alternative to those who want it. This is what we are asking."

"Nobody likes permissiveness. Nobody likes dirty schools," countered F. Conger Fawcett, of 100 Elinor Avenue. He identified himself as a "newcomer" in the district and said, "I'm not aware of the trend of education in the district, but I'm not aware either of what the dissidents would like to turn the trend to."

Still another petitioner, Sheldon Wolff, of 41 Eugne Street, listed these complaints:

Not enough emphasis on basic skills; no objective evaluation; pupils being taught by pupils, not by teachers; promotion of bad study habits; and undermining home discipline by teaching new life styles.

He found unexpected support from Allan J. Joseph, of 200 Summit Avenue. "I'm a fervent supporter of the schools and I happen to approve of the life style they're teaching," Joseph said. "But parents who don't like what's going on should be given alternatives."

Thomas D. Spencer, of 429 Live Oak Drive, agreed. "I'm not going to shove my life style down your throat, but I don't want it done to me, either."

Several persons, including teachers and current and former students of the school district, defended the innovations.

Madeleine Carner, a teacher at Old Mill School for 11 years, told the petitioners they have "no right to criticize unless you come and see what's going on in the classroom and stay for some time. Innovations and changes have to come through trial and error."

"Options are open," she told the petitioning parents. "We have all kinds of education available. We've been experimenting successfully for some time."

Another teacher, Priscilla Smith, said her three children attended Mill Valley schools and that she removed two of them from Old Mill before the "innovation" because of the "emptiness there."

She offered a cure for dissatisfied parents: "Sit down and observe and evaluate and dig in. Don't draw any conclusions until after four or five years. Trust the inborn thirst of kids to learn."

The dissatisfied parents blame innovation for what they feel is a lack of learning by their children, she said, but "long before innovation was tried out in public schools, Johnny couldn't read."

Edward Conroy, teacher at Edna Maguire school and president of the Mill Valley Teachers Association, also defended the modern teaching methods.

"I live in San Francisco, but I wish to God I could afford to live in Mill Valley," he said. "My six children go to school where there's no real innovation. They're lined up and marched into the classroom and some days they don't learn a single thing."

One young man, Stan Irwin, who said he was a former Old Mill student, said the school "is doing a very good job in directing children as to where they will be going in life. The freedom there is a very good thing. The kids are excited and happy working on their own."

Most students, he said, "are intrigued by academic efforts. Freedom will help them go where they want to go."

Although the rambling discussion touched on many points, none was resolved. William Klippert, Old Mill Teacher, recognized the problem.

"This meeting is too large, the issues are too big. We can't get a handle on things." He urged dissatisfied parents to go "straight to the source. If you have a problem with a school, go to that school."

U.N.

speakers in the historic debate voiced support for the Communists, U.S. and Nationalist leaders continued to reflect optimism.

However, informal vote surveys conducted by other sources showed that the U.S. sponsored move to save an assembly seat for Chiang Kaishek's Nationalists while seating mainland China in the assembly and the Security Council still was short of the winning votes.

With the balloting at least two weeks away, polls taken by diplomats favoring opposite sides in the Chinese question indicated that the outcome rested o a dozen countries still listed by both as undecided.

Of the first 11 speakers heard Monday in the debate's opening round, eight favored Peking and three Taiwan.

The Chinese hope for a five or six-vote victory on the U.S. resolution that would require a two-thirds majority vote of the assembly to expel the Nationalists.

U.S. Ambassador George Bush asked priority in the voting for this resolution Monday. If the assembly turns down the priority request the result would indicate little hope for carrying the two-thirds requirement.

Few diplomats believed Albania, masterminding the attempt to seat Peking, could muster a two-thirds vote to expel the Nationalists.

Thus, observers agreed, the crucial vote would be on the priority request.

The countries whose doubtful votes were regarded as probably decisive in the polls taken from opposite sides of the diplomatic lineup were Bahrain, Greece, Israel, Laos, Malta, Senegal and Togo, leaning toward the Nationalists; and Burundi, Guyana, Iceland, Ireland, and Italy leaning toward the Communists.

Bush, in his opening appearance in the debate, said the United States would welcome a "large and dynamic" Communist China but warned that the accompanying move to expel the Chinese Nationalists was "ill-advised and dangerous."

Supervisors also wanted to know how the juvenile delinquency prevention commission could keep closer touch with the community so that racial troubles like the dissension at San Rafael High School could have been nipped in the bud.

Rev. James C. Upshaw, chairman of the delinquency commission, and youth coordinator L. Charles Smith said the commission was tied up with helping Santa Venetia develop teen activities and did not have the resources to tackle another major problem.

Wornum suggested the commission use committees or miniboards to conduct local activities such as the Santa Venetia Teen Center so that they can keep in touch with problems elsewhere.

Supervisor John F. McInnis deplored the fact that too much effort is spent after the fact instead of in prevention of delinquency.

Green asked the supervisors for financial backing if workable programs for delinquency prevention are brought up by the delinquency commission.

Supervisors made no commitments but said they would welcome any constructive suggestions.

FAIR

Pattersons promised they would not seek tax exemption for the property.

Joan Fernandez accused the Pattersons of running a commercial enterprise grossing $500,000 per year "hidden under the cultural veil." She said the Pleasure Faire would be in direct competition with the Marin Veterans Memorial Building and the College of Marin Theater, both of which are supported by public funds.

"The Pattersons must have been talking to you," Maurice A. Guy of 2200 Lucas Valley Road said to Bragdon. "What do you owe the Pattersons?"

Guy said the Pleasure Faire will draw "hippies" and "so-called artists who run around the hills naked."

"Are they gonna add culture to our environment?" Guy jeered. "I think it stinks. . . I never saw such a two-timing proposal in my life."

Guy said the Pattersons have failed to clean up the "garbage" from this year's Pleasure Faire held in Novato. "They even tried to tear down a railroad shed to make booths."

Mrs. Patterson replied the faire caused no damage, and everything was restored to its original condition.

"The only thing we took out was some poison oak, and that we did not restore," she said.

Irving L. Schwartz, land planning engineer in the county Department of Public Works, said Lucas Valley Road may be able to accommodate 1,500 cars, but the Pleasure Faire plan shows a parking lot for 3,000 cars. Schwartz recommended that the stalls be enlarged and parking area be at least 50 feet from Miller Creek. He said a public transit system, not a shuttle system, is needed to handle the fair crowds that would congest Lucas Valley Road.

Marinoff said he would appeal yesterday's decision to the county planning commission. Residents, he said, would fight the Renaissance Centre proposal all the way to the county board of supervisors.

ECONOMY

temporary court could then be reviewed by the Supreme Court.

The bill also would give Nixon authority to control interest rates at "levels consonant with orderly economic growth." Treasury Undersecretary Charles E. Walker predicted, however, that no action would be required to control interest rates because he said they are declining under the pressure of market forces.

Walker said the bill also would give the pay board and the price commission legal authority to lift controls selectively once inflation had been overcome in a particular industry.

Much of the authority of the pay board and price commission will be lodged in the chairmen who will be a full time government employe. The bill authorizes a salary of $40,000 annually for the two chairmen.

The measure would waive federal conflict of interest laws for the part-time members of the two commissions.

The bill also would make it clear that the President acted legally in delegating a portion of his authority to the pay and price boards and would ratify decisions already taken during the freeze period.

Walker said the administration would "strongly oppose" any efforts in Congress to make members of the pay board and price commission subject to Senate confirmation.

Fiscal Problems Group On List

The San Anselmo School District board, meeting today at 7:30 p.m. at Red Hill School, will discuss establishing a citizens' advisory committee on operational and fiscal problems.

The committee would advise the board on priorities for spending district funds.

Big Pot Raid Nets 4 In Marinwood

Four men — including two Marin County residents — have been charged with federal marijuana violations after narcotics agents swooped down on a truck loaded with 1,200 pounds of pot on a Marin street.

Daniel J. Addario, special agent in charge of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics in San Francisco, said the raid occurred Sunday morning at a warehouse on Palmer Street in Marinwood. (There is no such address in that community.)

Attorney Joseph Kreamer, 32, of 65 Brighton Avenue, Bolinas; Allan G. Palmer, 30, of 1709 Indian Valley Road, Novato; Paul R. Pattengale, 32, of San Francisco, and Allister M. McKenzie, 29, of Boyes Hot Springs, were arrainged yesterday before a federal magistrate in San Francisco on charges of possessing marijauna with intent to distribute it.

Addario said his men and state and Marin County agents had learned of a plot to fly the 1,200 pounds of marijuana from Florida to the Bay Area.

Agents said they watched the four suspects unload crated marijuana Sunday from a twin-engine plane at Oakland Airport, then followed three of the men in the truck to Marinwood. There, 11 undercover cars and a helicopter were used to surround the truck.

The Bolinas man also was arrested Aug. 18 in Novato, after agents said they found 20 pounds of marijuana in his auto. He was free on $5,000 bail awaiting a federal court appearance next Tuesday on the first arrest.

3-Year-Old Pot Charge Dismissed

Three-year old marijuana charges against a former Novato High School teacher were dismissed yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

The charges against James David Kimmel, 36, now living in Sonoma, were dismissed by Judge E. Warren McGuire at the request of the district attorney's office.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Jerry R. Herman said the dismissal was requested because Kimmel had been convicted of other pot charges in Sonoma County.

A Superior Court jury found Kimmel guilty last year of resisting arrest, but deadlocked on whether Kimmel had used minors to obtain pot for him, possessed pot and used it on the high school campus in November 1968.

Judge McGuire yesterday set sentencing on the misdemeanor resisting-arrest charge for Nov. 15 — three years to the day of Kimmel's arrest on the Novato High School campus.

Kimmel had taught science at the school for a little more than a year until he was fired shortly after his arrest.

Following the high school arrest, Kimmel was arrested at his Sonoma County home in August 1970 on suspicion of growing a $20,000 marijuana crop, and again last month when Sonoma authorities said they confiscated several hundred marijuana plants growing in the shape of a peace symbol at his home in Sonoma.

Mill Valley Woman Injured In Wreck

Alice W. Williams, 59, of 111 La Verne Avenue, Mill Valley, has been treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital, San Rafael, for injuries suffered in a single-car accident northbound on Highway 101 in San Rafael.

According to the California Highway Patrol, her car struck a guardrail on the freeway near the Coleman School overcrossing at 8:50 a.m. Friday. She was treated for multiple cuts and bruises and neck strain.

10th priority among 17 recommended projects in the central coastal area of the state. It was designated as an area in "mild endangerment" of irreversible development that would threaten its future use for public enjoyment.

The plan also called for expansion of Marin Headlands State Park as more Army fort lands are declared surplus, and for completion of the national seashore, both requiring federal action.

The reconstructed Indian village would show how the Coast Miwok tribe lived, but the state plan offered no details on this recommendation. A department spokesman volunteered that this should be done by the National Park Service, not the state.

The county's own preliminary master plan for the lagoon, published last week, also calls for preservation of the lagoon, with observation points and nature interpretation centers the only developments allowed.

The lagoon was granted to the Bolinas Harbor District in 1959, but district voters dissolved it in 1969 after its directors had a plan drawn calling for extensive development. The Legislature then granted the lagoon to the county, requiring a master plan by next year.

ANGELA

He said questions about attitudes concerning Miss Davis revealed that San Francisco had the fewest number of persons who hold unfavorable attitudes. Alameda County was second, he said.

The other counties were equally or more prejudiced than Marin against Miss Davis, Paige said.

The professor said that his poll was conducted by 60 volunteers, most of whom were students.

He said that about 100 telephone interviews were made in each of the six counties. Lists of names were taken at random from voter lists, he said.

Paige conceded that using telephones cut those from the original lists who had unlisted numbers, who had moved or who had no phones.

"More blacks than whites have unlisted phones," the professor said, without explaining the matter.

Judge Richard E. Arnason, Contra Costa County jurist sitting in Marin, was not expected to rule today on where Miss Davis's trial is to be held.

She had been due to go on trial Nov. 1 on charges of murder, kidnapping and conspiracy stemming from the August 1970 shoot-out at the Civic Center. Today, however, Judge Arnason set that date for final hearing on a motion to suppress certain evidence in the case.

last night reopened a public hearing on the plan and listened for 90 minutes to a repeat of the Oct. 4 arguments for and against the development and required extension of the road.

Residents of Butternut Drive charged the extension, which will run on a hill above their homes, will present safety and pollution hazards; that the developers had not been made to present any alternatives to the extension, and that the extension was "unfair" because Butternut property owners did not know of long-range plans for the extension when they bought their homes in 1966.

At one point during the hearing, a male member of the audience heckled Carlos E. Gonzales, engineer for the development, with racial slurs.

With councilman John A. Miskimen holding out for a 30-foot two-lane right-of-way, the rest of the council finally passed to print a zoning amendment approving plans for the development, including the 48-foot right-of-way, and rezoning its 27 acres from unclassified to planned unit development-single family residential district.

Storer Will Run Again For Congress

Thomas T. Storer, former Marin County supervisor who ran against Rep. Don H. Clausen in 1966, announced today he will try again for Congress — this time for the seat held by Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District.

Mailliard's district covers south and West Marin and a portion of San Francisco.

At a press conference on the San Francisco Marina Green, Storer promised a novel campaign which will feature no fund-raising and no billboards or bumper stickers. He will seek the Democratic nomination next June.

"I will have no public relations people or fund-raisers and will not accept a single cent from anyone," said Storer. "I am counting on neighborhood support and volunteers."

Reforms of the electoral process will be the main thrust of his campaign platform. He listed these specific campaign targets:

All private funds should be banned from campaigns. Free television time should be given all candidates with cost borne by tax dollars.

Terms of city councils and county supervisors should be limited to three four-year terms, and preferably two four-year terms.

California should be divided into two states, north and south.

The Golden Gate Bridge board should be abolished and its duties taken over by a regional transit authority in charge of all toll bridges in the Bay Area.

Paid lobbyists should be outlawed at all levels, state and federal.

All candidates, including incumbents, should be required to participate in television debates.

Storer announced he would fight for exclusive bicycle paths to the Point Reyes Seashore from the Golden Gate Bridge, from Central Marin, and from North Marin.

Mass transit to the seashore should be by the old-fashioned train, and no more freeways should be built in either Marin or San Francisco, said Storer.

Brinkley Sees No Intimidation

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Newscaster David Brinkley, disagreeing with his competitor from another network —Walter Cronkite —told a congressional hearing today that criticism from Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and others has not intimidated television journalism.

Cronkite, anchorman for The CBS Evening News told the forum on Sept. 30 that TV news' freedom to report is "curtailed or endangered by intimidation and harassment." He advocated elimination of government licensing of broadcasters to remove the possibility that a government official's criticism could be taken as a threat to silence a station. But Brinkley, an NBC commentator, in testimony prepared for today's hearing of the senate subcommittee on constitutional rights, took an opposite viewpoint.

"As for intimidation by our critics, there is none that I know of," Brinkley said. "Anyone who can't stand criticism should not go into journalism ..."

"Intimidation" is defined as the act of making someone timid or fearful.

Brinkley said television news is the target of "a fairly widespread public anger" which is "now reflected in the public statements of political figures who have detected this anger and hostility and have made a public issue of it."

The reasons, he said are that TV news is more personal than newspaper news; TV news is preceded and followed by light entertainment; and TV news is seen by a large audience which never read serious news in newspapers "and who don't really understand what its purpose is."

He said this is reflected in letters he receives asking why he glorifies or dignifies an ugly or depressing public event — letters now invariably ending with: "Agnew was right."

"The answer, of course, is so obvious it's almost embarrassing to have to make it," he said. "It is that we put this stuff on because we think the audience would like to know about it, or ought to know about it —certainly not because we like it or approve it or advocate it."

In contrast to Brinkley's confidence that television news would survive its critics, Cronkite contended that television news already has suffered from intimidation.

"Broadcast news today is not free," he said during his appearance. "Because it is operated by an industry that is beholden to the government for its right to exist, its freedom has been curtailed by fiat, by assumption and by intimidation and harassment."

Another of today's witnesses, C.A. McKnight, editor of the Charlotte, N.C. Observer and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, expressed concern over the state of press freedom.

The attitude reflected in recent public opinion polls showing that many people are willing to accept censorship of the press and government control of news media "is made respectable by those in high governmental positions who utilize the very media they criticize to engender suspicion and hostility toward the mass media."

McKnight defended the right of newsmen to keep confident information given them by their sources for background and not for attribution.

Area Approved For Landscaping

The Novato Environmental Quality Committee last night approved plans for landscaping the area between Novato Boulevard and the houses along San Carlos Way, according to Rodney B. Brown, administrative assistant.

This narrow area is the street right-of-way and lies west of San Marin Park and east of San Marin Drive. Plans call for a pathway and plantings of trees and shrubs. No cost estimate has been made on the project, he said.

The committee approved installation of benches and a trash receptacle on the Grant Avenue side of the Marion Street School at a cost not to exceed $50, Brown said.

San Francisco School Burns

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Fire raged through an abandoned elementary school in the Bayview District for an hour and a half Monday before some 165 firemen could control the flames.

The three-alarm blaze began at the old Bayview Elementary School shortly before 7 p.m., a Fire Department spokesman said.

He said "damage was considerable" but no specific amount had been set.

Giant Tax Saving For Ranch Land

Marin County now has 87,000 acres of ranch land under agricultural preserve contract, which will give owners of those ranches a total tax saving of $605,769 this year.

Marin County Assessor Bert W. Broemmel released those figures today, explaining that citizens have been asking for the names of those getting tax reductions from agricultural preserve contracts and the amount of savings. He released a six-page list showing property owners of 444 parcels, and the amount of savings to each owner.

Marin implemented the agricultural preserve contracts in 1966, when 6,600 acres got preferential tax treatment provided by the Williamson Act. The acreage under preserve contract rose to 49,000 in 1967, to 78,000 in 1968, to 87,000 in 1969, and to 92,000 in 1970. This year it dropped to 87,000 acres because some properties were purchased by the federal government for the Point Reyes National Seashore.

The $605,769 saved by those who have agricultural preserve contracts are made up by the rest of the taxpayers. That impact varies considerably with various government jurisdictions, said Broemmel. On county government, the difference in tax base is about one per cent, but in a rural school district like Shoreline Unified School District, the loss in tax base is about 14 per cent.

Gorman Is Sentenced To Life For Slaying

Jack R. Gorman, 43, was sentenced to life imprisonment yesterday, ending five years on San Quentin's Death Row for the 1965 slaying of a San Rafael bartender.

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court formally pronounced the sentence which was returned by a jury after nine hours deliberation Friday and yesterday.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Ernest C. Zunino had sought the death penalty in a 28-day retrial of the penalty phase of Gorman's murder trial.

Gorman and Marc C. Osuna were convicted and sentenced to death in 1966 for the slaying of bartender Mario Ferrari during a 1965 Labor Day holdup of the Mission Inn Tavern, 720 B Street.

The California Supreme Court upheld their convictions but ordered new penalty trials to determine if the two should receive life sentences or the death penalty.

Retrial of the penalty phase of Osuna's case ended last December in a hung jury and he was sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court.

Both Osuna and Gorman were parolees from San Quentin at the time of the robbery. They were convicted of shooting Ferrari when he tried to escape as they held him at gunpoint. Ferrari had told the bandits he was going for the police.

The two were implicated in the robbery-murder nearly a month after the shooting by another former convict who told police he knew of the planned holdup.

Bar owner Leo Albertoni, one of 35 prosecution witnesses in the penalty phase retrial, testified that Ferrari collapsed and died in the street as Osuna and Gorman picked up the tavern's cash and fled.

Zunino had urged the jury of eight men and four women to return a death verdict.

"Jack Gorman has already had two chances on parole and he failed both times," Zunino told the jury. "It's time the jury looked at him and said, 'Jack Gorman, no more.' "

But court-appointed defense attorney Leonard A. Bjorklund Jr. of Sausalito argued that Gorman was "institutionable."

He said that Gorman first went to prison when he was 18 years old, and that in 25 years he was involved in only one violent incident, the stabbing of another prisoner who had attempted to assault Gorman sexually.

Planner Meeting

The Tiburon Planning Commission will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow to discuss requiring developers to dedicate land for parks and to submit plans for single-family dwellings to the design review board.

GOP COUNTERS DEMOCRATIC REMAP PLAN

Senate Republicans, aiming for votes by dissident Democrats and armed with the threat of a veto by the governor, have come up with this reapportionment plan dislocating fewer existing Senate districts than the Democratic plan. The GOP plan would leave all of Marin intact in a district (left of the dotted line) expanded into the western portions of both San Francisco and Sonoma counties, thus saving the seat of Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael. But Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, who would get much of Marin under the Democratic dismembering of Marin, would be sacrificed under the GOP plan. It transplants his district south to take in Death Valley. The Senate is locked in intensive bargaining over reapportionment, which will set the political complexion of the Legislature for the next decade.

SAUSALITO FERRY WINTER SCHEDULE

The Golden Gate Bridge District's ferry switched to its winter timetable yesterday, eliminating the first early morning and last late evening summer runs. Numerous changes, some up to 10 minutes, were made in weekday schedules, and weekend and holiday schedules were altered radically. The 6:08 a.m. weekday bus departure from downtown Sausalito to San Francisco's financial district will continue until December, when the bridge district begins its full bus system. Feeder bus schedules, to be available later this week, were changed to meet the new ferry timetable. Bus service, formerly ending at the district's North Sausalito parking lot on weekends, has been extended to the full routes weekends as well now.

'Knives,' Bombs At Quentin

Acting Warden James W. L. Park declined to attach any particular significance to the discovery, despite the Aug. 21 violence which left three guards and three inmates dead.

"I think this is pretty routine," he said.

Found Sunday in B section, a segregation unit similar in purpose to the prison's adjustment center, were a pipe bomb made with match heads and what Park described as two "sticking-type" weapons fashioned from metal.

(It was in the adjustment center that the Aug. 21 violence erupted, triggered when Soledad Brother George Jackson smuggled a weapon into the unit in a wig.)

A metal tube, possibly intended for use as a zip gun, also was found Sunday, imbedded in a bar of soap, Park said.

"We find potential zip gun barrels from time to time," he added. "But we find very few completed zip guns."

Circumstances of the discovery were not disclosed.

Park said weapons have been found in B section before, but added such discoveries occurred with less frequency than in other parts of the prison.

Asked whether prison officials had received any reports of impending violence, Park said: "We are always getting rumors for whatever they're worth. But we can't ignore them ... for the most part, they check out to be nothing."

An investigation was under way to determine how the weapons got into B section.

Vocation Education Enrollment On Rise

The Marin County Board of Education was told last night that its vocational education program is growing in popularity.

According to Roger Falge, administrative assistant, enrollment in the program has increased this year to 342 students. Last year, 220 students were enrolled.

The program, titled the Marin Career Education program, offers seven courses ranging from welding to food service.

Falge said the program also has a waiting list of 91 persons wanting to enroll in the classes offered at various high schools and at the Manzanita Center in Marin City.

The most popular course, he said, is office occupations, which trains persons in office skills ranging from filing to operation of office machines.

Some 121 persons are now enrolled in office occupations with another 29 waiting, he said.

Falge said the advisory council and executive board, which oversee the program, are working on recommendations for expanding the program.

The Marin County Board of Education Also:

PERSONNEL — Approved the hiring of John Loya, 25, as an instructor at San Quentin Prison for $23.70 per day. Also Patricia Bryant of Novato as a bus driver at $2.87 per hour and Marcia Price of Mill Valley as an instructional aide at $2.73 per hour.

LETTER — Received a letter from Barbara Boxer, member of the schools office personnel commission, expressing "dismay" that the board had refused to accept federal money for two new positions under the Emergency Employment Act of 1971.

BYLAWS — Approved minor revisions to the board's policy handbook dealing with board meeting bylaws.

Commission On Planning Slated Again

The Rohnert Park City Council last night voted to reestablish a planning commission effective Jan. 1.

The council said the five-person commission would begin meeting twice-monthly in January and that persons interested in serving with the group should contact council members.

City Clerk Kathryn Logue said the council felt the planning commission should be reestablished since the number of planning matters on council agendas has increased greatly since the commission was dissolved three years ago. Homeowner groups had urged the commission be resumed as a better method of checks and balances as the city grows.

The council told City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan to arrange for professional planning assistance for the commission and for clerical help.

The Rohnert Park City Council also:

LOTS — Agreed to ammend its zoning ordinance to permit Arthur Condiotti to plan lot widths of 60 feet in his planned 269-lot subdivision on East Cotati Avenue. The Ordinance now requires frontages of 65 feet.

ZONING — Approved zoning for the northeast corner of Commerce Boulevard and Rohnert Park Expressway to permit construction of a bank and indicated the remaining 16 acres of the parcel would also be zoned commercial when a shopping center is ready to be developed.

CHAMBER — Agreed to contribute $5,000 to the Rohnert Park Chamber of Commerce, thus providing one-third the funds needed to hire a manager and part-time clerical help.

PIGEONS — Gave William Hatcher, 7684 Beverly Drive, 45 days in which to improve his pigeon coop to meet city standards.

MEETING — Adjourned to Thursday at 7 p.m. to review plans for a new city office building.

Waterways Safety Bill To Senate

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — A bill to impose airport-type traffic controls on congested ports and waterways won unanimous approval yesterday by the House of Representatives in a 335-0 vote.

The vote sent the bill, which took nine months to clear the House, to the Senate, where it faces a new round of hearings.

Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, is one of three cosponsors of the bill, which is similar to one he introduced after last January's oil spill when two tankers collided under the Golden Gate Bridge. He said the bill should prevent the recurrence of such disasters.

The bill, labeled the Ports and Waterways Safety Act of 1971, would authorize the Coast Guard to require vessels to install and monitor common radio channels, to have pilots, and to use designated lanes.

The bill provides for a criminal penalty of not more than a $10,000 fine or 10 years in prison for willful violation of regulations written under the act.

Girl, 9, Injured In Car Wreck

A 9-year-old Homestead Valley girl has been treated at Marin General Hospital for cuts and bruises suffered in a two-car accident southbound on Highway 101 in Ignacio, according to the California Highway Patrol.

The patrol said Jennifer Fulle, of 107 Loring Avenue, was injured at 6:30 p.m. Saturday when the car in which she was riding, driven by Constance C. Alexander, 39, of 75 Morningsun Avenue, Almonte, collided with another auto, operated by Geoffrey R. Parkerson, 19, of 175 Corte Alta, Novato.

A passenger in Parkerson's car, William Harter, of 1055 Via Escondida, Novato, was to see his own doctor for pain in both knees, officers said.

One Girl Assaulted; One Beaten

An 18-year-old Dominican College student was raped and her student companion beaten Friday by four men who offered to give them a ride to the school's San Rafael campus, Marin County sheriff's office reported today.

Deputies said the girls told them they were walking near Grand and Mission avenues in San Rafael when the men pulled up and offered to drive them to the campus.

The girls at first declined, but then accepted the ride, they said. They were driven past the campus and up to the Nike site flats off of North San Pedro Road in Santa Venetia, where both girls were beaten and one raped several times, they told deputies.

The men forced them back into the car and dropped them off at Dominican, they said.

Both girls were treated at Marin General Hospital for scratches, scrapes and bruises, deputies said.

Halloween Show

Kathy Sternberg will present a Halloween puppet show for pre-school children on Oct. 26 at 10:30 a.m. in the children's room of the San Rafael Library.

Revitalization Of Petaluma Launched

A plan to revitalize downtown Petaluma starting with the removal of nearly all parking meters was approved yesterday by the chamber of commerce directors.

Chamber Mgr. Burdette A. Shannon said no objections were raised to the multiphased plan that would begin by seeking more parking lots for core area stores and removing most meters.

Shannon said petitions are being circulated to form a parking assessment district among merchants and that the required two-thirds of the businesses should be signed up within two weeks. The plan calls for the city to advance funds — perhaps $500,000 — to construct new parking lots and remove meters. The funds would be repaid from the assessment district revenue.

As phase two of the revitalization plan, the chamber urged that abandoned and deteriorating buildings in the downtown area be condemned and demolished to make way either for more parking lots or for new commercial buildings. The plan also recommends that more apartment development be permitted near the downtown area so retired persons can walk to shopping facilities with ease.

The final portion of the plan recommends improvements to the Petaluma River waterfront for recreation and commercial development.

Shannon said the plan and parking district program will be officially presented to the Petaluma City Council when petitions are completed and support assured.

Bills Killed On Insurance Taxes

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee has rejected two bills that would have boosted the state tax bills of insurance companies by at least $11 million.

The measures, which were killed Monday, would have removed from the law the provision which allows insurance companies to deduct all local property tax payments on home offices from their state tax bill.

On a voice vote, the committee defeated a bill by Sen. David A. Roberti, D-Los Angeles, which would have ended the exemption immediately.

Then the committee turned down a similar bill by Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, D-Beverly Hills, which would have phased out the exemption over a five year period.

Blueprint For Family Planning

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The administration has sent Congress an ambitious five-year family planning blueprint for the United States, the first such official population policy ever developed by an industrial nation.

The plan predicts a doubling of national family planning costs by 1975, says subsidized services and birth control devices will be needed for 6.6 million low-income women by 1975, and urges studies on the extent of sexual activity among unmarried persons.

The plan was sent to Congress after Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., accused the administration of disobeying the Family Planning Services and Population Rsearch Act of 1970, which called for submission of the five-year program by June 24.

Greyhound Asks End To Marin Lines

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Greyhound Bus Lines asked the State Public Utilities Commission today for permission to discontinue all its commuter and local service in Marin County and to reduce service in neighboring Sonoma County.

The bus line said it wants to drop the routes on Dec. 1, when the Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transportation District will start its own bus service in the two-county area.

In its petition, Greyhound said an attempt to compete with the district "would be financially disastrous," and that the district's service in the so-called "Golden Gate corridor" would effectively replace Greyhound's there.

The petition sought the discontinuance of all Greyhound Marin County routes and of its Santa Rosa-to-Schellville and Schellville Junction-to-Sears Point routes in Sonoma County.

The line also asked permission to convert most of its other Sonoma County routes from regular or alternate service to "special operation service only."

Greyhound also asked the PUC to delete all intermediate stops on its routes between San Francisco and Santa Rosa.

Singer Bennett Gets A Divorce

HACKENSACK, N.J. (UPI)—Tony Bennett, 45, was divorced Monday on grounds of desertion.

Superior Court Judge August Heckman, after listening to several witnesses, including Bennett's 17-year-old son, awarded the divorce to Mrs. Patricia Bennett, 39.

The judge approved a settlement of approximately $90,000 a year and gave Mrs. Bennett title to the $150,000 home in Englewood, N.J.

D'Andrea Bennett, elder of the couple's two sons, testified Monday his father had walked out of the house in 1964 and never returned.

Meningitis Claims Fort Ord Soldier

FORT ORD (UPI)—The second soldier in two weeks has died from meningitis at the Fort Ord basic training base, the Army announced today.

Pvt. Robert Peele, 19, Tucson, Ariz., died Monday at the base hospital after being admitted the previous day.

Surgery Repairs Gunshot Wound

A 23-year-old Marin City man was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital after surgery for a gunshot wound in the chest.

Marin sheriff's deputies said James Cook, of 155 Drake Aveune, apparently shot himself with a 38-caliber revolver at about 7:30 a.m. yesterday at his home.

Bill Signed On Caseload Work

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke Monday signed a bill requiring county boards of supervisors to submit estimates on welfare expenditures and caseloads to the legislature.

The bill by Assemblyman Gordon Duffy, R-Hanford, provides that the estiimates be submitted annually by May 15 to the Senate Finance Legislative Budget Committee.

Reinecke said he felt such information will be of "considerable value" in fiscal planning.

A Textbook On Ecology Is Adopted

Ross School District trustees unanimously adopted the "Earth Workshop" ecology instruction handbook for use in all grades at Ross School, at the board meeting last night.

The handbook was prepared by consultant Dan Campbell, to inventory the ecological features of area throughout Marin County, including Ross Common.

The Ross School District Board also:

HIRING — Approved employment of Maureen Champie, College of Marin student in the work-study program, as an aide at $1.75 per hour for 15 hours a week.

PRINCIPALS — Heard Principal William M. Cooper report that principals of all schools sending pupils on to Redwood High School have begun meeting monthly to coordinate programs with the high school.

REPRESENTATIVE — Nominated Sally Ann Rakow for another term as Second Supervisorial District member on the Marin County Committee on School District Organization.

OBJECTIVES — Heard Cooper report on the minimum school day Oct. 6, when a faculty workshop began preparing recommendations on district objectives, for board review at some future date.

EMPLOYEES — Formally recognized the Ross School District Teachers Association as the certificated employees association for the school year.

COUNSELING — Heard Trustee Dr. Justin L. Williams request that staff and the board study his proposal for extensive counseling in both educational and vocational fields for pupils in fifth through eigth grades.

TEACHERS — Heard Cooper report that four student teachers from Sonoma State College are working in the school.

LBJ Tells Of Peace Feelers To Ho

NEW YORK (UPI)—Former President Lyndon B. Johnson says in his book on the presidency that twice in 1964 he sent peace feelers to Ho Chi Minh but both times they were catagorically rejected, The New York Times said Monday.

Johnson said the feelers were sent through Blair Seaborn, a Canadian member of the International Control Commission for Vietnam, on June 17, 1964, and again later in August.

The incident was described in the second excerpt from Johnson's book, "The Vantage Point: Perspectives of the Presidency, 1963-1969," being printed by the Times. Monday's excerpt dealt with Vietnam during Johnson's period as vice president and the first months of his presidency.

The U.S. proposal stressed that the United States had no intention of trying to overthrow Ho, had no wish to retain military bases in South Vietnam, and had asked North Vietnam to abide by the Geneva agreement and keep its men and military supplies in its own area.

If the proposal was accepted, Johnson said, the United States was ready to economically assist all countries in the area and North Vietnam could benefit from that improvement. In return, Seaborn, a dispassionate intermediary, heard nothing but propaganda, Johnson said.

"Obviously, the Communist leaders believed they were winning in the South," Johnson said. "With things presumably going their way, they had no interest in a peaceful settlement....They slammed the door shut on our peace offer. In August when Seaborn tried again to discuss the idea of a peaceful settlement with them, they slammed the door even harder."

Much of the turmoil in South Vietnam during the early months of his presidency, Johnson said, was caused by the overthrow of Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem and the resulting chaos. Johnson blames this partially on a message sent to Saigon by the State Department.

Johnson said the message, sent Aug. 24, 1963, told U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge to inform Diem that internal reforms must be taken in South Vietnam. If Diem refused, Lodge was instructed to tell Saigon military leaders the United States no longer would support Diem, and if the military leaders took over the United States would support them, Johnson said.

"Once the ambassador acted on his instructions, preparations for a coup were stimulated," Johnson said. "In my judgment, this decision was a serious blunder which launched a period of deep political confusion in Saigon that lasted almost two years."

Convict Authors Don't Have To Pay 'Royalties'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Convict authors can no longer be forced to pay 25 per cent of their royalties and profits into an inmate welfare fund, the State Supreme Court ruled Monday.

By 6-1, the high court struck down a Department of Corrections rule under which the money had been collected.

"Although the justification stated for the rule is that the 25 per cent handling fee is necessary to defray handling costs,' the rule itself reveals that it is not actually used for this purpose," the court declared.

The decision indicated authorities may be allowed to charge prison authors if the fee has some connection with the costs of processing a manuscript, including a review of contents.

Deductions for prison-made handicraft and art works are legal because the welfare fund provides benefits, including shops, loans, fairs and exhibits, the court declared.

But "inmate writers receive none of these benefits" one must "bear both the burden of the cost of producing their manuscripts and finding their own publishers," the court held.

X-Rated Movies Booted By Paper

BOSTON (UPI)—The Boston Herald Traveler announced today it will no longer publish ads for X-rated motion pictures nor will it list the film in its daily theater timetable.

"It is our judgment that the vast majority of films rated 'X' by the Motion Picture Association of America are purely voyeuristic, sex-ploitation movies which pander to every conceivable pervision," the paper said in its lead editorial explaining the move.

Council Acts On Cove — Just In Case

An ordinance paving the way for condemnation of land on Strawberry Cove for a park was approved last night by the Tiburon City Council in order to be ready in case voters approve annexation today.

Asst. City Mgr. Robert L.Kleinert said the four councilmen present at last night's adjourned meeting — M. Carlisle Becker was absent — unanimously adopted the ordinance.

Kleinert said the council declared the condemnation suit will be filed in Marin County Superior Court tomorrow if Strawberry voters approve annexation today. The suit seeks to condemn 6.7 acres of land owned by Leonard B. Fleischman of Belvedere and slated for development.

In response to a question by Mayor Denis T. Rice, Kleinert said, City Atty. Robert I. Conn said the council could adopt an urgency ordinance immediately covering the property if annexation succeeds.

In other business at the 30-minute meeting, the council adopted a resolution "strongly opposing all gerrymandering" of state Senate districts in Marin County and on the Tiburon Peninsula.

Kleinert said the resolution will be sent to the Senate elections and reapportionment committee which is studying reapportionment proposals.

Democrats on that committee are seeking support for a proposal that would cut the Tiburon Peninsula from the rest of Marin and put it with a district stretching 200 miles north to Shasta County. The rest of Marin would be included with a district covering portions of San Francisco and San Mateo counties.

The council also endorsed Measure A on the Nov. 2 ballot, a $16.8 million College of Marin bond issue, and a Veterans' Day banquet to be put on by Tiburon businessmen for wounded veterans.

Airport Conveyer Moves Up And Down

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The first airport passenger conveyor system to move people both horizontally and between floors on the same moving belt went into operation Monday at Cleveland Hopkins Airport.

The moving walks, enclosed for all-weather protection, move passengers to a new multi-deck parking facility.

College Sports Fee Bill Finally Is Dead

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The chief Assembly cosponsor of a Senate bill to allow imposition of a $15 student fee for financing sports events and other activities at Sonoma State College abandoned the proposal Monday.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, permitted the bill to slide into the Assembly's inactive file with the explanation that "I'm dropping the measure."

The bill by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, was defeated by the Assembly Sept. 9 after a bitter floor fight. Bagley kept it technically alive by serving notice he wanted it reconsidered. He withdrew the request Monday.

The inactive file is the Assembly's repository for unwanted bills.

The student body of Sonoma State some time ago voted the student government out of existence, a move which signalled a halt to such student-sponsored activities as intercollegiate football. Under the Collier Bill, the state college trustees would impose a $15 fee for extracurricular activities if a majority of the students approved the action at an election.

Students and college administrators said today they had expected the bill's defeat.

Rand Link, student activities director, said the fees program would not damage his programs since they have been operating for more than a year without student fees.

"Our program is still operating and quite well based on the initiative of students to find their own events and a method of funding them," he said.

Cultural and entertainment programs have largely been provided by free services of speakers and entertainers and by small admission fees.

Athletic department spokesmen, however, said the department will have to continue to seek financial support from the outside community with the loss of student activities fees.

Bill Advances On Costlier Auto Plates

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A bill to give cities and counties additional operating funds by raising the cost of automotive license plates in 1973 has been approved by an Assembly committee.

The measure by Sen. Walter W. Stiern, D-Bakersfield, would boost the cost of license plates from two per cent of the vehicle's value to at least 2.65 per cent.

Quentin Escapee Is Held; Murder Probe

I-J Special Report

TRUCKEE — A San Quentin Prison escapee was booked yesterday for investigation of murder in the tavern death of an El Dorado County man earlier in the day.

Michael Keelor, 28, who walked away from a San Quentin work furlough program Sept. 26, was transferred to the Nevada County Jail in Nevada City after turning himself in to sheriff's deputies at Truckee.

The victim was Albert Sanders, 47, of Pollock Pines. Deputies said Keelor shoved Sanders during an altercation, and Sanders struck his head when he fell.

Authorities were uncertain, however, whether Sanders died from the fall or a heart attack. An autopsy was planned.

San Quentin officials said Keelor was serving a six month-to-five-year sentence for escape without force when he walked away from a work furlough job as a security guard at Playland in San Francisco. He originally was imprisoned for auto theft and second degree burglary.

Anti-Litter Law Tossed Out By State Court

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The city of Thousand Oaks' anti-litter ordinance is invalid because it interfers with constitutional guarantees of free speech and free press, the State Supreme Court ruled Monday.

The ordinance had prohibited delivery of pamphlets or other materials to homes without prior permission from occupants.

To be constitutional, the ordinance would have to be aimed "specifically at those who litter rather than broadly curtailing person-to-person, house-to-house distribution of written materials," the decision declared.

As a practical matter, justices said, prior approval would make political canvassing "prohibitively time-consuming."

THE SPOUSE GAP

Middle Years — Strains On Ego

By ROBERT LEE and MARJORIE CASEBIER

While the wife is trying to cope with being a middle-aged, unemployed mother, the husband is usually engaged in the battle of being meaningfully and gainfully employed. Becoming middlescent is inevitable, but for some it means coping with an occupational crisis.

Men who achieve high-echelon, executive rank usually gain that achievement at a time coinciding with the onslaught of middle age. Within a relatively short time after arriving at the position for which he fought so hard, therefore, the man must begin preparing some younger rival to take over. The very name of this game is "prepare your successor." Such a shift in focus from a competitive thrust to a selfless regard for the business brings built-in strains on the ego. A vague feeling dawns on one that not only machines but people — especially middle-aged people — become obsolescent.

The depressive effect of the middlescent malaise may reflect a growing sense of disillusionment concerning work itself.

Meanwhile, wives of busy executives, faced with absentee husbands, frequently feel abandoned and resent the amount of time their husbands spend on the road and the amount their husbands usually drink; and they are fearful because of the growing number of heart attacks among the ranks of middle-aged managers and executives. Such resentment and fear cannot help but take their toll in marital discord at home. Often the wife of the hard-driving executive who is totally committed to the goals of the corporation is left wondering just how low she rates in the order of priorities that claim her husband's affections.

Another form of the middlescent work crisis appears when the breadwinner finds himself out of a job. Unemployment, recession, and inflation take their toll. There is, in particular, a rising tide of unemployed managers, executives, and financial consultants who once lived high on the hog. For instance, merged corporations leave a number of executives jobless — the "merger-expandable men."

Often the white-collar worker who is unemployed is embarrassed to apply for unemployment benefits, finally going in for assistance after several months as a last resort. Many executives find it hard even to face the fact they have been fired. One man faked his job status for a whole summer, calling the company chauffeur to take him places and charging his telephone bills to his company credit card. One study told of the vice president of a bank who lost his job but did not tell his family. He left every day at the same time, but instead of job hunting he spent his day in movie theaters and in window shopping. When a bill collector finally caught up with him a few months later and repossessed the new car he had bought his son, the man told his family he had resigned from the bank.

Nearly all studies of jobless men agree that the most important thing in his life at that crisis period is an understanding, helpful wife; for here is where "for better or for worse" gets tested. The spouse may react in any number of ways, of course. She may, with him, miss the fringe benefits, finding it hard to adjust downwards in her style of living. She may be relieved, and rather enjoy the return to a simpler life and the freedom from corporate pressures. Or she may simply worry about how to explain the situation to the bridge club. In any case, there will be a noticeable drop in socializing for the unemployed executive. For many wives, the hard thing is having to uproot the family from friends and familiar surroundings.

For some couples the job loss becomes the last straw, particularly if the marriage relationship is fragile anyway, or if they are unequipped to deal with the crisis, or if one or the other spouse is unable to hang in and make things work in the light of the various difficulties.

The storm of middlescence has hit with a frenzy and the marriage is fraught with crises that are blowing the spouses farther and farther apart.

Two primary manifestations of responses to the growing gap can be seen in the retreat into excessive drinking and in the advance of extramarital affairs. The prevalence of these two activities was noted by a Michigan judge reporting on his experience with divorce cases. The reasons people began divorce proceedings after being married 25 to 30 years, the judge concluded, could be summarized as either a new love interest or an old drinking problem.

Act Two has taken us through the complications of the middlescent malaise, the suspension of the sexual readjustment at mid-life, and into the crisis of the escalating spouse gap. The children are grown and on their own, the job offers little sense of personal fulfillment, and the atmosphere is charged with the temptation to seek comfort in illicit sex. The curtain thus falls on the marriage drama with the crisis in full sway. We are ready to explore the climax in Act Three.

Behind The Scenes At An Elegant Feast

By JOAN LISETOR

"Everyone should spend a day in jail and a night as a waitress," said Mrs. John Collette, wearily slipping into a kitchen chair.

Kay Collette, a vice president of the Marin Symphony Association, performed the duties of a waitress, along with an elite group of volunteers, at a dinner party last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Owen in Kentfield.

Guests were not told that the party was the result of the Owens being the high bidders for a "gourmet dinner for 20 prepared by Mrs. Alan Jarach and served in your home" at last year's Whole Works Auction, sponsored by the symphony association, and they were not aware that they were being served by amateurs.

FOR $160 Mel and Davette Owen got the services of "head bartender" Francis X. Kelly, an accountant and member of the San Rafael Board of Education; his "assistant" Dr. Alan Jarach, a physician; and waitresses, friends of Audrey Jarach's and members of the association, Mrs. Kelly, Mrs. Raymond Taylor, Mrs. Al Newman, Mrs. Len Chapman and Mrs. Harold Becker, whose husband is a symphony violinist and member of the board of directors, and "head dishwasher" Mrs. Barry Boland, orchestra manager.

After finishing their kitchen duties Patti Newman, Betsy Chapman and Audrey Jarach, chairman of the auction last year' and "chief cook and bottle washer" of last night's bash, provided entertainment for the guests.

As chaos reigned in the kitchen the 40 guests dined on elegant French cuisine, creme de Courgettes, quiche Lorraine, couronne d'agneauaux flageolote, riz percille, tomatoes provencales, salade verte, fromages varies, bombe and cafe.

Forty guests at a dinner for 20? Well, chef Audrey, who lived in France for three years, explained, "Mrs. Owen and I set the date and a few days later she called and asked if 22 would be all right, and I said, 'okay.' She called a few days later and said, 'It's looking more like 30.' Again I said 'okay' thinking, 'never again.' A few more days passed and she called and said, 'I hate to tell you but it looks like 40.' Then I said, 'Stop sending invitations.' "

Pandemonium reigned in the kitchen as pots boiled over and stuck to burners, water spilled and ran in little rivers along the kitchen floor. But the first crisis of major proportion occured when the soup ran out.

"We're out of soup," cried a waitress.

"WE CAN'T be. My book said two gallons serves 40 people," said Audrey, adding a mumbled "never again."

"Open up a can of split pea soup," suggested another member of the kitchen crew.

"Never again," mumbled Audrey, who had spent three days preparing the elegant feast.

Contrasting the mad dashing about in the kitchen was the subdued party, where the dignified guests blissfully dined unaware that the waitresses serving them were nervous wrecks, worrying whether to serve from the right and remove dishes from the left or remove from the right and serve from the left.

"WILL SOMEBODY please tell people not to come flying out of tha kitchen," pleaded a waitress.

"Never again," mumbled Audrey, as about a dozen coffee mugs came tumbling down to the floor.

And then the big moment arrived. Hostess Davette Owen announced to the guests, "This dinner was brought to you by members of the Marin Symphony Association, in case you have been wondering why everyone is having such a great time in the kitchen."

A few guests chuckled, but the announcement seemed to have little impact.

She introduced Audrey, who invited the guests to the second annual auction, to be and to become members of the symphony association.

"WE'RE HAVING a great time in the kitchen," she told the guests. "Never again," she mumbled as she came back to the kitchen.

Paul Haerle, a guest, stuck his head in the kitchen and remarked, "So this is where the action is."

Judge Morton Colvin, a guest entered the wild kitchen and over the clanging sound of pots and pans, said, "I knew you weren't professionals when you started to serve. You know what the tip off was? You didn't put your fingers in the soup."

"Never again," mumbled Audrey in the kitchen, while Davette Owen in the living room was telling her guests, "We'll bid again for a party like this at this year's auction."

Also attending the party were Messrs. and Mmes. Hale Ashcraft, Thomas C. Reed, Frank Woods, Ned Hutchinson, Joe Russ IV, James Brumjeacher, Edwin Thomas, John Grossman, Howard (Hap) Hassard, James Stapler, Rollin Post, Winton Hill, John W. Rakow, Donn Chappellet, Welton Whann and Edwin O. Holter Jr., Judge and Mrs. Samuel Conti, Sen. and Mrs. Peter Behr, Dr. and Mrs. Julian Youlmans and Mrs. Colvin.

RETURN OF THE REAL SKIER LOOK

Ski clothes are following the fashion trend toward the classic look with styles in sleek, clingy stretch fabrics. The trio of skiers (left) wears parkas with bold red, white and blue stripes on a new, silkier cire nylon fabric. The industrial zippers zip up to the neck or down for great big lapels. The hip-length parka (right) runs the entire spectrum of blues in wide horizonal stripes. All by Bogner, the parkas have the slenderizing cut which gives a long, lean line over stretch pants and offer comfort and maneuverability.

So You Think You Were Adopted — Take Interest In Legal Documents

DEAR SUE AND HELEN:

The other day my brother and I were into a big fight and he said the reason I acted that way (it wasn't half as bad as HE acted) was because I was adopted and my real mother was retarded.

Later on he told me he was only kidding, and not to mention it to our folks or they'd get him.

I can't stop thinking about this, Helen and Sue. Every time I do something dumb and my folks look at me funny, I wonder if they're regretting me. That is, if they really did adopt me. The more I worry, the surer I am.

How can I find out without getting my brother in trouble? I really like him, most of the time. And besides, he'd stop letting me wear his T-shirts if I told on him. — MARCIE

SUE'S VIEWS
Dear Marcie:

Welcome to the club! At one point or another in our kidhood, almost all of us suspect we're adopted — usually because an older brother or sister or cousin or some other stinky person says so. It's a neat way to hurt without drawing blood (and getting clobbered by your parents), and I might even use it myself except I don't have a younger brother or sister.

My sister Kathy once told me I was left on the doorstep and my parents took me in because I was a cute baby (but then I grew up).

I was scared to come right out and ask Mom for two reasons: Kathy would sit on me and, more important, I might find it was true. So instead I "just happened" to get curious about marriage licenses and birth certificates (while looking through an old family picture album) and asked if I could see all of ours.

Try this, Marcie, and I think you'll discover you're a "natural," just as I did. Most parents don't make a secret of adoption. — SUE

HELEN'S ANSWER
DEAR MARCIE:

. . . And five years later, at "remember when" time around the dinner table, the family will finally learn why you took a sudden interest in legal documents. By then it will be funny, even to you.

P.S. On the outside chance that your brother wasn't kidding, a discussion of birth certificates will probably lead into the story of your life — something your parents may have been waiting for the right moment to tell you. If this is the case, don't let that word "adopted" throw you. After all, you are especially chosen, therefore loved in a very special way! — HELEN

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I've been dating a girl from a different town and her parents don't know my background. They liked me fine until Karen's grandmother told them that a policeman friend told her that I had a record and was always in trouble. This isn't true, but it turned her folks against me, and now Karen isn't allowed to go out with me.

I found out it's another guy in my town with almost my same name who people are getting me mixed up with. We're even the same age, 16.

How can I convince Karen's folks? I tried talking to them but still she can't see me. — INNOCENT

DEAR INNOCENT:

Why not get a signed statement from your friendly neighborhood cop, stating that you wear the white hat? You might need it for other occasions too. — SUE

DEAR INNOCENT:

Or prove you're the good guy by inviting Karen's folks over for a Sunday afternoon visit with your family. Good luck! — HELEN

It's Halloween, Not Ho-Hum, So Make It Safe

(I-J Special Report)

LOS ANGELES — Parents who take a ho-hum attitude toward basic halloween safety precautions are courting disaster, according to Dr. Albert H. Domm of Los Angeles, medical director for the western home office of the Prudential Insurance Company.

"Every year, at least a few children fall victim to malicious tricks and bizarre handouts," Domm said. "Don't let it happen to your child this year."

Domm says most Halloween perils can be avoided if parents of small children will heed the following warnings:

Beware of masks that hinder free breathing or impair vision.

Check carefully all handouts children receive.

A HANDSOME credenza, such as this one by Drexel, can make housekeeping sweeter. It's used to hold a variety of objects seldom found, but always needed, in a living room or dining room. Don't just fill the slide-out trays and spaces in the family photo albums and extra blankets.

INSIDE YOUR HOME

If You're A Busy Housekeeper, Here Are Some Helping Hints

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY

Some of the most interesting houses in America are managed by women who operate on a full-speed-ahead time schedule. And their business contributes to the reasons why their houses and civic lives are interesting.

When they conduct life on a high level of activity, there's little time and energy wasted in performing mundane chores. They are masters at paring jobs down to bare essentials. And they know how to select furnishings that help them run an easy-care household.

1. Don't stack dishes in cabinets after each washing. Simply reset them into place settings for the next meal. If you serve dinner in a dining area, breakfast and lunch in the kitchen or family room, this is a good trick. Dinner dishes just stay in place from one evening to the next. Glassware can be turned upside-down if you worry about dust.

2. Find a handsome tray or box with a lid to keep on each table. Place sugar, salt, pepper, vitamins and other garnishes on the tray. If the individual containers are handsome, all the better. They could all be blue and white china, wooden forms or sterling silver, things you won't mind glancing at during the day. A small flower arrangement, popped into a cream pitcher or something similar, will add color.

3. Keep consumables stored near the area in which you use them. Rolls of toilet tissue and facial tissue should be right in the bedroom-bath wing. Paper towels right under the counter. Maybe you should switch cabinet storage thinking so that some pots and pans are at arm level instead of floor level. (We do a lot of scrabbling for pots in lower cabinets!) Little-used china would be better placed in an obscure low-level cabinet.

4. Plan a major storage cabinet for the living room and dining room. If these are not already built in, buy one of the engineered cabinets to hold flat linens, placemats and sterling holloware in the dining room; record storage, tapes, chess sets, checkerboards, cards, cocktail napkins and coasters in the living room.

5. Get the laundry equipment into the area of the house where most linen is soiled — the bedroom-bath wing.

6. Keep a smaller separate vacuum cleaner and broom in the bedroom wing. Place all the cleaning necessities for bed and bath right in a closet in that area. How about a big wastebasket in a hall, so the littler ones can be emptied into it?

7. If you haven't one now, how about an extension phone? I'd pick the most distant location from the present phone, except a nursery. I'm not plugging for the telephone company, just trying to save energy for other more important things.

The list could go on. The idea is to think about what you've been doing over and over again and try to decide how you can stop.

Wallcoverings Simple To Clean

Today's wallcoverings are easy to put up, simple to clean and a breeze to take down, according to About the House, a home furnishings publication.

No longer called wallpaper because it is made of vinyls, wallcoverings peel off easily when you move or when you get tired of the pattern. Even lush looking flock patterns can be washed with soap and water.

Many patterns are pre-pasted, requiring only dipping into waterboxes that come with the rolls, lifting out and smoothing on the wall.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Mathe Won't Waste Time To Pick The Olympic Team

Los Angeles expert Lew Mathe can be counted on to waste no time during the match this weekend to pick the United States team for the 1972 Bridge Olympics. Mathe starred in the semifinals a few weeks ago when his team beat a group of young New York experts by 11 international match points. The hand shown today, which took Mathe only two minutes to play, might well have taken some of the other players three times as long.

RELUCTANT

West opened the nine of diamonds since he was understandably reluctant to lead away from any of his kings. Mathe put up dummy's ace of diamonds and dropped the three from his own hand to conceal the whereabouts of the deuce. More of this later.

Mathe then led a trump from dummy to try a finesse with the queen. West won with the king of spades and wondered what to lead next. A switch to clubs would have defeated the contract, but West thought his partner's play of the six of diamonds at the first trick might have been encouraging from K-J-6-2. West therefore led his other diamond, and the danger to the contract passed quietly.

SHOWS HAND

Mathe allowed the diamond to ride around to his hand, drew two rounds of trumps and one more diamond, and then showed his hand. "I'm leading clubs," he announced. "You can take two clubs but then you're end played."

Since the opponents were first-class players they understood his claim without further explanation. After taking two clubs the defenders would have to lead hearts; and then Mathe would surely take a heart trick with the queen or jack. If they led a third club instead of hearts, Mathe could ruff in dummy and discard a heart from his hand. Either way the defenders could take two clubs and only two hearts.

If Mathe had led hearts himself, he would have lost three tricks in the suit. This would have cost him the contract and would have wasted several minutes.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - 10 4
♥ - A 10 9 6
♦ - J 7 6
♣ - A 10 6 2.

ANSWER: Bid 1-NT.

The hand is strong enough for a response, but not strong enough for a response at the level of two. If partner had opened with one club or one diamond you would have bid one heart.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A task force of 30 enforcement officers rounded up more than 100 suspected heroin and cocaine peddlers during the weekend in San Francisco.

Lt. John F. Kerrigan, head of the narcotics squad, said the arrests involved peddlers who sold narcotics to undercover policemen during the past four months.

Arts Group Announces Its Series

The Marin Arts Quartet has announced that its 15th annual series will be Dec. 5, Feb. 6 and May 14. All concerts are held at 3 p.m. at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley.

Quartet members are Charles Meacham and Michael Gerling, violin; Lucien Mitchell, viola, and Jean Mitchell, cello.

Programming will include a wide variety of repertoire. Guest artists will be drawn from Marin County residents. Among works presented will be the Second Quartet of Elliot Carter and a premier performance of James Adair's Third Quartet.

This premier will mark the second presentation of one of his works by the Marin Arts Quartet. Adair is professor of composition at Sacramento State College.

Guest artists for the series will be pianist Robaline Meacham, soprano Margot Power, and Jean Stevens, principal oboist of the Marin Symphony.

Additional information may be secured from Mrs. Philip C. Smith of San Rafael and Mrs. Nancy Ingalls of Ross.

Corte Madera Fire Advisers Approved

The Corte Madera Town Council last night authorized expenditure of up to $4,000 for consultants to the fire department if a special citizens committee agrees.

Approval of the expenditure is an outgrowth of the Oct. 4 meeting when residents jammed town hall demanding greater fire protection in the wake of a disasttrous fire in September.

That fire, sparked by a car battery charger, destroyed two homes and damaged a third on Constitution Drive.

According to Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels, the consultants — a fire chief and a structural engineer — would adivse the town onfire department shortcomings and recommend changes for greater immediate protection at little or no additional cost.

If approved by the citizens committee, which will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at town hall, the consultants would be hired sometime next week.

The Corte Madera Town Council Also:

BOARD MEMBERSHIP — Adopted an ordinance changing the membership on the town's board of adjustments from two planning commissioners and one resident to two residents and one planning commissioner.

LOT SIZE — Continued to its Nov. 1 meeting an ordinance amendment which would exclude underwater property from being considered when figuring building density on shoreline properties.

HANDICAPPED — Approved an ordinance amendment which empowers the planning commission to require special parking and sidewalk facilities for handicapped persons (espicially those in wheelchairs) at new buildings.

DEVELOPMENT CHANGE — Set Nov. 15 for a public hearing on reducing the acreage size for planned unit development (a less restrictive zoning classification) for the present 25 acres to one acre.

REZONING — Set Nov. 15 for a public hearing on a rezoning request from W. F. Riley of Mill Valley for nine parcels of property opposite the Uplands Apartments on Paradise Drive. Riley wants the zoning changed from single-family residential to medium-density multiple dwelling.

SPEED LIMIT — Introduced an ordinance to change the speed limit from 35 miles per hour to 25 on Paradise Drive from Robin Drive to the town limits.

LIBRARY PARKING — Approved a one-hour limit on parking in front of the new library on Meadowsweet Drive. Currently there is no limit.

PREFAB APPEAL — Set Nov. 15 to hear an appeal on the planning commission denial of a three-unit prefabricated building at Paradise and El Camino drives.

RECREATION GOALS — Adopted a statement of goals and policies for the town's recreation program.

EMPLOYMENT — Authorized the staff to contract with the county for an engineering aide under the Emergency Employment Act provided the town is not required to retain the man at its expense after federal money dries up.

CLOSED SESSION — Entered closed session for 15 minutes to discuss possible litigation for acquisition of a quarter-acre at El Camino and Paradise drives. The council emerged to announce the town will not acquire the parcel, owned by Donald Presley of San Rafael, and has abandoned ideas of proceeding with condemnation proceedings.

SEWER DEVICE — Adopted an ordinance requiring new homes in flood-prone areas of town to have anti-backflow devices connected to sewer lines.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to today at 7:30 p.m. for a joint workship session with the planning commission at town hall.

Free Lot Is Planned At Terminal

A free parking lot for bus commuters is being planned by the Golden Gate Bridge District on its ferry terminal property in Larkspur.

Frequent bus service to San Francisco via the district's fleet of 154 coaches would serve the parking lot, which will accommodate "several hundred" commuters' cars, according to plans drafted by Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring.

The bridge district's bus fleet will begin service in December, and the parking lot could be ready for use early next year, he said. The lot would be on the district's 25-acre property on East Sir Francis Drake Boulevard opposite the quarry, using about four acres for parking.

Luehring noted that while the district has an option on the property, its purchase has been delayed in the hope of qualifying its $1,250,000 cost for two-thirds federal funding.

After ferry operations being in 1973 from the Larkspur terminal, he said, commuters could choose with which system to use, perhaps taking the bus one way and the ferry the other. Plans for the lot will go to district directors soon, Luehring said.

White Panthers Win Food 'Service' Right

The White Panther Party was granted a six-month home occupation permit last night by the Corte Madera Town Council, but was warned not to expect a renewal for its controversial "Food Conspiracy."

The council's action, on a 3-to-2 vote with Councilmen Byron D. White and Edward W. Colthurst dissenting, ends a four-month fight by the Panthers for such a permit.

The permit was granted grudgingly even by those who voted for it and sparked assurances from nearly every councilman that the town's municipal code is in for a "housecleaning."

"I think (granting) it violates the spirit of the home occupation permit," Councilman Harold B. Wagstaff said, adding he would vote favorably based on legal loopholes found by the Panthers' attorney.

Represented by Dann J. Meehan of the Legal Aid Society of Marin County, the Panthers successfully argued that their distribution of food at 122 Willow Avenue was not a business venture.

It is simply "offering a service" to the community, he said. "It's not a business, not in the classical sense."

The Food Conspiracy operates by purchasing bulk amounts of fruit, vegetables, eggs and cheese from farmers and wholesalers and then reselling the items — at cost — to member-customers.

Councilmen appeared in agreement that such an operation in a residential neighborhood would be an imposition on other residents but only two urged its outright denial.

Colthurst, in urging the council to reject the Panthers' application, said the home occupation permit was originally conceived to help persons unable to do their own marketing, because of handicaps.

"People are now using it for full-time business," he said. "I'm unhappy with it. This is going beyond the bounds of what the permit is for."

Colthurst and White urged the matter be denied or continued until the council and planning commission have reviewed the code for change.

(Home occupation permits will be discussed today at 7:30 p.m. at town hall when the two bodies meet for a workshop session on community problems.)

"I intend to do all I can to change this tomorrow night," White added at last night's meeting.

"It's a poor ordinance," Mayor Holmes S. Norville agreed. "But I don't see how we can in good faith deny this permit" since it meets the code requirements.

At Norville's suggestion, the permit was granted for only six months — half the normal time usually allowed.

$6,300 Is Returned In Bilking Case

A Sausalito woman, bilked of $6,300 in a classic swindle last July, has been reimbursed for the full amount, police said yesterday.

Police said Marie Pasquinucci of 4 Glen Drive last week was sent a cashier's check from the two women who have admitted the fraud.

The pair, Jackie Dickerson, 23, and Carol Reida Simpson, 25, both of whom have no known address, pleaded guilty last week in Marin Superior Court to felony charges of grand theft.

Miss Dickerson is to be sentenced Nov. 8 and Miss Simpson on Nov. 22.

They duped Mrs. Pasquinucci into giving them the $6,300 in cash on the pretense they would share with her $38,000 they told her they had found on the street.

The women were arrested July 2 when they returned to Mrs. Pasquinucci's home to collect an additional $3,000, she had promised them, police said.

School Easement Grant Considered

The Fairfax School District board will consider granting an easement on the White Hill School property to the Marin Municipal Water District at a meeting at 7:45 p.m. today at the district office, 58 Park Road.

The easement is about 1,200 feet long and 20 feet wide, according to Gwyneth McGee, secretary.

Fall Flower Festival In Ross

The Garden Society of Marin will present its 25th annual Fall Flower Festival this weekend in the Livermore Room and Northgate Theater of the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

The show will be open from noon until 6 p.m. on Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday.

Saturday's demonstrations and lectures will include flower arranging by Mrs. Charles Giggy at 1 p.m. and soil preparation by William Kapranos at 2 p.m.

"What Makes a Good Bonsai" will be discussed by Robert Vittier at 1 p.m. and Mrs. Forrest Slack will talk about orchids at 2 p.m. on Sunday.

Special exhibits will include Mrs. Glenn Ensign's native plants; scenes from the Audubon Society Canyon Ranch by Mrs. Sydney Higgins, and specimens from the Marin Bonsai Club and Orchid Society of Marin.

Many of the plants will be on sale and awards will be given to the best plant and flower displays.

Director Ford Cited For Films

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Veteran director John Ford was cited Sunday by the Screen Actors Guild for being "one of the few giants" in motion pictures.

The presentation was made to the 76-year-old director at his Southern California home.

John Birch-Backed Corte Madera Talk

Charles E. Smith, publisher of the Voice of Watts newsletter, will speak today at 8 p.m. on "The Meaning of the Street Revolution" at the Edgewater Inn, 1815 Redwood Highway, Corte Madera.

Smith's speech is sponsored by the John Birch Society's Committee for Truth About Civic Turmoil.

Tam Drive Rebuilding 90% Done

The Tamalpais Drive reconstruction project in Corte Madera is about 90 per cent complete, the town council was told last night.

According to Town Engineer Arthur N. Morrison, the completion figure does not include extensive landscaping for the widening project.

Items which remain include lane marking, for which the council last night authorized another $1,325 for installation of raised traffic reflectors instead of the ordinary paint striping.

Morrison said the additional cost will be made up in several years since yearly painting maintenance runs about $600.

Completion of the $125,000 project, including landscaping, is not expected until next spring. However, actual road construction should be finished by the end of the year, he said.

Extra Water Lines Are Sought

(One of a series of articles to be published this week and next the Independent-Journal outlining the issues and presenting the candidates in the local elections Nov. 2)

The North Marin County Water District has placed a $1.6 million bond proposal before voters to finance additional transmission lines from the Russian River: Measure C on the ballot.

A two-thirds favorable vote is needed for passage and there are 13,624 registered voters in the district. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

There hasn't been any organized opposition to the measure, but one candidate for the district board, Pat Heffernam, has questioned the need to import water, saying it will bring growth that will be a burden to taxpayers.

Delivery of the district's allocation of 10,000 acre feet of water a year from the Russian River is endangered by lack of transmission facilities, according to Dist. Mgr. Eugene S. Churchill.

If the proposed Sonoma-Marin project is dropped because Marin Municipal Water District fails to gain voter permission to participate — Measure B on the ballot — the North Marin district would proceed with its own project, Churchill said.

With the $1.6 million and $1.3 million in previously authorized bonds, North Marin County Water District could build an overdue transmission line or finance its share of the first stage of the proposed Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct, Churchill said.

The cost either way would be about $3 million and could be financed without substantially changing the district's tax rate of 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation, he said. A 10 to 15 per cent increase in the water rates probably would be required in about five years, Churchill said.

"Without the additional facilities, North Marin may face water shortages by 1973 and will be unable to meet the water demands caused by additional growth," he said.

Through a 1960 agreement with the Sonoma County Water Agency, the district's supply has been coming from the "surplus capacity" of an agency line from Russian River to Santa Rosa, he explained.

This year the demands on that line by the district and the City of Petaluma began to exceed the available surplus. At this point, the district and Petaluma have a contractual obligation to build an additional line and intake valves, he said.

This project, which should have been in operation this year, has been forestalled by the proposed Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct, he said.

The district-Petaluma project would include construction of a line from Russian River to Cotati to hook into an existing line now serving the two entities.

Churchill said the proposed aqueduct would bring the district an additional 3,000 acre feet of water per year at about the same cost and "provide North Marin's water needs for an additional six years, until about 1995," based on current population projections.

The earliest possible date for water delivery from the aqueduct would be early in 1974, while the Petaluma-district project could be completed in late 1973, Churchill estimated.

If the Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct isn't approved, the district vust proceed with the transmission line project, he said.

If the bond proposal fails to get the required two-thirds vote, the district's ability to participate in the aqueduct would be jeopardized, and the district would be required to finance transmission lines through the Sonoma County Water Agency, which could involve higher costs, Churchill said.

Views On Schools Sought

The Sausalito School District board agreed last night to give the public a voice in deciding the future of the district, Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg reported.

The board set a public meeting to discuss the district's future for 7:45 p.m. next Tuesday in the Central School auditorium.

District residents will be encouraged to come to the session and express their views, he said.

For the past several months, according to the superintendent, the board has been considering a variety of possible future reorganization plans for the school district.

He said the study is needed "because of the problems the district has had in the past several years, including declining enrollment, high cost of educating students and ethnic imbalance of students."

Among the possibilities which the board is studying are:

Exchanging students with neighboring districts or districts throughout the county; merging of Sausalito with one or more school districts, and contracting the district's operations to another school district.

The Sausalito School District board also:

AIDE — Voted to hire Elizabeth Van Anda as an education aide.

ASSOCIATION — Agreed to recognize the Sausalito District Teachers Association as official bargaining agent and negotiator for credentialed employees in the district.

CONTRACT — Heard a report from the superintendent that a performance contract program with the Sullivan Reading Centers is now under way in the district, involving 20 students at all levels of ability. The pilot program is designed to test the effectiveness of the performance contract in Sausalito, Lindberg said.

Inmate Denied In Plea For Garry

One of six San Quentin inmates charged in connection with the Aug. 21 violence at the prison yesterday was denied his request to have attorney Charles Garry appointed, at public expense, to represent him.

The denial of inmate John Larry Spain's request was among a series of orders issued yesterday in connection with the case by Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court.

Judge Mcguire yesterday also denied Spain's request that he be allowed to receive certain books which he called necessary to his defense, but which he said were forbidden by prison authorities.

Among the books were "Soledad Brother — Prison Letters of George Jackson," "Venceremos: Speeches and Writings of Che Guevara," "Quotations of chairman Mao Tse-Tung," and selected writings by Mao and others.

McGuire held under submission a request by the six inmates that they be allowed a joint conference to be attended by attorneys G. Douglas Vaughn, John Thorne and Garry.

The inmates — Hugo A. Pinell, Louis N. Talamantez, Fleeta Drumgo, David Johnson, Willie Tate and Spain — are charged, along with missing East Bay attorney Stephen M. Bingham, with murder, conspiracy and assualt in connection with the prison violence in which inmate George Jackson, two other convicts and three San Quentin guards were killed.

The inmates are to return Oct. 29 to Marin Superior Court.

Access To Pond Is Guaranteed

The use of two properties on Da Silva Pond in Southern Marin was turned over to the Strawberry Recreation District last night, according to clerk Jeanne Heick.

She said the district board accepted title to land behind a car wash planned for the Redwood Highway frontage road and a recreational easement for land behind MacDonald's restaurant nearby.

Title and easement will guarantee public access to the shore of the scenic pond, an arm of Richardson Bay.

Mrs. Heick said the board also endorsed Measure A on the Nov. 2 ballot, a $16.8-million College of Marin bond issue, and adopted a resolution opposing a reapportionment plan that would split Marin.

The board also accepted Mrs. Heick's resignation, effective Dec. 31. She said she is quitting after five and one-half years for personal reasons.

Reed Schools Meet Tonight

The Reed School District board will consider appointments and tasks for seven district committees when it meets at 8 p.m. today at Bel Aire School in Tiburon.

Prior to the meeting the board will hold a 7 p.m. closed session on committee appointments and employment of personnel.

The committees are drug abuse, finance, research and instructional assessment, study of small schools, community service funds, recreation program and school facility and transportation.

Only One Challenger In Novato Fire Panel Race

(One of a series of articles to be published this week and next by the Independent-Journal, outlining the issues and presenting the candidates in the local elections Nov. 2)

Incumbents on the Novato Fire Protection District board face another challenge from Richard William Price, a volunteer fireman, in the Nov. 2 election for three seats.

Price is the lone challenger. He tied for a seat in 1967 and didn't get it and was a runnerup in the 1969 election, although later passed over when a vacancy occurred.

There are 12,601 registered voters in the district and the polling places will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

The candidates are:

Henry V. Alvernaz, 46, of 1048 Eighth Street, chief dispatcher in Marin County Communications Department, a member of the board since January 1966.

Fernando Clementino, 44, of 1052 Fifth Street, a contractor, who was appointed to the board in December 1969 to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Donald Donahue.

Price, 43, of 1 Rowland Court, employed in the maintenance and repair division of American President Lines, San Francisco.

Joseph F. Silveira, 41 of 573 Olive Avenue, a rancher, who has been on the board since 1965, when he tied with Alvernaz and won on the toss of a coin.

Price is adamant that a runnerup in an election should be appointed when a vacancy occurs on the board. "At least, he should be asked," he said. "It should be that way whether I'm the runnerup or any other person."

He believes he is "familiar with most areas of the fire department," and that he can offer a "fresh approach" to the board.

Alvernaz advocated a new fire headquarters, saying the present facility at Grant Avenue, near Highway 101, has outlived its usefulness. Sleeping quarters are overcrowded, he said.

Alvernaz is treasurer of the Parent-Teacher Guild at Our Lady of Loretto Church. He is a native of Stockton, attended schools in Marin and served as a Marine corporal during World War II.

Clementino said his main concern "is to save the taxpayers money and maintain a good fire district."

Clementino opposed building a new headquarters. "We don't need a new fire headquarters," he said. "I'd rather see new equipment than a firehouse."

Clementino, a native of San Joaquin County, has been a resident of Novato since 1936, and operates a grading and excavating business.

Silveira said he wants to "keep taxes down for landowners and homeowners and at the same time keep good fire protection."

Silveira agreed with Clementino's stand that a new fire headquarters isn't needed now. "I don't think we're ready yet."

The board has lowered the tax rate, and "I'll go on the record," he said. "I want to give the right protection and be fair to employees and everybody and keep our rate down."

Silveira, a native of San Rafael, is a partner in the Silveira Ranches, north and south of Novato.

Costly British Hydrofoils Hit

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The prospect of whisking between Marin and San Francisco on high-speed air cushion vessels was torpedoed yesterday in a report on the vessels by the general manager of the Golden Gate Bridge District.

Dale W. Luehring, reporting on his inspection of the vessels in England early this month, concluded that they still were too expensive to operate and maintain, cramped and, in some cases, possibly even dangerous in rough water.

Purchase of such vessels for the district's ferry fleet should await improvements in their development, Luehring said in his 14-page report on his European trip. He was accompanied by board president Lowell Edington of Napa County to the annual convention of the International Bridge, Tunnel and Turnpike Association in Barcelona.

Edington told the Independent-Journal he concurred in Luehring's finds about the air cushion vessels.

His findings, however, would not interfere with proposals by federal officials that the district seek federal funds to test the vessels to aid their development.

The district already is committed to building three 165-foot conventional ferries at a cost of $2.1 million each, but is undecided on whether expansion of the fleet should depend on more of these conventional ferries, on air cushion vessels, or on hydrofoils.

Bridge director Stephan C. Leonoudakis, the board's primary ferry advocate, proposed last April that the air cushion vessel be tested. The Department of Defense, however, finally denied permission for the test in September.

A waiver is required to import any vessel manufactured abroad, and the district now is trying for a waiver through the Department of Transportation.

Two types of air cushion vessels are being considered for the test, and Luehring inspected both. One, a 60-passenger vessel made by Hovermarine, has rigid sidewalls and rides on a cushion of air trapped by flexible skirts fore and aft. The sidewalls remain in the water like a catamaran.

The other, the 270-passenger Vosper Thornycroft VT-1 Hovercraft, has skirts around its entire perimeter, riding along on its skirts as if they were an inner tube.

Both make about 40 miles an hour.

Sausalito Art Classes Varied

Several new classes, including silk screen, tapestry weaving, etching, flute, and music theory and composition are being offered this fall at the Sausalito Art Center, according to director Shelagh Considine.

A children's arts and crafts program, to be held Mondays through Saturdays, is scheduled to begin at the center on Nov. 1, she said.

Hamilton Man Saved After Plane Ditched

A Hamilton Air Force Base pilot was rescued yesterday two hours after he ditched his F-106 Delta Dart 35 miles at sea west of the Sea Ranch in Mendocino County.

Maj. Russell Weber, 39, was taken to the airbase hospital and later transferred to Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco with minor fractures in his right leg and shoulder and facial cuts. He was reported in good condition today at the hospital.

Cause of the failure in his aircraft has not been determined, Air Force officials said. The Air Force will call a board of inquiry to determine why the plane crashed and sank.

Weber's aircraft and others piloted by Maj. A.A. Bledsoe Jr. and Lt. Richard T. Grinnel, all of the 84th Fighter Interceptor Squadron from Hamilton, were on a routine training mission when Weber's plane developed trouble and he ejected at 2:39 p.m., at 12,000 feet altitude.

Bledsoe and Grinnel were able to locate Weber in his one-man life raft.

Hamilton sent an HC-130 rescue plane and an HH-53 helicopter to the scene, and the Coast Guard sent two vessels.

Pararescue men A/1C Nicholas Barr and A/1C Carl Woehlie jumped from the HC-130 to be with Weber. S/Sgt. Robert Loud rode the hoist down and removed Weber in a stretcher. All the men are from the 41st Aerospace Rescue Squadron.

Weber was picked up at 4:30 and returned to Hamilton shortly after 5 p.m.

College Board Should Clarify Its Intentions

In a mailer advocating passage of Measure A on the Nov. 2 ballot — the Marin Community College District $16,750,000 bond issue — the Citizens Committee for Proposition A says:

"With Proposition A the costs will be spread over a 25-year period, rather than concentrated in a few years, as with pay-as-you-go financing of buildings."

In an address before the Ross Valley Kiwanis Club last week, Ernest H. Berg, president of Indian Valley Colleges — construction of which the bond issue would fund — said flatly that the district board is committed to build the new college on the outskirts of Novato by levying a special tax if Measure A fails to win the necessary two-thirds support at the polls.

WHAT THE BOND committee's publicity hints and what Berg stated are based, apparently, on a resolution passed by the college board in a moment of frustration and rebellion, at its first meeting after turndown of a bond issue for the same purpose last November.

That resolution stated the board's intention "of completing College of Marin to master planned size of 5,000 students and constructing the first two phases of the new north college" by (a) funds from the November bond issue if the U.S. Supreme Court held that the two-thirds approval requirement was unconstitutional (which it did not), (b) funds from a subsequent bond issue to be put before the voters, or (c) "through levying of that tax necessary to raise local district funds to match amounts provided by the state under provisions of" the Junior College Construction Act. This act permits an override tax for such purpose, by junior college districts only, without voter approval.

From conversations with some members of the present board of the college district, we fell sure that they have no intention of "ramming down our throats" a $16-million construction program through added taxes without voter approval. But that is what the resolution adopted last November by a previous board indicates. And that is what some of those urging passage of the bond issue have threatened.

Obviously, there are other courses open to the college board if the bond issue fails. They are not attractive, but they are there.

WE BELIEVE that the Novato campus is needed. We believe that the bond financing provided in Proposition A is the most painless way to build it.

We believe also that the trustees of Marin Community College District are cognizant of their obligation to the residents and voters, and would not attempt to levy a tax that might mount to over $1 per $100 assessed valuation without the voters' approval — even though state law says they can legally do so.

To clear the air, to reassure the voters, and to enhance the chances for the bond issue's passage, we believe the board should publicly go on record that it will examine all other possible courses if the issue is rejected — and telling what some of those courses might mean.

"In the good ol' Summit-time, in the good ol' Summit-time!"

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Stories In Advance Of Meetings Helpful

On behalf of the League of Women Voters of Central Marin, I would like to commend the Independent-Journal on the recent articles concerning board, council and commission meetings that are of vital concern to all citizens of Marin County.

The article headlined ' 'West Marin Rezoning Will Be Considered," in the I-J on Oct. 9, was very informative and by elaborating on the agenda was useful in creating public interest and encouraging public attendance at the planning commission meeting on Oct. 11.

The League of Women Voters believes that democratic government depends upon participation of all citizens in government and politics, and that the news articles concerning what is scheduled at board, council and commission meetings are as important as the coverage of the meeting and follow-up stories.

Quick Action Needed For Fire Protection

Harrah! to the I.J. for the editorial focusing on the untenable fire department situation in Corte Madera. The "decoy" station in East Corte Madera is a folly of no little importance.

Unfortunately, the town manager's recommendation of a consultant and the formulation of a questionnaire will take time. The terrible fire of Sept. 17 reminds us of the immediate need for more manpower. Five fulltime firemen with seven pieces of rolling equipment are a farce. If Corte Madera has two adequately equipped fire stations, where is the proper fulltime manpower?

The residents of Corte Madera, with the facts properly presented, have no choice but to call upon the town council for immediate action to temporarily solve the manpower problem prior to the results of a consultant's study and questionnaire being compiled. Immediate steps should be taken to increase the size and efficiency of the volunteer section of the fire department. I realize manpower is only a part of the answer, but it is better to take action than wait.

Let us not gamble with the lives of residents of Corte Madera before the town council acts. Election time for the Corte Madera Council is upcoming in the spring. Let us bring pressure for a more responsive council who acts upon the most pertinent issues first.

I realize that with a $40 million shopping center, the HUD project, and the Meadowsweet project of 640 more dwellings proposed for Corte Madera, we will need many services extended. Let us be ready and plan ahead through the use of a well informed and progressive town council.

State Must Take In Order To Give

Headlines, picture, in I-J of recent date, "A Family of Five on Welfare." Perhaps not new news but good news — and to your credit. It started people to thinking. When people think, it is one step toward freedom.

The solution to this family's problem by a reader: "The mother gets a job, the 19-year-old daughter gets a job, the 17-year-old son works nights in a service station. You're welcome" — was priceless. May I supply the thanks?

Comes the rebuttal: See how soon some hapless individual, while lazying around on welfare money, discovers in the dictionary the key word "discrimination ." Aided by abbeted by one of our wily, disruptive incompetent attorneys — subsidized by your government with your tax money — together they stretch the process of law, which they mock with such shilly-shally, and charge invasion of rights, use of four-letter words (WORK) in the press, fascism, cruelty to children, discrimination, what have you? Any shallow, stupid excuse for not working. Courts are clogged with appeal after appeal until some weak-kneed judge renders a decision in their favor on the strength of "inadequate representation."

Meanwhile their welfare and your taxes roll merrily on. The state cannot give a cent to any man without taking it from another man who had produced and saved. Wake up, J.Q.C.T. (John Q. Citizen Taxpayer)!

School Strife Stories Called Shabby Reporting

Your stories about San Rafael High School in Tuesday's and Wednesday's paper are sickening examples of biased reporting. Mr. David Dietz apparently is quite willing to write, and you to print, vicious racist propaganda in the guise of a news story. The purpose of the story, if not simply to arouse fear apparently is to further the as-yet-unannounced political ambitions of a Mr. Robert L. Grime.

All through your front-page story you refer to "blacks." Yet consistently you say "white students." You never have the courtesy or the simple truthfulness to admit that you are writing about black students . . .

Mrs. Grime's role in this whole sorry affair is apparently that of rabble-rouser. He sounds off in your letter column, accusing the police department, the whole teaching and administrative staff of the school and much of the student body of lying about the extent and seriousness of any trouble.

Mr. Grime seems willing to take scandalous gossip as fact. Your reporter has tried a little harder to find the few and very non-threatening facts which underlie the gossip, yet he is not above implying that the vice principal, Robert Royles, is evading the truth, and that miscellaneous students not directly involved in a particular fight know more, by hearsay, about what happened than the participants . . .

Your reporter and your editorial staff seem to have taken at face value some very shabby "confrontations" staged by Mr. Grime. Beware of being fooled further by him. He may be dangerous. Seek another interpretation of any future issues he presents.

By RUS WALTON:

Old Tax Reform Truck Just Sits There On Blocks

SACRAMENTO — Back on my dad's farm, we had an old truck parked behind the barn. It had long since given up the spirit of the Dodge boys and it sat there, up on concrete blocks, a repository of nuts and bolts and other unassorted odds and ends and kids.

On rainy afternoons we used to pile onto the driver's seat and tour the world. We had the fantasy that the harder we spun the wheel and kicked the pedals and juggled the levers, and the more we yelled and jumped and wiggled, the faster and farther we'd go.

And so we'd sit there and yell and yank and jiggle and wiggle . . . but when the dinner bell clanged we hadn't moved an inch. Not an inch.

I thought they had junked the old truck years ago, carted it off to some bottomless swamp or sold it to the junkman for a used tire and a buck-fifty. But, I was wrong.

THEY HAVE PARKED that damn truck over at the state capitol — right in the middle of the rotunda.

For almost 10 months now, they have been kicking and screaming and jerking over there, those fellas. And they haven't moved an inch. Not on tax reform.

As a matter of fact, it's been more than 10 months. They have been yakking about tax reform since 1967. Gone through four sessions of the legislature, three governor's task forces, 27 million hours of talk, 60 zillion reams of paper. And still no tax reform.

Governor Reagan said something about it the other day. He said if the lawmakers didn't come up with tax reform the voters would. On the ballot, next year, through the initiative petition. That's what he said. Then he took a whole covey of aides and flew off for the Orient.

WELL, LOS ANGELES County Assessor Philip E. Watson is trying to oblige the governor. Watson is back with his tax reform proposal to put a lid on property taxes. In 1968, he got Proposition 9 on the ballot. It was defeated by about two-to-one.

The big argument against Watson's amendment in 1968 was that, given time, the legislature and the governor could come up with a better program. Opponents claimed Watson's proposal would raise hell with the state's finances and would force the legislature into hasty and impractical action.

Well, it's been almost four years, now, and still nothing on tax reform. And in those years property taxes statewide have jumped another $2 billion. Which is why Watson is moving again.

He hopes to qualify his initiative for the June ballot. This time it ranges far wider than his 1968 measure.

WATSON WOULD PUT a ceiling on property taxes of $7 per $100 assessed valuation. On a $25,000 house, that would mean a property tax lid at about $437. He estimates that the average reduction in property taxes would be about 38 per cent.

He would make up the $2.2 billion drop in tax revenues through other levies: a severance tax on oil and minerals; increased taxes on alcoholic beverages and tobacco products; a hike in bank and corporation taxes (from 7 to 11 per cent), and repeal of the home-office tax exemption for insurance companies.

The state income tax, Watson proposes, would be frozen at its present levels unless raised by a two-thirds vote of the legislature. His attraction for education groups is a provision which would guarantee state expenditures of $825 for every pupil from kindergarten through high school.

Like I said, that old truck just sits there in the capitol. Up on blocks. And, unless the lawmakers want a tax reform proposition on the ballot next year, they had better get things moving.

In 1967 the American space vehicle Mariner V swept past Venus.

Huge Campaign Spending Leads To Corruption And Inflation

WASHINGTON — Money, if not the root of all evil, is certainly the tap root of the corruption of the American political process. That corruption is so pervasive that the struggle in Congress to put some limits on the buying of public office comes up against a stone wall.

The odds are against a bill out of Congress this pre-election year putting any effective restraints on total campaign spending or on individual contributions. Too many officeholders do not want any restrictions. At the top of that list is President Nixon.

After long and painstaking effort Rep. Torbert H. MacDonald's bill has come out of the House Commerce Committee. It puts a limit on total spending for a presidential candidate of 10 cents per eligible voter, of which not more than 50 per cent can be spent on radio and television. A rival bill, sponsored by the ebullient Wayne L. Hays of Ohio, is described by those who closely follow the struggle to be as full of holes as a Swiss cheese, If it should pass, the President would welcome it as an engraved invitation to a veto.

THE SENATE has passed a bill with some respectable elements but two serious weaknesses. With no ceiling for contributions and no real enforcement powers, it is a well-intentioned gesture.

The whole matter is now deeply embroiled in party-line politics, with the Republicans voting with few exceptions against restrictions while the Democrats pick and choose their own gimmicky measures that for the most part fall short of a realistic barrier against spending. This is one of the sad consequences of president Nixon's veto last year of a spending bill that had broad bipartisan support. The veto left the Republican leadership on an embarrassing limb, since they had gone down the line for it.

The law limiting individual campaign contributions to $5,000 has been on the books for 31 years. No attorney general has ever tried to enforce it. The list of those who contributed more than $10,000 in 1968 takes 61 printed pages in the thorough and highly useful book, "Financing the 1968 Election." Mr. and Mrs. W. Clement Stone of Chicago are listed as giving the Republicans $101,000. Their total is generally believed to have been close to a half million dollars.

ONE OF THE TOUGHEST jeremiads ever delivered on the national scandal of buying and selling public office and public favors came the other day from John W. Gardner of Common Cause. A mild-mannered, even gentle, man, Gardner called the roll of county courthouses, judgeships, the Congress, the executive and the barter in votes for money. He observed that, according to the best available estimates, $100 million was spent in 1968 on the presidential race, $100 million more on all other campaigns. This was an increase of 50 per cent over 1964, and 1972 is likely to show another big jump.

As this cynical capital knows, speeches are a dime a dozen. But back of the speech is a move by Common Cause in federal court. If for 31 years no attorney general has tried to enforce the law, then a public interest suit can compel disclosure of contributions and put the finger on those violating the law.

As a first step, Judge Barrington D. Parker in district court here upheld the right of Common Cause to bring such a suit. That right was contested by the Democratic National Committee and allied political organizations. The next step is for a citizens' suit on the merits of the allegation that continual and flagrant violation of the law governing money poured into political campaigns deprives the average citizen of any real voice in filling public office. Without a corrective, the end, as Gardner said in his stern, tough speech, is dissillusion and a distrust so corrosive as to put an end to democratic institutions.

SEEING THE THRUST of a citizens' suit compelling enforcement of present laws covering campaign spending, the opposition in Congress promptly moved to repeal those sections calling for prosecution of violators. Without powerful pressure the Congress will continue to diddle along with no measure with any teeth as 1972 comes over the horizon.

The President has asked all Americans to cooperate in a wage-and-price freeze. Why not a freeze on campaign spending? The millions poured into the campaigns next year — another record in all probability — are surely inflationary. Here is a loophole Mr. Nixon overlooked.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Agreement On Berlin Possible At Long Last

By PHIL NEWSOM.
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Don't bet on it, but sources close to West German Chancellor Willy Brandt believe agreement between the two Germanys on Berlin still is possible before Christmas.

It could mean that for the first time since 1966, West Berliners may be allowed to pass through the Berlin wall to visit relatives in the communist east, and that for the first time in more than 20 years definite steps had been taken to remove the divided city as a major irritant between East and West in the heart of Europe.

AGAINST SUCH an early possibility is that fact that it took the Big Four powers from March, 1970, to the beginning of September, 1971, to reach among themselves the agreement which they have now passed on to the Germans for the working out of final details.

And that it took the Germans from Sept. 3 to Sept. 30 to agree on the translation of a single word in the Big Four agreement.

Economics led the communists to erect the Berlin wall 10 years ago.

But it was the human element that supplied most of the grim statistics:

Approximately 150 East Germans killed attempting to flee either to West Berlin or to West Germany since 1961.

From a high of 100 persons an hour fleeing to the west in the hours just before the Berlin wall went up, to a low of fewer than 100 per year now.

Nor does agreement mean, the disappearance of the wall of reinforced concrete which stands 10 feet high and extends 99.4 miles completely surrounding West Berlin.

THE BEST THAT CAN be hoped foris an easement growing out of new world conditions which for the Russians demand establishment of a status quo in Europe and perhaps a chance to shift to the east along the borders with Red China some of the Soviet forces now stationed along the Warsaw Pact line in Central Europe.

These were the conditions which suddenly led the Soviet Union to recognize its responsibilities in Berlin.

They necessitated the removal of Walter Ulbricht, East German communist leader whose unyielding hardline against the West made any agreement impossible.

They led to the sudden progress in the negotiations between the two Germanys which followed Brandt's recent meeting with Soviet party leader Leonid Brezhnev on the shores of the Crimea.

THE EAST GERMANS shifted abruptly from their position denying the Bonn government's right denying the Bonn government's right to negotiate for West Berlin and agreed to improved telephone and mail services which for years had ben the subject of fruitless conversations.

There is still a long way to go. There remains the question of the right of West Berliners to the eastern zone of the city and the matter of the free flow of civilian goods to and from West Berlin. In the latter category, the East Germans once ruled against the memoirs of the late Chancellor Konrad Adenauer

Bitter experience has demonstrated the snail's pace at which negotiations with the communists move.

And a Soviet change of heart still is possible toward the seeming new era of goodwill toward Berlin.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Oct. 19, 1961

Gunman Maxwell Fleischer of New York was killed by Marin Sheriff's Deputies Ernest Nielsen and George Johnsen in a roadblock shoot-out after Fleischer robbed a San Francisco cab driver and a Mill Valley couple.

A proposal to annex hundreds of acres on the east side of Mount Tamalpais to the City of Mill Valley was disclosed at a Mill Valley City Council meeting.

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 19, 1951

The San Rafael Planning Commission recommended that the city buy properties on Fifth Avenue between B and C streets, on C Street between Second and Third streets, and on Third Street between Cijos Street and Lootens Place for municipal parking lots.

Millard Caldwell, U.S. civil defense chief, told the national American Legion convention in Miami, Fla.: "The next war will come to Main Street."

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

If language is not correct, then what is said is not what is meant, if what is said is not meant, then what ought to be done remains undone. if this remains undone, then morals and art deteriorate; if morals and art deteriorate, justice will go astray; if justice goes astray, the people will stand about in helpless confusion. — Confucius.

Park Development Destroys Novato Tree-Growing Project

Shortly after the Novato Civic Foundation was organized to promote parks in the Novato area, it undertook a tree growing project. It had a two-fold purpose, to grow trees to plant in parks and to sell for Christmas trees to make money for the foundation.

North Marin County Water District donated land and water for a nursery at its Stafford Lake treatment plant. Seedling trees were purchased and planted in 1965. Members of the foundation weeded and watered the trees for three years.

Then in 1968 began the process of replanting the trees. The foundation sold groves of trees at $5 a tree to raise money. It also planted many trees in rows so that they could be thinned and sold for Christmas trees when they were large enough.

Individuals bought single trees as memorials to members of their families. The Lorene Bunker family purchased a $100 grove. The Kiwanis Club, Novato Garden Club and Novato Senior Citizens all purchased groves in the names of their clubs. Plaques were put in each grove and on the individual trees designating the donors.

THESE TREES WERE planted under direction of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Department at designated locations. Hundreds of people, both young and old, donated many hours of time to plant the trees. The Novato Fire Department watered them with its tanker trunks until the trees had roots enough to grow by themselves.

Altogether 1,000 redwood trees and approximately another 1,000 pine and fir trees were planted. Of course, some of them died and some of them were stolen. By this year, the shores of Stafford Lake were showing the results of the many years of labor. Some of the trees had reached a height of 10 to 12 feet and were starting to make rapid growth.

RECENTLY THE COUNTY started developing the Stafford Lake Park. Members of the foundation watched as back hoes lifted trees out of the ground, putting them into trucks to be hauled away. Pierre Joske, Marin County parks and recreation director, said they would be replanted in five-gallon cans in hope of saving them.

This was the year that the foundation planned to sell its first Christmas trees from the grove planted in rows. This systematic thinning would have left a good standing grove.

This grove, too, was destined to fall to the progress of the park. After the bulldozer was finished, 37 trees remained. The county moved 20 of them to the Civic Center, leaving 17 trees standing at the lake.

Edwin V. Grundstrom and Peter J. Ferrarese, past presidents of the foundation who had worked hard for the tree project, did not know of its demise.

"The county could have let us know of its plans and we could have moved the trees elsewhere around the lake," Ferrarese said.

Grundstrom said that members of the foundation and others who had helped in the project could have transplanted some of the trees into their own yards rather than see them destroyed.

The foundation's board bowed to the inevitable the other night. They accepted what had already been done. Their project to beautify the lake with trees and make money for the foundation was gone.

Mayor Rice Hits Remap Proposals

Legislative plans to reapportion Marin among two or more Senate districts were denounced yesterday by the mayor of Tiburon as treating the county "with the most callous indifference to its political integrity."

Mayor Denis T. Rice objected especially to a revamped Democratic plan under which Tiburon and Belevedere "would be sliced off from the rest of Marin, like a piece of stale salami, and stuck into a grab-bag district" consisting of Solano, Colusa, Glenn, Sutter, Yuba, Tehama and Shasta counties.

Lumping the Tiburon Peninsula with Shasta, Rice declared in a letter to Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, "is the most egregious gerrymandering, and patently based on the most petty of partisan considerations."

Rice, noting in his letter to Moscone that he had supported the senator's election campaigns, concluded that it was up to Moscone, a leader of the majority party, "to see to it that basic precepts of representative government are followed."

Woman Faces Charges Over Gun, Assault

The 35-year-old wife of a serviceman was arrested Saturday night on suspicion of threatening her husband with a revolver, assaulting police officers, resisting arrest and battery on police officers.

Kathleen Ellen Howell of 103 West Kelly Drive, Hamilton Air Force Base, was released on $1,500 bail to appear Wednesday in Marin Municipal Court.

According to Novato police S/Sgt. Robert Earl Howell, 31, went outside their home and sat in the car following a family argument. Mrs. Howell ordered him out at gunpoint, neighbors reported to police.

When security police from the base and Novato police attempted to get the revolver from her purse, she bit them and tried to fight them when arrested, Novato police reported.

Aqueduct Measure Debated Wednesday

The pros and cons of Measure B on the Nov. 2 ballot, in which the Marin Municipal Water District seeks to contract for construction of the Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct, will be discussed at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Brown's Hall, Mill Valley.

ART BUCHWALD

Crime Is Up On Television — But Quickly Solved, Of Course

WASHINGTON — The first crime figures for the fall television season are now in, and it has been confirmed that there were increases in all categories of crime in prime time, from rape to involuntary homicide.

For example, there were twice as many murders committed on the networks in September of this year as in all of 1971.

Aggravated assaults were up 176 per cent and robbery rose 320 per cent, if you include the reruns of old James Cagney movies.

The report indicated that while guns were still the chief weapons in television crime, writers were introducing more sophisticated methods of doing away with victims. These included holding their heads under sewer water, throwing gasoline on them and setting them afire, pushing them into bubbling vats of molasses, and running them down in 1938 Buicks in dark alleys.

A SPOKESMAN for the criminal division of television broadcasting said, "It's true that there has been an upsurge of crime on TV as compared to last year, but I would like to point out that despite the increase, every crime committed on one of our shows has been solved in 90 minutes or less."

The spokesman was asked why most of the crimes this year were solved by private investigators and not by the police.

He said, "The reason for this is that the private eye, as we like to call him, has more flexibility than a city detective. A private eye doesn't have to worry about such things as applying for a search warrant, using brutality on a suspect, lying to the police, or making out with the wife of the victim.

"The recent Supreme Court rulings have made it impossible for us to use the city police in our shows other than in supporting roles or for comic relief."

"WHY DO THE POLICE in all TV crime shows arrive on the scene of the crime five minutes after the private detectives?"

"We have found from experience that if the police arrive late, it gives the private eye an opportunity to find the needed evidence that will lead him to the killer. If the police arrived at the same time as the private eye, they would find the evidence first, and then you would have no show."

A reporter asked the spokesman if he were concerned that there is more violence on television than ever before.

"We're always concerned with violence, and we try not to overdo it. But at the same time there are just so many ways you can kill somebody, and the more imaginative the crime, the more the public will respond. The one thing that has all the criminals on TV worried is that they will become predictable."

"CAN WE EXPECT a new TV crime wave in 1972?" a reporter asked.

"It's too early to say. Perhaps when the ratings are in, we'll know how much crime the public will stand. I personally predict there will probably be fewer family murders, and we may have more crazed killers in '72."

"Why more crazed killers?"

"The TV writers are running out of plots. When you have a crazed killer, you don't need any motivation for his crime. He does it because he's crazy. You can't imagine how that simplifies a story line."

"What happens if the crime shows don't get high ratings?"

The Spouse Gap

Weathering the Marriage Crisis During Middlescence

by local Marin County authors Robert Lee & Marjorie Casebier

A 12-installment condensation of the book

Middlescence—the new crisis years of marriage—is the subject of this unique book. The authors examine the problems and possibilities facing middle-aged married couples.

Many of us assume that if a marriage works for 15 to 20 years, there's nothing to worry about. This just isn't true. Middlescence is a time of life when couples face some of their toughest battles: worry over kids and how to support them; aging parents who may need help; and the psychological and physiological problems which can and do crop up in the middle years. On top of all this, the marriage relationship itself may be showing signs of neglect.

Beginning with the dating days and early gaps in marriage, the authors help the reader view some of the difficulties he may face: middlescent malaise; problems with sex; crises when children leave the nest; adultery; lack of communication; and the specter of divorce.

Finally they propose some exciting possibilities for bridging the spouse gap through rediscovery of one another, through frank appraisal of and suggestions for improving the sexual side of marriage, and through the re-creation of a full life together.

Schools Told To Iron Out Space Need

A nursery school for retarded children, operated by Marin Community Mental Health Services in Kentfield, will be allowed to continue for another year if a parking controvery can be ironed out with the adjoining Lady Bug Pre-School Nursery.

That was the ruling handed down yesterday by Marin's deputy zoning administrator, Ralph D. Cairns.

The location is at 1030 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, at the intersection with Butterfly Lane.

The problem developed because the mental health services' nursery school has no loading and unloading zone. Barbara Del Amo, director of the Lady Bug, complained that school parking spaces were being usurped by the county community mental health services.

Cairns asked for a written agreement on joint use of Lady Bug's loading and unloading zone.

In another zoning hearing, Tamalpais Community Services District won permission to add a shop and storage area to its community building at 305 Bell Lane, Tamalpais Valley. Deputy zoning administrator Harvey E. Bragdon approved the expansion on condition that the new structures be subject to design review by the county planning staff.

Federal Funding For Marin Parks

State and federal funding totaling $235,850 has been approved for two Marin County Parks, State Sen. Peter H. Behr's office has announced.

The money — $69,650 for Stafford Lake Park near Novato and $166,200 for McNear's Beach Park, San Rafael —will provide picknicking, fishing, hiking and restroom facilities.

San Rafael Landowner Wins Assessment Round

A San Rafael man last night persuaded the San Rafael City Council to overrule a condition imposed by the city's planning commission on proposed development of his east San Rafael property.

Fred Grange, owner of property at 2029 and 2031 Francisco Boulevard, convinced the council that requiring him to commit the property to a future drainage assessment district would be making him pay twice for drainage problems that were not his.

Grange had strong support in his appeal last night with his attorney, Wallace S. Myers, presenting his case in a soft-sell style that Mayor C. Paul Bettini called the finest presentation ever made before the council, and Marin Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner, owner of eight acres next to Grange's property, contending that he, Grange and other property owners were being "crucified" by the future assessment district requirement.

Gardiner said he has paid $26,000 for drainage work under a Francisco Boulevard assessment district formed in 1962 and now he and other Francisco Boulevard property owners in east San Rafael were being required to commit their property to a future district aimed at correcting drainage problems on property behind theirs.

Myers said that Grange has paid $16,000 under the old district and said that requiring Grange's participation in a new district would be illegal.

The council agreed and approved Grange's plans for a building for debris box storage and repair.

Federal Program Delayed

The San Rafael City Council looked a gift horse in the mouth last night and balked at accepting it. (Another San Rafael City Council story, page 1.)

The council refused to approve an agreement for participation in the federal emergency employment program under which the federal government would pay 90 per cent of the salaries of 10 unemployed persons hired by the city.

John B. Averette, finance director, said the city's application proposed hiring a planning technician, automotive serviceman, recreation program aide, fire dispatcher, administrative intern, maintenance man, parks groundsman, public works draftsman and two clerks.

But the council questioned whether the extra employees were needed and what would happen to them when the one-year federal funding ran out.

"We shouldn't jump on the bandwagon if we don't need the jobs," said Mayor C. Paul Bettini.

Bettini noted extra costs and delays caused the city by meeting conditions attached to a $275,000 federal grant for its $1.4 million sewer reconstruction project and said the city's "experience with federal grants is something to behold."

A motion by Councilman John A. Miskimen to approve the agreement died for lack of a second, and Bettini asked City Mgr. James H. McCown to present more information on the plan at the council's next meeting, Nov. 1.

Petaluma Cuts Swim Club Rates

The Petaluma City Council last night granted a rate reduction to the Petaluma Swim Club for pool use and said it would open discussion next month on rates for 1972.

Several hundred youthful members of the swim club and their parents crowded into the council chambers and spilled out into the hallway for the meeting.

Attorney Clyde Nelson, a club director, told the council the club wants the pool open on an 11-month basis rather than the current seven months to permit more practice. He said the club's annual budget of $17,000 pays salaries for four coaches and cannot afford more than $400 per month for pool use in off-season months. During summer, the club pays $150 per month for use of pool during nonrecreational swimming hours.

The council said it was concerned about the $14,000 deficit incurred at the pool for 1970-71 fiscal year and said a complete financial review of the pool operation and all recreational programs was being prepared by finance director Cecil G. Gealta.

Councilman Richard W. Clecak originally suggested the club be charged $500 for the month of November and the pool be used only for club practices. In the past, the club has sublet the pool to school classes to reduce its cost.

Parents spoke against the $500 charge along with several members of the recreation, music and parks commission. G. Raymond Boccaleoni, a commission member, said the $750 per month pool cost would leave the city a bill of $350 per month for the four extra months requested by the club. "That adds up to $1,400 and the club is worth a lot more than that to the community," he said, receiving a long burst of applause.

The council agreed to the $400 rate and said finance studies should be completed soon and a 1972 rate agreed upon in December when the pool will be closed.

The Petaluma City Council also:

AMBULANCE — Approved the purchase of a 1972 Cadillac ambulance from the Pacific Coach and Ambulance Co. of Burlingame at the low bid of $16,025.

NAMES — Approved changing the name of the proposed Marcy Way to Cindy Lane and to changing the name of Cherry Street to Antone Way between Magnolia Avenue and Cherry Street.

TAXES — Approved a resolution urging Congress to permit residents to deduct garbage collection fees on income taxes.

SEWER MEETING — Adjourned to Monday at 8 p.m. for a report on possible methods of financing the necessary sewer plant addition including a possible second try at a bond election. In June voters defeated a $2 million sewer bond election.

Bids Will Go To Rid Landslide

The Mill Valley City Council last night unanimously voted to advertise for bids to remove the Miller Avenue landslide, an unwelcome landmark in the city for 986 days.

City Engineer Stanley M. Bala estimated the cost of the project aimed at doing the minimum amount of work necessary to make the road and sidewalk safe for thoroughfare at about $22,300.

City Mgr. William H. Cunningham said the cost would be billed to the three land owners, Melinda Row-Beddoe, Joseph A. Moore and Henry T. Gunderson.

Benjamin Dreyfus, attorney for Moore, told the council that there was no slide on his client's property. Bala admitted that he couldn't be sure because the area was not legally surveyed.

Asked why Moore was included if the city was not sure if the slide occurred on his property, Cunningham said, "He was put in the resolution because his property might be included."

Bala proposed that the city just remove the dirt hanging over the street and set up minimum drainageways. He emphasized that his proposals were not intended to repair the slide, but merely to make the street safe. He said additional work may be necessary to prevent future slides.

The Mill Valley City Council also:

SPECIAL MEETINGS — Set Oct. 26 for a special meeting to consider how to spend $450,000 approved in sewer bonds and set Nov. 23 for a special meeting to take up matters the public might wish to discuss such as dog control, litter, parking or noise.

PLANS AND BIDS — Approved plans and authorized bids for concrete crib walls at 79 Elinor Avenue and Monte Vista and Hazel Avenues, and for Warner Creek drainage.

Mill Valley Vetoes Mart Project

After more than three hours of public hearings, the Mill Valley City Council last night shut the door on one proposed supermarket-drugstore development and left another up in the air.

With more than 100 citizens jamming the council chambers, the council rejected 3-to-2 expanding the present Safeway store at Miller Avenue and Camino Alto, adding a Long's Drugstore, relocating a Texaco station and wiping out a medical building.

The council continued to Oct. 26 a proposal for an Alpha Beta market and a Thrifty drugstore at East Blithedale and Lomita avenues until the city attorney could determine if the city could require the developers to construct a covered culvert along their property on East Blithedale.

The council's action came after it voted 3-to-2 not to deny the project outright. After a long pause, Wickham cast the deciding vote joining Boessenecker and Councilman Robert H. Andreson in overturning Councilman Jean S. Barnard's motion to deny the project because of "too many unsolved problems."

Andreson initiated the motion against the Safeway-Longs proposal saying there was not an adequate review and comment by the planning commission and the architectural advisory committee; the buildings were too big for the site; the development would generate an inordinant amount of traffic and would preclude development along Warner Creek.

Mrs. Barnard added that she wanted the medical building to remain on the property. She was joined by Dr. Martin Long who said there isn't any other area in Mill Valley to relocate the building.

The audience burst into applause when Dr. Thomas R. Knez exclaimed that the real issue is land use and he felt the town would lose its uniqueness if the council approved two large chain stores.

The Alpha Beta-Thrifty proposal was carried over because the council did not know if it had the right to impose drainage improvements on the developer. Sutter Hill Development Co. of Palo Alto.

Attorney Philip Torre, acting for City Attorney Leland H. Jordan, said an agreement made between property owners and the city might not give the city the right to impose drainage improvements.

'Fiddler' Seats Bought Out For Education Unit

Landsberg, president of a San Francisco paper products company, is the sole sponsor of a premiere performance of the film, "Fiddler on the Roof" at the Fox Wilshire theatre in Beverly Hills Nov. 16.

Proceeds from the sale of tickets for his 1,000 guests go to the Oral Education Center of Southern California, an organization serving deaf children.

Landsberg has received private instruction in lipreading at the center because he has suffered a 60 per cent loss of hearing, due to a condition called "nerve deafness." He bought out the theater out of gratitude to the instruction he has received.

Air Force Junkets Expenses Claimed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Air Force spent more than half a million dollars last year taking various civic leaders to bases around the country for briefings and fire power demonstrations, according to Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis.

Reuss released an audit from the General Accounting Ofice which detailed some of the tours, adding "this kind of costly Madison Avenue salesmanship has no place in the kind of lean, hard military program we need in a time of soaring budget deficits."

Redwood-Terra Linda Tilt Tops Football Slate

By RON LENT

The muddled Marin County Athletic League football leadership picture become clearer this weekend when Redwood High School and Terra Linda square off Friday, 8 p.m. at San Rafael High.

KTIM will air this game live at 8 p.m.

In other MCAL games: Drake visits Novato, 11 a.m. and San Rafael treks to San Marin on the Novato High field, 1:30 p.m., both Saturday affairs. Marin Catholic invades Tamalpais, Mill Valley domain for a non-league go Saturday at 1 p.m., thus completing the slate.

Of the four MCAL battles, the Redwood-Terra Linda affair shapes up as a mid-season crucial, if only for Don Lucas's Trojans. Terra Linda, 2-1 in conference play, could ill afford another loss, particularly to co-leader Redwood, 2-0.

SHOULD THE Giants win, the Trojan's chances of retaining the MCAL crown would be nearly nil. Conversely, a Terra Linda triumph would vault the pass-minded Trojans into a probable three-way tie for second with Redwood and San Rafael. It would also push the Trojans back into the title contention limelight.

The Giants could hammer another nail into the Terra Linda coffin with a victory and set the stage for the Nov. 5 showdown with Novato, the other front-running team.

REDWOOD, FRESH from a convincing 21-13 win over erstwhile pacesetter San Rafael Friday night, will again rely on its outstanding running attack and stingy defense.

Like Terra Linda, Drake is in a must-win situation while confronting host Novato. The Pirates, 2-1, have rebounded after a slow start on the strength of an aggressive defense and running unit.

THE GREEN and white have Don Seward to anchor the defensive line with Tom Perry and Rick Bozzio filling the holes at linebacker. Offensively, the Pirates stand on the running of speed merchant Phil Wilkinson and the powerful plunging of Bozzio.

This running tandem will be sorely tested by the vaunted Novato defense, which prides itself on stopping the rush. "Nobody can run up the middle on us," Novato mentor Al Scott has said. With middle guard Rick Reis and tackles Pat Karinen and Russ Weklych bulwarking the "pit," the defense has lived up to Scott's billing.

HOWEVER, IF Drake penetrates the Hornet "11" to win, all kinds of confusion will reign in the MCAL standings with a likely three-handed knot in the runnerup slot between Novato, San Rafael and the Pirates. Or. . .

While MCAL observers continue conjecturing on these two games, consider San Rafael's demise. The Bulldogs, 1-1, will attempt to battle back into contention by defeating underdog San Marin. Despite the painful setback, the Red and White still possess a superior attack and a good defense. I-J Prep of the Week winner Scott Duncan spearheads a sterling backfield which also includes dandy fullback Mark Farrar, wingback Dave Urquhart and quarterback Dirk Gansloser. Alternate tailback Jim Grigg is an outstanding runner, particularly when coming off the bench.

ALTHOUGH the Bulldog arsenal is impressive, San Marin coach Bob Martin concedes nothing. "We have a good, young defense," he said. When sophomore quarterback Hoza Wright finally lights the Mustang offensive pyroantics, the Mustangs will really come on, MCAL followers contend.

Marin Catholic will attempt to notch its fifth straight win at Tamalpais's expense. The Wildcat's will try to keep the streak alive despite the loss of sensational senior tailback Pat Parnow, out three weeks with a knee injury. The Indians will be seeking their first victory.

OSU FULLBACK

Pac-8 Honors Dave Schilling

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Dave Schilling, Oregon State's 226-pound fullback, carried on 47 of his team's 81 rushing plays and scored three touchdowns in a 24-18 upset of Arizona State.

For this stellar performance Saturday, Schilling has been named offensive player of the week in the Pacific-8 Conference. The two-year starter from Hillsboro, Ore., ranks third among Pac-8 rushers with 632 yards in 143 carries.

Stanford

At the same time, he said starting fullback Hillary Shockley, a 220-pound senior, should be back in the lineup Saturday when the Indians play Washington State at Stanford Stadium. Shockley missed the last three games with an ankle injury.

Ralston said Shockley could have played against USC "but he wasn't ready mentally."

Wide receiver and kick returner Eric Cross is still having hamstring problems. He has missed nearly all of the Indians six games and reinjured the thigh muscle pull when he fielded his first pung against the Trojans.

California

BERKELEY (UPI) —California football coach Ray Willsey says the Bears last-second victories over Oregon State and Washington State in the past two weeks "puts us in a good frame of mind for playing UCLA."

"A Los Angeles game is always big for us ... whether it's against USC or UCLA," said Willsey. The Bears play at UCLA Saturday night but it won't count in the Pacific-8 standings because Cal is on NCAA probation.

Willsey said he was glad to see Ray Wersching boot a 20yard field goal with 64 seconds remaining against WSU. "Wersching had never been in that kind of pressure situation," said Willsey. "I'm sure this will be a benefit to him to know he can pump it through to win a game."

Regarding the overall performance of the Bears, Willsey said, "we're improving each week." The improvement must continue because the Bears tackle USC, Washington, Oregon and Stanford after UCLA.

UCLA

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Coach Pepper Rodgers of UCLA made a change in his first string backfield Monday, moving former fullback Randy Tyler to the slotback position after his fine showing against Arizona.

Tyler was tried at slotback for the first time in the game and Rodgers said his excellent blocking and running led to the change. To fill Tyler's fullback post, Dom Mancini has moved up to second-string behind Gary Campbell.

The Bruins worked more on their passing game Monday with quarterback Scott Henderson throwing from the I formation. UCLA also uses the wishbone formation.

Lamonica Nurses Hurt Leg

OAKLAND (UPI) — Quarterback Daryle Lamonica and wide receiver Rod Sherman of the Oakland Raiders are nursing leg injuries suffered in the 34-10 pasting of the Philadelphia Eagles.

Lamonica said he again stretched a bothersome hamstring in the right thigh during the latter stages of Sunday's comeback win. But he figures he'll be ready to answer the call this Sunday when the Cincinnati Bengals come to Oakland coliseum.

Lamonica sat on the bench in the first half against Philadelphia. However, Coach John Madden asked the Notre Dame graduate if he could go in the final two quarters. His response was affirmative, and the results were four touchdowns in the second half.

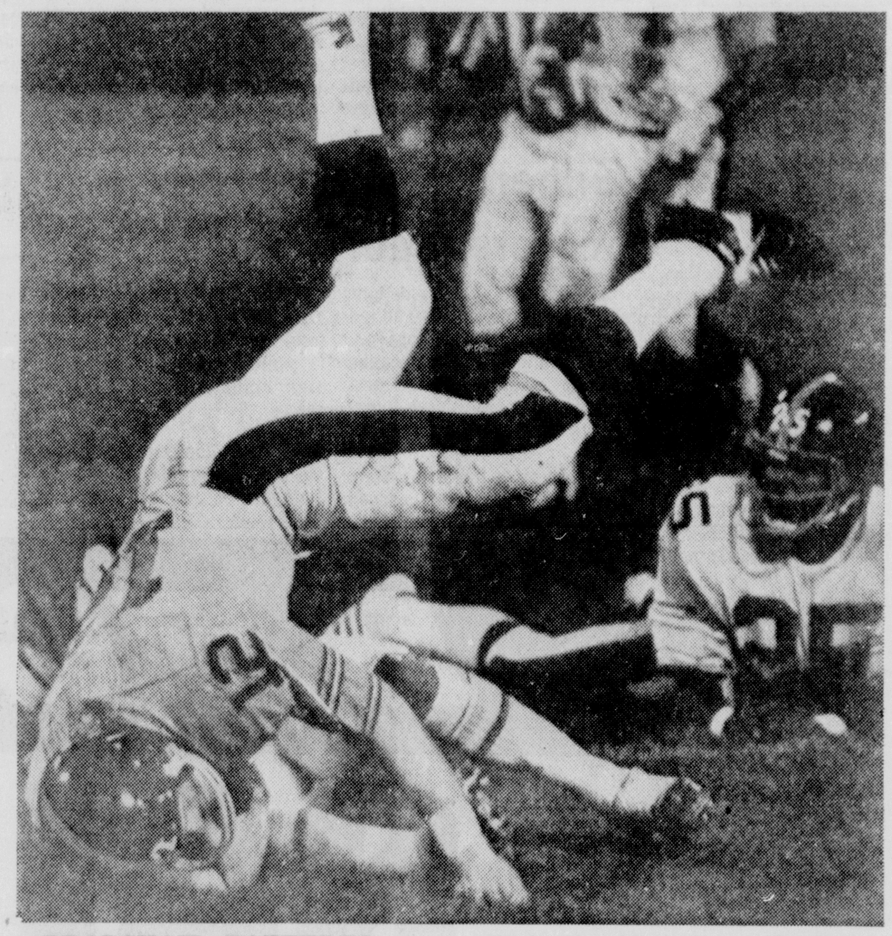
Sherman's ankle sprain was diagnosed within minutes by a new $10,000 X-ray machine installed next to the raiders dressing room. Sherman's foot and ankle were X-rayed when he came limping off the field in the first half.

"We learned that Sherman hadn't suffered a broken bone," said Dr. Bob Rosenfeld. However, it is doubtful that Sherman will see action against the Bengals.

Running back Charlie Smith was activated for the Eagles game and was thrown for an eight-yard loss on the final play. Smith probably will see more action against Cincinnati.

The Bengals have beaten the Raiders two of the last three times they've played, both at Cincinnati. But so far this season the defending Central Division champions have been struggling with a 1-4 record.

Dawson Leads Kansas City Win



BRADSHAW BATTERED— Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw (12) did a flip while he was brought down by Kansas City's Jim Marsalis in the first quarter last night as the host Chiefs downed the white--jerseyed Steelers 38-16.

QB Silences Critics On Passing Display

"Dawson can't throw long."

"The Chiefs' offense stinks."

Those are the kind of statements you can hear on any street corner in this pro-football-crazy town.

The nationally televised game between the Kansas City Chiefs and Pittsburgh Steelers began like it was going to be a long night for the Chiefs. Roy Gerela erected a 9-0 Steeler lead with three field goals in the first quarter.

But Dawson and the Chiefs simply exploded in the second period, scoring four touchdowns and running away with a 38-16 victory. In that quarter, Dawson threw three touchdown passes and completed 5-of-8 passes for 170 yards.

Dawson's second quarter completions covered 5, 51, 27, 82, and 5 yards. Otis Taylor caught four of them and rookie Elmo Wright the other.

The 82-yarder was the killer. Ahead 14-9, the Chiefs were backed up to their 10-yard line after incurring a clipping penalty on a punt return.

Dawson back-pedalled to the goal line trying to find a receiver. He side-stepped one tackler and launched an 82-yard strike to Taylor who was pulled down on the Steeler eight-yard line. The pass sailed approximately 70 yards in the air.

When Dawson hit Wright for the score seconds later, the contest was over.

Although the game was out of reach for the Steelers, an oddity occurred in the fourth quarter which must have galled them. Quarterback Terry Bradshaw launched a pass to second-year receiver Dave Smith.

But Smith raised his arms in celebration as he neared the goal line and, as the ball skipped free, he tried to spike it in traditional touchdown-scoring fashion. The ball bounced out of the end zone and the Chiefs

49ers Try Squeezing The Ball

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Thoughts of the San Francisco 49ers turned to better offensive execution this week as they began preparing for a trip to St. Louis to battle the Cardinals Sunday.

It's no secret head coach Dick Nolan would like to iron out the wrinkles in a 49ers offense that has scored only two touchdowns in the last two games, both on second-half passes by John Brodie, to Ted Kwalick and Gene Washington in the end zone.

The drills will be aimed at having the 49er ball carriers hang onto the football more tightly. Ken Willard fumbled away the ball twice and Vic Washington once in Sunday's 13-0 shutout of the Chicago Bears. Brodie also threw two interceptions in the game, equalling the 10 he threw all last season.

After hearing that the Washington Redskins blanked the Cards 20-0 Sunday, Nolan said: "Now they'll really be mad when they play us."

Washington (thigh), Kwalick (thigh) and Willard (foot) all came out of the Chicago game hobbling. In addition, safeties Mel Phillips (ankle) and Roosevelt Taylor (neck nerve) are hurting.

BASEBALL AND ANTI-TRUST LAWS

Flood To Get In Court

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court agreed Tuesday to a request by Curt Flood to consider whether organized baseball should be subjected to federal and state antitrust laws.

The Court will schedule arguments this term and follow with a written opinion. Flood, a former St. Louis Cardinal star, claims that baseball's reserve clause system illegally restricts a player to the club that "owns him" for the duration of his career.

A U.S. district court in New York City ruled Aug. 12, 1970 that baseball was exempt from both federal and state antitrust laws.

Flood filed suit against Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn after the Cardinals tried to trade their star centerfielder of 12 years to the Philadelphia Phillies in October, 1969. Flood refused to report to Philadelphia and sat out the 1970 season.

The Phillies later sold their rights to negotiate with Flood under the reserve clause system to the Washington Senators. Flood signed a $100,000 contract to play for the Senators in the 1971 season. However, he quit the team last May and went back to Europe where he had previously gone into business.

The Supreme Court ruled in 1922 in a Baltimore case that professional baseball was exempt from federal antitrust laws.

WYOMING RACE CASE

Gridders Get Legal Loss

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Ewing T. Kerr of Cheyenne, saying the evidence didn't support the charge, Monday ruled that the civil rights of 14 University of Wyoming black athletes were not violated when they were dismissed from the school football team in 1969.

Kerr, who earlier in the year dismissed a $1.1 million suit against then coach Lloyd Eaton, school trustees and the state filed as a result of the dismissal, said the athletes "failed to sustain by a preponderance of the evidence the material allegations of their complaint."

Mel Hamilton, one of the 14 and now a member of the UW Black Student Alliance, said the decision would be appealed to the U.S. 10th Circuit Court of Appeals and to the Supreme Court if necessary.

"I was not surprised he (Kerr) ruled that way," said Hamilton. "In the past we've had Kerr (as a judge) and he doesn't strike me as being a man of fair play. We will try and get a fair ruling somewhere."

Kerr had been ordered by the Circuit Court of Appeals to conduct the second trial to determine if the rights of freedom of speech of the 14 football players were violated when Eaton dismissed them from the team.

The 14 had gone to Eaton's office the day before the BYU football game and told him they wanted to wear black armbands on the field to protest what they said were racial policies of the Mormon Church. Eaton dismissed the players from the squad.

During the hearing, Eaton testified that all members of the team were familiar with his rule that forbade any participation in demonstrations.

The state had claimed that allowing the athletes to wear the armbands would have meant de facto sanction of the protest by the state, since UW was a state-supported university.

"The rights of the plaintiff to freedom of speech as guaranteed by the first amendment cannot be held paramount to the rights of others to practice their religion free from state-supported protest," Kerr's decision said.

"Individual liberties cannot be left completely uncontrolled to clash with similarly asserted liberties of several thousand others," Kerr said.

The decision said "the fullest realization of true religious liberty requires that government neither engage in nor compel religious practices, that it effect no favoritism among sects or between religion and non-religion and that it would work deterrence of no religious belief."

TRADE VIEWED

Russell Faces Old Mates

NEW YORK (UPI)—Gallery gadflies in Madison Square Garden will be watchingall the moves of Cazzie Russell and Jerry Lucas tonight when the Golden State Warriors and New York Knicks collide.

During the summer, the New York Knicks traded Russell to the Golden State Warriors for Lucas to improve the Knicks rebounding strength. This theyai forward has done, to a degree.

Meanwhile, the 6-5 Russell has scored 32 points for the Warriors who humiliated Boston 97-75 but then looked rather shabby in losing 108-93 to the Baltimore Bullets.

So the Knick fans will be eyeing Russell and Lucas closely to determine which team got the better of the trade.

The Knicks haven't been setting the NBA afire. After a pair of opening-season losses, the Knicks were forced into overtime before pulling out a 121-120 win over Cleveland Sunday night.

New York still has its rugged standbys of Willis Reed, Walt Frazier, Dave Debusschere and Bill Bradley to haunt the opposition.

After the knicks, the Warriors play the Cavaliers in Cleveland Wednesday and then open their home season against the Detroit Pistons Saturday night at the Oakland Coliseum.

Becker Fires 73 To Win Tourney

Chuck Becker, bartender at the Duck House in Sausalito, birdied three of the last four holes for a one-over-par 73 to win the Bartenders and Bar Owners golf tournament at San Geronimo National course.

Becker had nines of 32 and 41 to win the low gross honors in the tourney which attracted about 100 players.

Other winners included Charles Lammori, 81-10—71, low net A; Ross Akers, 92-20—72, low net B; Tom Heileg, 116-43—73, low net C, and Joe Scotto, closest to hole-in-one, 12 feet, 3 inches.

Satisfied Clemente Plans Rest

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Roberto Clemente, for obvious reasons calling this his most satisfying season, said Monday he would go home to Puerto Rico and celebrate by doing nothing.

"I've been playing baseball for 20 years," Clemente said. "That is a lot of games. I'm just going to go home and rest and do nothing else."

The Pirates' superstar said he would not even play any winter ball this year but would devote some time to a business he runs, supplying parts to auto body shops.

Clemente, who has won four batting titles and was the National League's Most Valuable Player in 1966, said he was more satisfied with this season than with any other because he was the Pirates' team leader, as well as their leader on the field, in the drive to the World Championship.

"I talk to the players," Clemente said. "There was a lot of pressure on me. I knew I had to come through."

He said the toughest period was in August when Pittsburgh blew a big lead in the NL east by losing 26 of 35 games and he was sidelined with a sore shoulder. But when Clemente returned Aug. 23, the Pirates won 19 of their next 26 games to pull away.

"It was hard for me when I was not playing," Clemente said. "But I told them that when I get back, things will be different. And then we started winning again. But if I not play well, maybe we not win. That is why I say I had a lot of pressure on me."

Clemente, 37, batted .341 during the season, .333 in the playoffs and .414 in the World Series. He was named the outstanding player in the series after the Pirates disposed of the Baltimore Orioles in seven games.

"All you heard from the people in Baltimore was that we didn't stand a chance," Clemente said, opening his mail in the Pirates' nearly-deserted clubhouse and fingering his 1960 World Series ring, a reminder of an earlier championship.

"I don't like to argue about baseball but I even was arguing with the cab driver on the way to the ballpark in Baltimore," he said. "All they kept saying was that Baltimore is the best team in the world and things like that."

Clemente also revealed he had a hand in the improved play of shortstop Jackie Hernandez because Clemente helped get Hernandez to relax. In the series, Hernandez, whose fielding has been criticized frequently, started six of the series games and handled 24 chances without an error.

"For me," Clemente said, "One of the biggest things in the series was the way he played."

Clemente, manager Danny Murtaugh and General Manager Joe L. Brown all plan to leave Pittsburgh Wednesday, heading in different directions.

Clemente will go to New York to receive the auto he won as series MVP, then will fly directly home to Puerto Rico.

Murtaugh will return to his home at Woodlyn, Pa., and spend some time with his family to decide whether he wants to return for another season in 1972.

And Brown will be off to Ireland for a three-week vacation after which he says he will get down to the business of making some improvements in the Pirates for next year.

"Our primary need would be another shortstop because we don't know for sure about Gene Alley's knee," Brown said. "This has nothing to do with Hernandez. We feel that Hernandez can play every day, and we can win, but we just feel we have to carry two shortstops."

The other Pirate need is pitching and, although Brown has talked to the Cleveland Indians about Sam McDowell, the prospects of landing a frontling pitcher in a trade are slim.

"We're not going to break up our club to get even a great pitcher," Brown said.

Gossett Dislikes Coach George Allen

By RALPH CHATOIAN

BRUCE Gossett's feelings toward coach George Allen hasn't changed one bit, even though both have gone their separate ways. Gossett, place kicker for the San Francisco 49ers, was guest speaker at yesterday's luncheon meeting of the 49er Goal Rushers Club at Holiday Inn, San Rafael.

Most of Gossett's question-and-answer session with the 49er boosters was on a humorous vein — that is until former Marin District Attorney Roger P. Garety asked Bruce to compare George Allen, whom Gossett played under when with the Los Angeles Rams, to Dick Nolan, head coach of the 49ers.

"I don't like the man," Gossett said about Allen, now head coach with the Washington Redskins. "I have no respect for the man at all."

Gossett told the boosters about some of the events leading to his trade to San Francisco prior to the 1970 season, a deal in which the Niners sent cornerback Kermit Alexander to the Rams for Gossett, to the pleasure of 99 per cent of the 49er fans.

The blond, 29-year-old Gossett told the Goal Rushers how members of the Rams team were awarded prizes of television sets and clothes for outstanding games, and Allen was the one who decided such things.

"There was one game in which I kicked three field goals and we won, 16-14. I didn't win any of the prizes but that didn't bother me that much," said Gossett. It was later, when Allen came over to me and said, 'Bruce, I know your three field goals won the game, but I decided to give the awards to football players.' I told Allen I would finish out the season but I would never play for him again."

Not long after that he was traded to the 49ers.

According to Gossett, there is just no comparison between Allen and Nolan.

"For Dick Nolan's sake, I hope he does have a Super Bowl champion team," said Gossett. "If anyone deserves to win, he does. He treats all of us as equals, regardless of where we play. He treats us as human beings, not pieces of machinery."

One of the first questions asked Gossett was about the wind and its effect on his kicking in Candlestick Park.

"The wind does not seem as great as it was at Kezar at times, but at least there you knew what direction it was coming from. At Candlestick it keeps changing."

Another questioner wanted to know why he squeezed the ball before placing it on the tee before his field goal tries.

"Well," he smiled, "when I was a kid I saw Lou Groza do it on television, so now I do it, too."

The 6-foot, 228-pound Gossett told the 65 Goal Rushers that when he broke into football with the Rams in 1964, he wanted to show he wasn't like other kickers, that he could be tough and make tackles.

"It was my first game as a pro and it was against the Lions. I kicked off and started running down the field to try to make the tackle. No. 76, Roger Brown, blocked me on the right side and I went up in the air. Just then No. 71, Alex Karras, hit me from the left. Then I heard Karras say, 'Hey, Roger! Make a wish!' "

Gossett threw out some kind words on 49er taxi-squad quarterback Joe Reed from Mississippi State, and somehow Steve Spurrier, backup man for John Brodie, was lost in the end zone or somewhere.

"I have a lot of confidence in Joe Reed," said Gossett. "Joe is going to be an excellent passer, he has a magnificent arm. I feel when John retires we have a man to take over." And he wasn't talking about Spurrier.

When asked to name his choice for most underrated 49er, Gossett said center Forrest Blue, "who does all the centering, for punts, field goals, and is one of the first ones to get downfield under punts."

And commenting on 49er rookie punter Jim McCann who is averaging better than 43 yards per punt, Gossett said, "McCann can lead the league on his bad ones. He kicks that ball so far and so high.He's only 165 pounds but I watch him kick 57-yarders in practice, with the wind and against it."

Mets Peddle Shamsky To Cards For Taylor

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Mets Monday traded outfielder Art Shamsky and three minor league pitchers to the St. Louis Cardinals in return for utility man Jim Beauchamp, reliever Chuck Taylor and two minor leaguers.

Shamsky, 30, has been hampered by a chronic back problem the past three seasons and only played in 68 games in 1970, hitting .185.

The Mets also gave up right-hander pitcher Jim Bibby, who won 15 games this year at Tidewater in the International League. The Cardinals also got lefthanders Rich Folkers, 25, and Charley Hudson, 22. Folkers was 7-11 at Tidewater while Hudson had a 1-2 record.

"Duncan's A Winner," Says Coach

By RON LENT

"He's a winner," San Rafael High School football coach Bob Muster proclaimed, referring to his two-time All-Marin County Athletic League halfback Scott Duncan.

The 5-foot-10, 165-pound senior showed why he merited these honors by gaining 187 yards in 23 carries for a gaudy 8.1 average. This effort earned him the Independent-Journal Prep of the Week award.

When informed of Duncan's achievement, Muster commented: "He deserves it. He is a great competitor and a great kid."

APPARENTLY DUNCAN'S teachers agree, if a 3.0 grade point average is any indication. Though excelling in his courses, the shifty halfback has not found his classroom calling. "I don't know what I'll major in in college, or what school I'll go to."

Duncan expressed preference for West Coast universities and listed psychology, anthropology and English as topics of scholastic interest.

"But I don't know if I want to major in any of them in college," he added. Despite the uncertainty of picking a major, Duncan has some schools in mind, such as Notre Dame, Stanford, Navy and the University of Southern California. All four schools sent him questionnaires or "feelers" but only "New Mexico has given me a definite offer," he intimated.

BEFORE MAKING up his mind on any of this, the curly-haired athlete wants to concentrate "on winning the football championship and my courses."

The emphasis on the academic aspects reflect parental influence, he continued, "because my parents just don't want me to be a jock.

"They (Mr. and Mrs. Richard Duncan) want me to go to college, but they leave the sports issue up to me. They've always encouraged me and watched me play. But that's it, no pressure."

This "no pressure" approach has produced results, both in the classroom and on the field. When playing, Duncan admitted "I enjoy the contact.

SCOTT DUNCAN
Rushing sensation

"I TRY TO run around tacklers. But, if necessary, I'll lower my head and drive for three or four more yards." This type of effort netted him 11 touchdowns and 856 yards as a sophomore and another 830 yards plus 13 tallies while a junior.

Though not blessed with blazing speed, Duncan compensates with great quickness. "He starts off into the hole fast. He then knows where the goal line is and goes after it," Muster interjected.

Duncan's statistics apparently verify Muster's theory. In two league games to date, he has amassed three touchdowns and 286 yards on 36 tries for an 8.6 clip.

MANY OBSERVERS attribute Duncan's prowess to the belief "he is simply too strong for most of the other boys;" but Duncan denied this, noting "I've never been very big physically.

"In fact," he confided, "I'd like to put on 20 pounds to play college ball. I'm not big enough to be a college halfback." Regardless of the future, Duncan voiced gratitude for the present and, particularly for Muster's "great coaching knowledge. He's really helped me out. He's been like a father to me."

Muster has tutored his star through three years of competition, which included a stunning 210-yard showing against the eventual champions Terra Linda in 1969. However, a last second field goal precluded a Bulldog upset.

DUNCAN WAS no stranger to success even as a seventh grader on the Palo Alto Knights Pop Warner football team. "But I was too big as an eighth grader. That was the only time that ever happened, so I had to wait until I had moved up here with my family as a freshman."

"We won the championship that year," he recalled.

Bullets' Guard Duo Traded

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The Philadelphia 76ers traded strength for numbers Monday in a three guard deal that sent veteran guard Archie Clark to the Baltimore Bullets for guards Kevin Loughery and Fred Carter.

Don Dejardin, general manager of the Philadelphia team, said the Bullets also gained the rights to the 76ers No. 2 draft choice in 1973 plus an undisclosed amount of cash.

The 76ers asked waivers on Rookie Center Dana Lewis, their No. 1 draft choice from Tulsa, to make room on the roster for the two backcourtmen.

In Clark, the Blets gain a stronger defensive guard to pair with Earl "the pearl" Mnroe. Clark, 30, also ranked as No. 2 scorer for Philadelphia last year with a 21.3 average and 1,746 point total.

He came to the 76ers from Los Angeles in 1968 in a four player trade that saw Wilt Chamberlain go to the Lakers.

Loughery, 31, is a 10-year NBA veteran who tallied at least 1,000 points a season during his seven years with Baltimore. The 6-foot-3 former St. John's guard came to the Bullets in 1963 in a trade with the Detroit Pistons.

He relies on hard-driving layins and off-balance jump shots, but was hampered by injuries last season that brought his average down to 15.1 and total points to 1,237.

Carter, 26, comes back to his hometown in the deal. The Mount St. Mery's graduate moved from forward to guard when he came to the Bullets. Last season he tallied 799 points for a 10-4 average.

Philadelphia coach Jack Ramsey said Loughery is "one of the better outside shooters from the guard position in the game." He classified Carter as a "young, quick, dynamic type of player who can do an outstanding job on bigger guards."

The trade gives the 76ers six guards—including holdout Wally Jones.

Gilbert Leads Hockey Scorers; Seal Third

MONTREAL (UPI) —A four assist performance has vaulted Rod Gilbert into the top spot among National Hockey League scorers, making him the first member of the New York Rangers to head the list in nine years.

Gilbert, off to the fastest start in his 10-year career, earned his four assists in Sunday night's 8-4 victory over Montreal and he now has a total of 11 points —including a league-high eight assists —in five games.

The last Ranger to lead the weekly scoring list was Andy Bathgate on Jan. 17, 1963.

High Scoring Seals Host Montreal Tomorrow

OAKLAND (UPI) —It may take some terrific goaltending to shut out the California Golden Seals this season.

Though the Seals netminders have allowed 25 goals in five games, the Seals offense has generated 19 goals. Flashy Bobby Sheehan of the Seals is tied for the National Hockey League lead with Yvan Cournoyer of Montreal in goals scored with five. Sheehan has seven points to rank third in scoring along with New York's Vic Hadfield and Jean Ratelle.

The Seals, now 0-3-2, try for their first win at home against Montreal Wednesday night.

At Long Last I Got A Buck

By AL GIDDINGS

LITCHFIELD, Lassen County — Wife Mary and I left Honey Lake after our first day duck hunt. We were heading for the mountains near Ravendale, Lassen County, to join Howard Leach and Jack Schaub at their buck camp.

Of course they were out after bucks when we arrived, though Schaub's two boys, Mike and Ron were in camp. Mike is 12, Ron is 10; both were worn out from two days hiking with their dad while he hunted, so today they had slept in. I questioned them about Leach's cooking. Both answered, "It's usually greasy and burnt, but if you're hungry it's all right. But you've gotta be real hungry."

About 6 p.m., the hunters rolled in with a four-pointer and six ducks! Schaub's two older boys were the lucky ones, so the camp was a happy one that night.

On Monday, Mary had to go home for the week for some post office work, and all the kids headed for home too. That left just Leach, Schaub and me in camp. We resupplied the camp, got some gas and water and went for a short duck hunt, picking up two gadwalls and a widgeon near the camp. Then we planned Tuesday's hunt over a dinner of liver and onions and three of my ducks (the teal) from Honey Lake. It was great.

I'm usually the last up in the morning so just for kicks, though the alarm was set for 5 o'clock, I got up at 4:30 a.m. This created a sensation! We were away and hunting by 6:30 a.m. We each took a backpack with crackers, cheese, sardines, candy bars, water, sodas, a skinning knife, saw, deer sack and some light rope. Sounds like a great amount, but really it isn't. The entire load probably weighed about 10 pounds, or less.

With Sunday and Monday as rest days and with a week or so of hiking already under our belts, all of us were anxious to go. We hunted about four hours on one of the mountains in the area; I had just reached the top when a pretty good three-pointer busted out of some sage and maghogany brush. It was really an easy shot. Ha! — It took me 12 days to get it. At almost the same time, Howard jumped two and he had his — a four-pointer — probably a little smaller than mine. He said the other was a real trophy. It was about 11 a.m., so we ate lunch, each in our own area. Schaub ran back and forth between us while we each skinned out, de-horned and halved our bucks. One half of my buck went on my pack, Schaub took the second half. Leach decided to take a half of his some distance down, then return for the second half.

It was hot as blazes, and every juniper tree enroute that afforded some shade was a blessing. Schaub hiked directly to the car, while Leach and I struggled along. Eventually, Schaub came back taking the odd half, then it was a straight go from there. We reached the car at 6 p.m., dog tired, but happy.

Back at camp, Leach cooked a stew, then decided to make a cake. Schaub, not to be outdone, decided to make biscuits. It was like being with the "Odd Couple," except that there were two ' 'odds'' in this case. You ladies would never believe it. Leach made up a regular cake mix in a cake pan, then he put this in a large Dutch oven he always brings along. He put 3 or 4 small stones on the bottom of the Dutch oven, set the cake pan on top, then covered it. The cake was beautiful!

Schaub did the same thing with the biscuit dough, except for shaping the dough into biscuits and they also were beautiful. With this, we had liver and onions, potatoes and salad. Now you can't beat that. We put butter and blackberry jam on the biscuits and ate the cake with some high mountain coffee. Leach also talked me into having a couple of pre-dinner drinks to celebrate our good luck and good fellowship. It was quite an evening. In the days after that, we took a few rides, shot a few mallards, and in general, just took it easy. Schaub gave it a go one day for his buck, but didn't connect.

On Friday those two miserable so and so's Leach and Schaub started going home. Yep, they were leaving me up here all by myself. It was raining and snowing to beat the band. I said, "this is not for me, take me to Litchfield, to the Seven Acres Motel." As they were pulling out, I grabbed my guns, binoculars, a suitcase and left the camp with my tent up and the camp in all it's glory! Mary had taken the car home so I was without wheels. I think Leach was giving me the business, probably in return for one column I worte about him a while back. They'd have loved leaving me in the mountains with no car, no stove, and the snow bombing me and the camp! I just called Mary at home, and she's on the way! We saw that one buck — the real trophy — that she might just get this week! And I just had a bath, a shave and a cheeseburger! Let it snow!

Al Woodard, Gilman Questioned In Probe

Gilman would not comment after his appearance, but Woodard said the jury asked him if he knew of any blacklisting of players by the 26-team league.

WASHINGTON — Three members of the unbeaten Washington Redskins — Jack Pardee, Maxie Baughan and George Burman — and their families were the guests of President Nixon Monday in the White House.

Pardee had three interceptions's as the Redskins whipped the St. Louis Cardinals, 20-0, Sunday to stretch their National Football League record to 5-0.

DENVER, Colo. — University of New Mexico quarterback Rocky Long, whose scrambling led the Lobos from a two-touchdown deficit to a 21-21 tie with San Jose State last week, Monday was named Western Athletic Conference offensive player of the week.

Long edged Brigham Young University fullback Steve Stratton, and University of Texas at El Paso halfback James Berry for the honor.

Both Jimmy Jones and Mike Rae did the throwing to receivers Lynn Swann, Edesel Garrison and Mike Morgan.

Tailback Sam Cunningham was in uniform but did not participate in the drill because of bruises he suffered in the Stanford game. Cunningham said he would be ready for Saturday's game. Two other injured backs, Chuck Hinton and Lou Harris, took part in the workout. Harris wore a bandage on his knee but was able to run.

Oregon

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI)—Oregon's Webfoots held a brief nopads workout Monday after viewing films of their 23-21 Pac-8 win over Washington.

The team spent most of the afternoon on conditioning. The offense went over its passing game with quarterback Dan Fouts at the helm.

Oregon State

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI)— Oregon State coach Dee Andros made a couple of lineup changes Monday in preparation for the Beavers' game against Washington in Seattle Saturday.

He returned tackle Chris Veit to his starting position on offense and moved safety Joe Davis ahead of Jim Lilly.

Also returning to the starting defensive unit Monday was tackle Scott Woods.

Washington State

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI)— Washington State worked for 90 minutes Monday in shoulder pads and sweat clothes in preparation for Saturday's Pacific 8 Conference game with league leading Stanford at Palo Alto.

Coach Jim Sweeney said his charges would have to play again this week without the services of either safety Harry Thompson or fullback Ken Grandberry. Both were injured two weeks ago and missed the Cal game this past Saturday.

"I thought Thompson would be ready, but now it looks as though he may be out longer," Sweeney said.

Amazing Bing Recovering Fast

Here is a man who should have been worried to death about his pro basketball career Monday, even after doctors told him the surgery to reattach his retina did its job and Bing's vision should return, in time, to near normal.

But all the star guard for the Detroit Pistons could think about was the condition of his good friend Lem Barney, who plays defensive cornerback for the Detroit Lions.

Barney had suffered a pulled groin muscle Sunday while the Lions were beating the Houston Oilers, 31-7, and Bing had heard he'd been taken to a Detroit hospital for possible internal hemorrhaging.

"Can I call him?" Bing leaned over and whispered to a friend who was sitting next to the University Hospital bed the basketball player has been using quite a bit ever since his eye operation Friday.

The look of concern on Bing's face told you far more about the quality of this man than even the classy way he conducted himself, knowing as he did there is an element of doubt about his ever playing pro basketball again.

"People don't realize how lucky they are, just to have sight," said Bing, who knows it now because his wife had to lead him around by the hand for 12 hours after the operation because his eyes were both covered to prevent eye movement.

"It may be months before we know what Mr. Bing's residual vision will be in the eye," said Dr. Morton Cox, who headed the three physician team which performed the cyrosurgery on the star guard's right eye.

"Even though the reattachment was successful, some irreversible tissue damage occurs on injury," Dr. Cox said. He said the retina was "intact."

"Instead of them having to put it in place, it flopped back by itself," Bing said the doctors told him about the operation.

"Even though the operation was a success," the 27-year-old all-time scoring and assists leader of the Pistons said, "they haven't given me any indication of when I'll get my sight back.

"Saturday, a man came up — his daughter is in the hospital for something — who had the same," Bing said. "He said within two or three days he was seeing out of his eye."

Bing is making such quick progress he's being allowed to go home before the weekend, rather than the two or three week stay originally planned for him.

"They say there's no reason why I can't come all the way back. There's no reason for me not to be optimistic."

The lithe clutch man in Detroit's offense admitted to being worried but feels he was more confused than anything else.

"It really took me by surprise," he said. "One doctor told me it would clear up by itself within 48 hours...then another said if no operation was performed I'd lose the sight in the eye."

Bing has 20-40 vision in his left eye, the result of falling on a nail when he was five years old. Now, if he plays again, and this seems likely, Bing will have to wear contact lenses.

Nobody who knows him doubts he will come back. Because courage can be spelled the usual way — and D-a-v-e B-i-n-g.

Market's Decline Speeds Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market decline accelerated during the second hour of trading today, with leading market averages in reverse gear for the fifth consecutive session.

Selected stocks were hit by some unfavorable third quarter earnings statements, but in general corporate earnings for this period provided a mixed bag for investors.

Generally weighing on the market were the fuzziness of Phase Two of the administration's economic program, and its eventual effect on corporate profits.

Among the most active Amex issues were STP Corp. down more than 2 on around 50,000 shares, and Champion Home Builders down a point on 35,000 shares.

On the Big Board, Studebaker-Worthington fell another 3⅛ after tumbling 6¾ Monday. The firm reported lower third quarter earnings last week.

Stocks down a point or so included Superior Oil, Wrigley, UAL Inc., American Airlines, Control Data, Honeywell, Texas Instruments, and Xerox. The last reported a higher third quarter net.

Steels, motors and chemicals generally surrendered fractions.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Two Investments Good For Long Pull

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I purchased shares of Chromalloy American (NYSE) at 19¼ a share and shares of Johnston Mutual Fund. What do you think of these situations? — J. K.

A. Both of your investments represent excellent long-pull holdings. Widely diversified Chromalloy American's recent entry into the areas of high-technology products and services enhances the company's growth potential, while prospects for its older businesses — metal processing, textiles, transportation and industry equipment — also remain favorable.

Despite a depressed first quarter this year, Chromalloy managed to post a slight gain for 1971's first half. On a 9.1 percent sales increase, per share profits rose 2.8 percent to 71 cents (fully diluted). With continued recovery expected, Chromalloy should prove a worthwhile growth vehicle.

Johnston Mutual Fund has performed well in the past several years, participating in rising markets, while receding to a limited degree in declining periods. For the 1966-70 period, the fund's net asset value gained 40 percent, versus 20 percent for the average of all open end mutual funds. Thus far for 1971, Johnston's net asset value has increased 22 percent. Continued growth is anticipated from this fund's high-quality portfolio and shares may be held.

Q. Could you provide information on the maker of Panasonic products? I was told this was a division of Sony. Is this true? — S. K.

A. No. Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., Ltd. makes the Panasonic product line. The company, which is Japan's largest manufacturer of electronic and electrical items, markets products in the U.S. under the Panasonic trademark and elsewhere under the National trade name.

Matsushita has compiled an impressive five-year growth record, with sales gaining roughly 271 percent and per share net more than keeping pace. In 1970, consumer electronic equipment and components accounted for 52 percent of sales, appliances 25 percent and the remainder from various other items. Matsushita ADR's (American Depository Receipts) are traded over-the-counter at about 13½.

Building Permits Are On The Rise

Countywide building permits during September were high, reaching a total valuation of $13,295,379, according to the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

In September, 1970 the total was $3,806,510.

San Rafael permits (incorporated and unincorporated areas) amounted to $6,838,550, most of this made up of residential construction on apartment houses. The Kentfield-Greenbrae area was second highest at $2,634,793, resulting from the new library at College of Marin. Novato was in third place with $1,979,027, about 58 per cent residential.

Among other communities, Sausalito's $329,132 was mostly residential — as were the Tiburon peninsula's $393,200, Mill Valley's $364,455 and Larkspur's $260,440. Corte Madera's $54,274 was 62 per cent residential; San Anselmo's $37,694 was all for miscellaneous permits, as was the Ross total of $21,620.

No permits for the entire month were recorded in Fairfax. West Marin and other incorporated areas accounts for $482,194, more than two-thirds residential and most of the balance for miscellaneous permits.

For the nine-month period, this year's total was 77.1 million, compared to last year's $37.8 million.

Coldwell, Banker Earnings Increase

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Coldwell, Banker & Co. (NYSE) has reported net income from operations of $785,169, or 39 cents per share, for the first quarter ended Sept. 30.

This represented a 200 per cent improvement in earnings per share over the same quarter a year ago when net income amounted to $252,894, or 13 cents per share.

Bank Clearings Rise In Marin

September bank clearings for Marin County were higher than those for the same month in 1970.

The Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco reported unadjusted debits at $273,728,000, compared with $215,037,000 a year ago.

Unadjusted deposits of $125,509,000 were also higher than the $111,131,000 reported for September of last year.
